HUGHES "LOSING" ON PLANE DEAL

Three Airline Personnel Are Crash Victims

Craft Plunges Into East River At N. Y.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8 (AP) — A two-engined American Airlines radar experimental plane plunged into the East River off LaGuardia Field tonight and company spokesmen said three of five airline personnel aboard were presumed dead.

The plane was attempting an emergency landing shortly after taking off.

Two mechanics, James Till, 28, and Chester J. Ball, were rescued by the crew of a police launch shortly before the plane settled beneath the waters — scene of two other plane crashes in the last two years.

One Engine Failed

An airline spokesman said the plane, a type used in commercial passenger service but carrying only airline personnel, had just taken off for Buffalo on a trip to experiment with radar when one engine failed.

The pilot, Capt. Walter A. Davidson, circled back, attempted to land but overshot the field, the airline said.

Presumed dead, in addition to Capt. Davidson, were the co-pilot, W. I. Zundel, and H. Hickey, a mechanic.

All the personnel were from New York.

Till, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Till, Fort Wayne, Ind., and father of a two-year-old girl, was not injured. He said one engine "cut off" on the takeoff and that was all he knew of the difficulty.

Sinks In 10 Minutes

The plane sank about 10 minutes after hitting the water, witnesses said. Police officials said the tail was about three feet under water while the nose was submerged about 15 feet.

Approximately two years ago, another craft plunged into the waters off the field and one woman was drowned.

On February 15, 1945, an Army B-29 Superfortress plunged into nearby Flushing Bay, killing five men, including the pilot, Maj. Billy Southworth, Jr., whose father is now manager of the Boston Braves baseball team.

Walter Pfeifer, a commercial fisherman, said he was working off nearby docks when he saw the plane plummet into the river. He said he and 13 other men, aboard three small craft, rushed to the scene and were able to get lines aboard the plane. Pfeifer said the water was 38 feet deep at the scene of the crash.

Pfeifer said he was able to talk to one of the rescued men, whom he was unable to identify, and said he was told that the captain of the plane discovered a leaking oil line just before the motor "cut out."

Pilot Dies In P-80 Crash

WILLIAMSBURG, Va., Aug. 8 (AP) —Capt. William T. Akins, Hillsborough, Tex., attached to the 161st Reconnaissance Squadron at Langley Field, Va., was killed today when his P-80 jet went into a spin and crashed near here.

Akins was married and was residing with his wife near Langley Field.

Williamsburg firemen and police who went to the scene said they found fragments of the pilot's body about 40 feet from the fire-blackened wreckage.

Nancy Perini Victim Of Accidental Drowning

PALMOUTH, Mass., Aug. 8 (AP)—Nancy Perini, four-year-old niece of President Lou Perini of the Boston Braves baseball club, was found today—victim of accidental drowning in the sea directly in front of her parents' summer home at exclusive Megansett Beach.

While they watched the dragging from a porch, the little girl's body was recovered in seven feet of water about 25 feet out from the beach after an all-night search—intensified when one investigator expressed fears she had been kidnapped for ransom.

Industry Hits Back At Tax On Earnings

NEW YORK, Aug. 8 (AP) — America's motion picture industry, hitting back at a severe tax imposed by Great Britain on United States films, today placed a flat ban on shipment of all feature pictures and short subjects to Britain.

Eric A. Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association of America (MPA), announced the decision after a closed three-hour session attended by 50 film executives. The vote on the ban was not announced.

The tax, announced yesterday by Great Britain as a measure to combat that country's dollar shortage was attacked by Johnston who declared in a statement that it "in effect strangles American film shipments to England."

"If the British do not want American pictures, that's one thing," the M. P. A. head commented. "If they do, they shouldn't expect to get a dollar's worth of films for a quarter."

In recent years United States films have earned about $400,000,000 annually in the British market and have constituted about 80 per cent of the films shown in Britain, it was said here.

"Last Straw," Says British Wife

LONDON, Aug. 8 (AP) — The icy wind of the economic crisis blew smack down the neck of the British little man — and his little wife — today with the news that no more Hollywood movies would be crossing the Atlantic.

You can water his beer, up the price of his cigaret, cut his candy ration and still the little man who dodged buzzbombs will grumble, grin, shrug and carry on. But deprive him of his weekly bath of celluloid bloodshed and glamor?

"This is the last straw!" declared the wife of an electrical engineer. "Going to the films is the only recreation I have—and if they take away American films . . .Well, I'm patriotic and all that, but there's nobody like Clark Gable in British pictures."

Motion picture theater managers echoed the harried housewife's complaint and warned that hundreds of cinema palaces are likely to close because of the shortage of British pictures.

Commons Gives 251-148 Approval To "Crisis Bill"

Impassioned Protest By Churchill Fails

LONDON, Aug. 8—(AP)—The Labor government's emergency bill broadening its already extensive powers over labor and management was approved in the House of Commons on its decisive second reading today despite Winston Churchill's impassioned protest that it was a "blank check for totalitarian government."

By 251 votes to 148, the Labor majority threw out Churchill's motion to reject the bill which the wartime Prime Minister assailed as a "gross invasion of our fundamental liberties" and a "complete abrogation" of the powers of Parliament.

"Substitute For Leadership"

One Labor member, Capt. Raymond Blackburn, voted against the government, charging that the bill was a "substitute for leadership" and "completely contrary to the faith of the Labor Party and everything for which the Labor Party has ever stood."

Home Secretary Chuter Ede, asserting that any orders issued under the new powers would be subject to parliamentary review, said the bill was necessary because "we should have power to deal drastically and swiftly with awkward situations that may arise."

To which Churchill snapped, "Hitler said that!"

Parliament, which was to have adjourned for the summer today, remained in session expecting to complete action on the bill by next Wednesday.

Union Data Will Not Be Published

Morse Is Chosen For Labor Post

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8, (AP)—Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach said today he will not make public financial and other information which unions file with his department under the Taft-Hartley labor law.

Schwellenbach announced his stand at a news conference in which he disclosed that President Truman has chosen David A. Morse, 40-year-old New York lawyer, to be Undersecretary of Labor. Morse, an assistant secretary for the past year, will succeed Keen Johnson, resigned.

Denial of access to the union financial files, Schwellenbach said, is based on his decision that in framing the act Congress did not intend for the information to be made public.

However, he said, any member of a union who comes to the department in person will be shown the information filed by both his local and international unions. Unions which want to use the machinery of the National Labor Relations Board must file with the Labor Department information on finances, officers' salaries, dues, initiation fees, etc. However, many unions have announced they won't deal with the NLRB; in such a course they won't have to file the financial information.

The nomination of Morse to be undersecretary is subject to Senate confirmation when Congress returns next year. Schwellenbach was asked whether he has any plans himself for resigning as Labor Secretary. He replied, "no."

From September, 1945, until a year ago Morse was general counsel of the NLRB.

Woman, 75, And Stepson, 39, Are Honeymooning

MURPHYSBORO, Ill., Aug. 8—(AP)—A slight 75-year-old woman and her six-foot stepson by her third marriage were honeymooning today in a two-room frame cottage.

Mrs. Mabel Genevieve Pitts and strapping Victor Robert Pitts, 39, were married yesterday by Rev. William Boatman in the parsonage of the First Lutheran Church.

"All my other husbands died, so I thought I'd get me a young man this time," she said. "Just as soon as we got married the good luck started—we used to quarrel all the time and we haven't since we got married."

The bride said her husband had been unable to find work so far and that she expected to obtain employment at the Duquoin State Fair to augment her $30 a month old-age pension.

Round-World Flier Reaches Karachi, India

Departs One Hour, 15 Minutes Later

[By The Associated Press]

Round-theWorld Flier William P. Odom, nearing the halfway mark in his attempt to halve Wiley Post's 1933 solo record, landed at Karachi, India, Friday and departed an hour and 25 minutes later after refueling.

Flight officials in Chicago, where Odom took off at 12:53 p. m. (EST) Thursday, said they were informed by the CAA in New York that Odom put his speeding Bombshell plane down at Karachi Friday at 7:10 p. m. (EST), nearly eight hours after he left Cairo.

After leaving Cairo, 22 hours and 46 minutes out of Chicago and a third of the way around the world in his flight, Odom rode toward Karachi on a tail wind.

55-Minute Stop at Cairo

In a 55-minute stop at Cairo he took on 500 gallons of gasoline for his plane and a single glass of orange juice for himself.

His converted United States Army bomber, the "Bombshell," checked out of Farouk Airfield at 6:39 p. m. (11:30 a. m. Eastern Standard Time) just as the sun was setting across the Nile Valley.

He gave the control tower a crisp "thank you" over his radio and headed down the 2,200-mile leg to Karachi. He was 22 hours and 46 minutes out of Chicago, his starting point, when he left. Airfield officials estimated he would be in Karachi in seven or eight hours, with the aid of the tail winds.

Due In Chicago Sunday

Odom, still fresh despite lack of sleep, was confident that he would be back in Chicago on Sunday. The former British Ferry Command airman, now living in Roslyn, N. Y., wants to cut to 90 hours or less the 186-solo record set by Post in 1933.

He said he landed in Cairo instead of flying non-stop to Karachi because he had no information on weather at Karachi in Paris and he disliked flying into unknown weather conditions without additional gasoline.

Mother Follows Flight

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 8—(AP)—Mrs. Ethel Odom admitted today she was trying to keep cool while her son, William P. Odom, was flying around the world, "but its pretty hard."

"I guess I'm the only one in the family who really gets excited on these flights of his," she said.

She stayed up late last night at the family farm near Raymore, Mo., to listen to radio reports of her son's progress.

Her husband, Dennis, retired at 10 p. m., explaining:

"I've got to go to work tomorrow."

He is a dispatcher for the Public Service Company here.

The flier's mother came to Kansas City this morning to make plane reservations for herself and her husband—her first plane trip—so they can be on hand at Chicago when the flight is completed.

TWO FLIERS SCHEDULED TO BEGIN WORLD FLIGHT IN CUB PLANES TODAY

NEW YORK, Aug. 8 (AP) — Two former Army fliers said today they would take off at 10 a. m., tomorrow from the Teterboro, N. J., airport to fly around the world side by side in two cub planes—but "we're not trying to to set any speed records."

The flight will be the first ever attempted in the A cub, one of the world's smallest planes.

The pilots are George Truman, 39, of Los Angeles, a former Army flight instructor, and Clifford V. Evans, 26, of Washington, D. C., who flew in the China - Burma - India theater during the war. The flight originally was set to begin June 15, but various delays were encountered.

They said they expected the trip to take from 200 to 220 flying hours and from 30 to 45 days at an average cruising speed of 100 miles an hour.

Army Agents Seek Missing Gems In Berlin

Belonged To Late Widow Of Kaiser

BERLIN, Saturday, Aug. 9. (AP) —United States Army criminal investigation agents disclosed today they were searching for missing jewels belonging to the late widow of Kaiser Wilhelm II and believed to be worth more than $500,000.

The owner of the jewels was Princess Hermine Von Schoenaich-Carolath, who died Thursday at Frankfurt-an-der-Oder in the Russian zone of Germany.

The Army agents said the jewels had vanished in the United States sector of Berlin, where they had been in the possession of Hermine's son, Prince Ferdinand Schoenaich-Carolath.

The officers said the Prince had received from his mother in June 95 pieces of jewelry which they estimated to be worth $1,000,000.

They said this treasure was delivered to him by a young German woman friend who "risked her neck" to smuggle it out of the Russian zone in a valise.

The jewels were sent to Ferdinand, the officers quoted him as saying, to be converted into cash and invested in hotel and other interests in Western Germany.

But before he could dispose of them, they reported he told them, 29 of the "best pieces"—which represented more than half the total value of the treasure — vanished from a trunk in which he had them locked.

The death of the Princess was announced yesterday by the Soviet-controlled German news agency. She was 60.

Britain To Query Russia On Atomic Control Position

Gromyko Once More Rejects U. S. Plan

LAKE SUCCESS, Aug. 8—(AP)—Britain announced suddenly tonight she is asking Soviet Russia key questions on the whole Soviet position on atomic control.

This came shortly after Russia's Andrei A. Gromyko flatly rejected once more, in sharper terms than usual, basic principles on ownership, management and control of the atomic materials and facilities which are favored by a majority of the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission.

Gromyko, in his answer to Frederick H. Osborn, United States deputy on the Atomic Commission, also made it clear that Russia still does not accept the United States plan for control as approved by 10 members of the 12-member commission.

No Previous Warning

Richard Miles, of the British delegation to the United Nations Atomic Commission, announced without any previous warning to members of the commission's working committee that his government had prepared in London a list of questions for the highest Russian authorities to answer on the Rusian ideas on atomic control.

Miles was handed the queries only this afternoon as he left for the atomic meeting. They will be submitted to Gromyko for transmission to Moscow this weekend.

Miles said Britain was ready to wait a long time for the answers. The questions were understood to deal with these points:

1. Does Russia believe that some minor sanctions can be imposed by majority vote or must every sanction be subject to the veto?

2. Will atomic inspectors be allowed to visit any plants not reported to the proposed international atomic energy agency?

One Treaty Or Several

3. Will Russia agree to one complete treaty (as favored by the commission majority) or will she insist on separate conventions, one for immediate prohibition of the atomic bomb, another for controls,

PROSECUTOR AND WIFE—Sidney McMath, young prosecuting attorney and Hot Springs, Ark., political leader, and his wife, Anne, who he says shot and killed his father, Hal P. McMath, 57, had this picture taken recently in their automobile. McMath has stepped aside so that a special prosecutor could present the case against his wife.

Prosecutor Says Frightened Wife Slew His Father

Special Prosecutor Will Present Case

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Aug. 8 (AP) — Prosecutor Sideny S. McMath named his wife today as the slayer of his father, then stepped aside so that a special prosecutor could present the case against the pretty, 26-year-old blonde at an extraordinary session of the grand jury.

Pending the grand jury session, no charge was filed against Mrs. McMath.

McMath, former Marine lieutenant who won promotion and a host of decorations for gallantry on Southwest Pacific battlefields, declared his wife thrice shot Hal P. McMath, 56, at the prosecutor's country home with his service .45 calibre automatic while "hysterical with fright."

The moving spirit in an ex-servicemen's successful revolt against a long-entrenched Hot Springs political organization at the polls last year, McMath decared his father had been "drinking excessively."

"I know she did not intend to kill my father, because she loved him as we all did," he said.

"She would not have intentionally killed him even to save her own life."

Wife Was Threatened

McMath's prepared report related that the elder McMath had abused his wife earlier this week, then cursed and threatened her last night while advancing on her with clenched fist.

"She picked up my .45 automatic x x x with the idea of frightening him away.

"He started x x x after her. Anne knew he was not himself. She became hysterical with fright and began firing. Anne had never fired a weapon before in her life."

Haggard and unshaven after a sleepless night, McMath handed reporters a written statement this morning covering the tragedy.

"This is a tragic occurance," the statement began. "I grieve for my father, my mother, my children and my wife.

"My father has been running my farm for me x x x, returning to his home in Hot Springs in the evening. For years he has been an excessively heavy drinker. When he drank x x x, he underwent a change in character. Lately he has been drinking more and more. Drinking caused him to become irrational, abusive and violent.

Started Drinking Again

"Monday when I was in court x x x my wife, Anne, had to call the sheriff's office after he (the elder McMath) had maltreated and badly bruised her.

"I arrived at the same time the sheriff's deputies did. Anne was badly shaken and frightened. x x x. I at once took my father in hand x x x x. He agreed x x x that he needed medical treatment. Arrangements for x x x hospitalization for him were to be completed this week.

"Yesterday he started drinking again after I had left town. He returned to our home. He started mistreating one of our horses. Anne pleaded with him to stop. He became enraged and violent x x x."

New Heat Wave Starts Moving Into Midwest

CHICAGO, Aug. 8 (AP) — A new heat wave started moving into the sun-baked, heat-plagued Midwest Friday.

With the toll of deaths attributed to this week's heat wave growing to 145 temperatures were going up in the Great Plain States and forecasters said readings in the high nineties were in prospect for most of the Midwest by Sunday.

They said the new heat wave would last only some 48 hours, however.

President Signs Measure Killing Credit Controls

Goes To "Shangri-La" After Clearing Desk

He has signed 175 and killed 19 by pocket veto.

The Chief Executive managed a chat with the Prime Minister of Afghanistan, Sardar Shah Mahmud Kajn, before leaving the White House shortly after lunch and driving North through the rolling hills of Maryland to the weekend haven established as a hideaway during the war by President Roosevelt.

Mr. Truman signed a bill to kill all war-born credit controls effective November 1 with a sharp word to Congress for not carrying on restraints against installment buying. He appealed to the nation to steer clear of an "easy payment" inflation orgy.

He also signed:

1. A bill establishing sugar quotas for use in times of surplus, giving the government discretion to withhold an increase in quotas under certain conditions.

2. A bill to permit mining for gold and other precious metals in navigable streams in Alaska.

Alaska Newsprint Industry

3. A bill authorizing the establishment of a newsprint industry in Southeast Alaska. Forest service officials estimate the legislation will open the way for construction of five $30,000,000 paper mills in Alaska.

4. A bill continuing the special $1,500 income tax exemption of the armed services until January 5, 1949. Army and Navy personnel will be on the same tax-paying basis as civilians.

Among measures vetoed were:

1. A bill designed to extend for two years the wartime subsidy program on mining certain high-cost metals including copper, lead and zinc. The subsidies were paid during the war to keep production flowing on metals which cannot be produced normally at a profit.

2. A bill calling for the Treasury to refund bankers' special taxes in 72 separate cases. A similar measure was vetoed by the late President Roosevelt in 1935. Mr. Truman said the bill "selects a special group of taxpayers for preferred treatment."

"Self restraint on the part of those who use credit as well as upon the part of those who extend it," the Pesident said in a statement, "will reduce the danger of an over-expansion of installment credit

Manufacturer, Sen. Ferguson Bark And Snap

Meyer And Hughes Papers Subpoenaed

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8. (AP)—Defiant Howard Hughes testified today the government is getting its money's worth from his $30,000,000 aerial cargo boat that never has flown.

And the millionaire manufacturer and flier of planes told a Senate War Investigating Subcommittee he isn't making a dime out of that project or any other wartime business.

Hughes still was going on the subject when the committee quit for the night. He gives another installment of the story tomorrow.

The subcommittee is investigating wartime contracts with Hughes and Industrialist Henry J. Kaiser for which the government got no wartime planes.

Relative calm descended on the afternoon hearing. Hughes glowered and tiffed with Chairman Ferguson (R-Mich.) and let off steam with a little cussing. Ferguson threatened to clear out the spectators when they applauded one of Hughes' cracks.

The morning meeting was stormy, with tempers strained and hot words flying.

Cool Off During Lunch

Hughes defiantly refused twice to hunt up free-spending Johnny Meyer, his missing publicity man.

He and Ferguson barked and snapped. Ferguson angrily pounded his ash tray on the table top, demanded obedience to the committee and ground out subpoenas for Meyer and for Hughes' personal papers.

Lunchtime was something of a cooling off period.

Hughes came back to the stand to explain at least in part why it is taking so long and costing so much to turn out the world's largest airplane—a 200-ton flying boat for which the government contracted with Hughes and Kaiser late in 1942. Kaiser subsequently withdrew from the project.

The original contract was for $18,000,000 for three planes. Hughes said this was changed to one plane of twice the planned size, and that doubling the size more than doubles the cost.

The committee has received testimony that the government will have to put some $4,000,000 into such things as engines and propellors, bringing its investment up to $22,000,000.

Hughes said his company already has lost $7,200,000 on the deal and will sink another $2,000,000 in it.

That would raise the eventual cost to Uncle Sam and Howard Hughes to something like $31,200,000.

The government gave contractors billions of dollars of contracts during the war that guaranteed them their costs plus a profit, Hughes asserted.

Hughes Balks Twice

"The only difference between those contracts and this one," he continued, "was that other contractors were assured of a fee or profit. Mr. Kaiser and I were doing a job for the government. None of this money went into our own pockets. There was no chance for

Searchers Find No Trace Of Missing Navy Plane

KODIAK, Alaska, Aug. 8. (AP)—Despite dwindling hopes for their safety, search for a missing PBY-5-A with 20 men aboard was stepped up by the Navy today and eight planes patroled over its last reported position and in the Dutch Harbor area.

Capt. R. R. Sutliff, commandant of the Kodiak Naval Air Station base, said small searching surface craft had also found no trace of the plane in any inlets or sheltered waters near its destination.

The PBY took off on a 600-mile flight to Dutch Harbor at 6:26 a. m. Wednesday and last reported its position at 10:45 a. m., about 150 miles from Dutch Harbor. It was bucking head winds, with visibility of about a mile, and had gasoline for six hours flying.

Conciliation Service Takes Hand In 18-Day-Old Murray Corp. Strike

DETROIT, Aug. 8. (AP)—The Federal Conciliation Service intervened today in the 18-day-old Murray Corporation of America strike which is blamed for the idleness of 72,000 auto workers.

The federal agency set up a three-member hearing panel to make recommendations to end the dispute. At issue was the CIO United Auto Workers' demand for contract provisions to exempt the union from financial liability under the Taft-Hartley labor law.

In addition to the 7,000 men on strike at Murray another 65,000 were idle temporarily because of a shortage, managements said, in auto parts made by Murray.

Intervention by the conciliation service followed union rejection of a company proposal described as a "modification" of the formula under which the coal industry and John L. Lewis settled their dispute of similar nature.

Emil Mazey, UAW-CIO regional director, said the Murray offer was rejected because it had "other strings attached." These were reported to include a union guarantee that all other differences during the effective period of a contract would be settled by arbitration.

The Ford Motor Company and the union, averting a strike of 107,000 men reached a truce Tuesday on the Taft-Hartley issue. The company agreed to withhold any strike damage action under the law pending mutual efforts to arrive at an understanding. A year's time was given for this.

Negotiations over a proposed Ford pension plan were recessed today until Monday. Both sides reported "progress."

Richard T. Leonard, UAW vice president and director of its Ford department, has been authorized by the National Ford Council to call a strike any time after August 14 unless agreement is reached on the pension plan.

HUGHES "LOSING" ON PLANE DEAL

Three Airline Personnel Are Crash Victims

Craft Plunges Into East River At N. Y.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8 (AP) — A two-engined American Airlines radar experimental plane plunged into the East River off LaGuardia Field tonight and company spokesmen said three of five airline personnel aboard were presumed dead.

The plane was attempting an emergency landing shortly after taking off.

Two mechanics, James Till, 28, and Chester J. Ball, were rescued by the crew of a police launch shortly before the plane settled beneath the waters — scene of two other plane crashes in the last two years.

One Engine Failed

An airline spokesman said the plane, a type used in commercial passenger service but carrying only airline personnel, had just taken off for Buffalo on a trip to experiment with radar when one engine failed.

The pilot, Capt. Walter A. Davidson, circled back, attempted to land but overshot the field, the airline said.

Presumed dead, in addition to Capt. Davidson, were the co-pilot, W. I. Zundel, and H. Hickey, a mechanic.

All the personnel were from New York.

Till, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Till, Fort Wayne, Ind., and father of a two-year-old girl, was not injured. He said one engine "cut off" on the takeoff and that was all he knew of the difficulty.

Sinks In 10 Minutes

The plane sank about 10 minutes after hitting the water, witnesses said. Police officials said the tail was about three feet under water while the nose was submerged about 15 feet.

Approximately two years ago, another craft plunged into the waters off the field and one woman was drowned.

On February 15, 1945, an Army B-29 Superfortress plunged into nearby Flushing Bay, killing five men, including the pilot, Maj. Billy Southworth, Jr., whose father is now manager of the Boston Braves baseball team.

Walter Pfeifer, a commercial fisherman, said he was working off nearby docks when he saw the plane plummet into the river. He said he and 13 other men, aboard three small craft, rushed to the scene and were able to get lines aboard the plane. Pfeifer said the water was 38 feet deep at the scene of the crash.

Pfeifer said he was able to talk to one of the rescued men, whom he was unable to identify, and said he was told that the captain of the plane discovered a leaking oil line just before the motor "cut out."

Pilot Dies In P-80 Crash

WILLIAMSBURG, Va., Aug. 8 (AP) —Capt. William T. Akins, Hillsborough, Tex., attached to the 161st Reconnaissance Squadron at Langley Field, Va., was killed today when his P-80 jet went into a spin and crashed near here.

Akins was married and was residing with his wife near Langley Field.

Williamsburg firemen and police who went to the scene said they found fragments of the pilot's body about 40 feet from the fire-blackened wreckage.

Nancy Perini Victim Of Accidental Drowning

PALMOUTH, Mass., Aug. 8 (AP)—Nancy Perini, four-year-old niece of President Lou Perini of the Boston Braves baseball club, was found today—victim of accidental drowning in the sea directly in front of her parents' summer home at exclusive Megansett Beach.

While they watched the dragging from a porch, the little girl's body was recovered in seven feet of water about 25 feet out from the beach after an all-night search—intensified when one investigator expressed fears she had been kidnapped for ransom.

Industry Hits Back At Tax On Earnings

NEW YORK, Aug. 8 (AP) — America's motion picture industry, hitting back at a severe tax imposed by Great Britain on United States films, today placed a flat ban on shipment of all feature pictures and short subjects to Britain.

Eric A. Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association of America (MPA), announced the decision after a closed three-hour session attended by 50 film executives. The vote on the ban was not announced.

The tax, announced yesterday by Great Britain as a measure to combat that country's dollar shortage was attacked by Johnston who declared in a statement that it "in effect strangles American film shipments to England."

"If the British do not want American pictures, that's one thing," the M. P. A. head commented. "If they do, they shouldn't expect to get a dollar's worth of films for a quarter."

In recent years United States films have earned about $400,000,000 annually in the British market and have constituted about 80 per cent of the films shown in Britain, it was said here.

"Last Straw," Says British Wife

LONDON, Aug. 8 (AP) — The icy wind of the economic crisis blew smack down the neck of the British little man — and his little wife — today with the news that no more Hollywood movies would be crossing the Atlantic.

You can water his beer, up the price of his cigaret, cut his candy ration and still the little man who dodged buzzbombs will grumble, grin, shrug and carry on. But deprive him of his weekly bath of celluloid bloodshed and glamor?

"This is the last straw!" declared the wife of an electrical engineer. "Going to the films is the only recreation I have—and if they take away American films . . .Well, I'm patriotic and all that, but there's nobody like Clark Gable in British pictures."

Motion picture theater managers echoed the harried housewife's complaint and warned that hundreds of cinema palaces are likely to close because of the shortage of British pictures.

Commons Gives 251-148 Approval To "Crisis Bill"

Impassioned Protest By Churchill Fails

LONDON, Aug. 8—(AP)—The Labor government's emergency bill broadening its already extensive powers over labor and management was approved in the House of Commons on its decisive second reading today despite Winston Churchill's impassioned protest that it was a "blank check for totalitarian government."

By 251 votes to 148, the Labor majority threw out Churchill's motion to reject the bill which the wartime Prime Minister assailed as a "gross invasion of our fundamental liberties" and a "complete abrogation" of the powers of Parliament.

"Substitute For Leadership"

One Labor member, Capt. Raymond Blackburn, voted against the government, charging that the bill was a "substitute for leadership" and "completely contrary to the faith of the Labor Party and everything for which the Labor Party has ever stood."

Home Secretary Chuter Ede, asserting that any orders issued under the new powers would be subject to parliamentary review, said the bill was necessary because "we should have power to deal drastically and swiftly with awkward situations that may arise."

To which Churchill snapped, "Hitler said that!"

Parliament, which was to have adjourned for the summer today, remained in session expecting to complete action on the bill by next Wednesday.

Union Data Will Not Be Published

Morse Is Chosen For Labor Post

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8, (AP)—Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach said today he will not make public financial and other information which unions file with his department under the Taft-Hartley labor law.

Schwellenbach announced his stand at a news conference in which he disclosed that President Truman has chosen David A. Morse, 40-year-old New York lawyer, to be Undersecretary of Labor. Morse, an assistant secretary for the past year, will succeed Keen Johnson, resigned.

Denial of access to the union financial files, Schwellenbach said, is based on his decision that in framing the act Congress did not intend for the information to be made public.

However, he said, any member of a union who comes to the department in person will be shown the information filed by both his local and international unions. Unions which want to use the machinery of the National Labor Relations Board must file with the Labor Department information on finances, officers' salaries, dues, initiation fees, etc. However, many unions have announced they won't deal with the NLRB; in such a course they won't have to file the financial information.

The nomination of Morse to be undersecretary is subject to Senate confirmation when Congress returns next year. Schwellenbach was asked whether he has any plans himself for resigning as Labor Secretary. He replied, "no."

From September, 1945, until a year ago Morse was general counsel of the NLRB.

Woman, 75, And Stepson, 39, Are Honeymooning

MURPHYSBORO, Ill., Aug. 8—(AP)—A slight 75-year-old woman and her six-foot stepson by her third marriage were honeymooning today in a two-room frame cottage.

Mrs. Mabel Genevieve Pitts and strapping Victor Robert Pitts, 39, were married yesterday by Rev. William Boatman in the parsonage of the First Lutheran Church.

"All my other husbands died, so I thought I'd get me a young man this time," she said. "Just as soon as we got married the good luck started—we used to quarrel all the time and we haven't since we got married."

The bride said her husband had been unable to find work so far and that she expected to obtain employment at the Duquoin State Fair to augment her $30 a month old-age pension.

Round-World Flier Reaches Karachi, India

[By The Associated Press]

Round-theWorld Flier William P. Odom, nearing the halfway mark in his attempt to halve Wiley Post's 1933 solo record, landed at Karachi, India, Friday and departed an hour and 25 minutes later after refueling.

Flight officials in Chicago, where Odom took off at 12:53 p. m. (EST) Thursday, said they were informed by the CAA in New York that Odom put his speeding Bombshell plane down at Karachi Friday at 7:10 p. m. (EST), nearly eight hours after he left Cairo.

After leaving Cairo, 22 hours and 46 minutes out of Chicago and a third of the way around the world in his flight, Odom rode toward Karachi on a tail wind.

55-Minute Stop at Cairo

In a 55-minute stop at Cairo he took on 500 gallons of gasoline for his plane and a single glass of orange juice for himself.

His converted United States Army bomber, the "Bombshell," checked out of Farouk Airfield at 6:39 p. m. (11:30 a. m. Eastern Standard Time) just as the sun was setting across the Nile Valley.

He gave the control tower a crisp "thank you" over his radio and headed down the 2,200-mile leg to Karachi. He was 22 hours and 46 minutes out of Chicago, his starting point, when he left. Airfield officials estimated he would be in Karachi in seven or eight hours, with the aid of the tail winds.

Due In Chicago Sunday

Odom, still fresh despite lack of sleep, was confident that he would be back in Chicago on Sunday. The former British Ferry Command airman, now living in Roslyn, N. Y., wants to cut to 90 hours or less the 186-solo record set by Post in 1933.

He said he landed in Cairo instead of flying non-stop to Karachi because he had no information on weather at Karachi in Paris and he disliked flying into unknown weather conditions without additional gasoline.

Mother Follows Flight

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 8—(AP)—Mrs. Ethel Odom admitted today she was trying to keep cool while her son, William P. Odom, was flying around the world, "but its pretty hard."

"I guess I'm the only one in the family who really gets excited on these flights of his," she said.

She stayed up late last night at the family farm near Raymore, Mo., to listen to radio reports of her son's progress.

Her husband, Dennis, retired at 10 p. m., explaining:

"I've got to go to work tomorrow."

He is a dispatcher for the Public Service Company here.

The flier's mother came to Kansas City this morning to make plane reservations for herself and her husband—her first plane trip—so they can be on hand at Chicago when the flight is completed.

TWO FLIERS SCHEDULED TO BEGIN WORLD FLIGHT IN CUB PLANES TODAY

NEW YORK, Aug. 8 (AP) — Two former Army fliers said today they would take off at 10 a. m., tomorrow from the Teterboro, N. J., airport to fly around the world side by side in two cub planes—but "we're not trying to to set any speed records."

The flight will be the first ever attempted in the A cub, one of the world's smallest planes.

The pilots are George Truman, 39, of Los Angeles, a former Army flight instructor, and Clifford V. Evans, 26, of Washington, D. C., who flew in the China - Burma - India theater during the war. The flight originally was set to begin June 15, but various delays were encountered.

They said they expected the trip to take from 200 to 220 flying hours and from 30 to 45 days at an average cruising speed of 100 miles an hour.

Army Agents Seek Missing Gems In Berlin

Belonged To Late Widow Of Kaiser

BERLIN, Saturday, Aug. 9. (AP) —United States Army criminal investigation agents disclosed today they were searching for missing jewels belonging to the late widow of Kaiser Wilhelm II and believed to be worth more than $500,000.

The owner of the jewels was Princess Hermine Von Schoenaich-Carolath, who died Thursday at Frankfurt-an-der-Oder in the Russian zone of Germany.

The Army agents said the jewels had vanished in the United States sector of Berlin, where they had been in the possession of Hermine's son, Prince Ferdinand Schoenaich-Carolath.

The officers said the Prince had received from his mother in June 95 pieces of jewelry which they estimated to be worth $1,000,000.

They said this treasure was delivered to him by a young German woman friend who "risked her neck" to smuggle it out of the Russian zone in a valise.

The jewels were sent to Ferdinand, the officers quoted him as saying, to be converted into cash and invested in hotel and other interests in Western Germany.

But before he could dispose of them, they reported he told them, 29 of the "best pieces"—which represented more than half the total value of the treasure — vanished from a trunk in which he had them locked.

The death of the Princess was announced yesterday by the Soviet-controlled German news agency. She was 60.

Britain To Query Russia On Atomic Control Position

Gromyko Once More Rejects U. S. Plan

LAKE SUCCESS, Aug. 8—(AP)—Britain announced suddenly tonight she is asking Soviet Russia key questions on the whole Soviet position on atomic control.

This came shortly after Russia's Andrei A. Gromyko flatly rejected once more, in sharper terms than usual, basic principles on ownership, management and control of the atomic materials and facilities which are favored by a majority of the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission.

Gromyko, in his answer to Frederick H. Osborn, United States deputy on the Atomic Commission, also made it clear that Russia still does not accept the United States plan for control as approved by 10 members of the 12-member commission.

No Previous Warning

Richard Miles, of the British delegation to the United Nations Atomic Commission, announced without any previous warning to members of the commission's working committee that his government had prepared in London a list of questions for the highest Russian authorities to answer on the Rusian ideas on atomic control.

Miles was handed the queries only this afternoon as he left for the atomic meeting. They will be submitted to Gromyko for transmission to Moscow this weekend.

Miles said Britain was ready to wait a long time for the answers. The questions were understood to deal with these points:

1. Does Russia believe that some minor sanctions can be imposed by majority vote or must every sanction be subject to the veto?

2. Will atomic inspectors be allowed to visit any plants not reported to the proposed international atomic energy agency?

One Treaty Or Several

3. Will Russia agree to one complete treaty (as favored by the commission majority) or will she insist on separate conventions, one for immediate prohibition of the atomic bomb, another for controls,

PROSECUTOR AND WIFE—Sidney McMath, young prosecuting attorney and Hot Springs, Ark., political leader, and his wife, Anne, who he says shot and killed his father, Hal P. McMath, 57, had this picture taken recently in their automobile. McMath has stepped aside so that a special prosecutor could present the case against his wife.

Prosecutor Says Frightened Wife Slew His Father

Special Prosecutor Will Present Case

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Aug. 8 (AP) — Prosecutor Sideny S. McMath named his wife today as the slayer of his father, then stepped aside so that a special prosecutor could present the case against the pretty, 26-year-old blonde at an extraordinary session of the grand jury.

Pending the grand jury session, no charge was filed against Mrs. McMath.

McMath, former Marine lieutenant who won promotion and a host of decorations for gallantry on Southwest Pacific battlefields, declared his wife thrice shot Hal P. McMath, 56, at the prosecutor's country home with his service .45 calibre automatic while "hysterical with fright."

The moving spirit in an ex-servicemen's successful revolt against a long-entrenched Hot Springs political organization at the polls last year, McMath decared his father had been "drinking excessively."

"I know she did not intend to kill my father, because she loved him as we all did," he said.

Wife Was Threatened

McMath's prepared report related that the elder McMath had abused his wife earlier this week, then cursed and threatened her last night while advancing on her with clenched fist.

"She picked up my .45 automatic x x x with the idea of frightening him away.

"He started x x x after her. Anne knew he was not himself. She became hysterical with fright and began firing. Anne had never fired a weapon before in her life."

Haggard and unshaven after a sleepless night, McMath handed reporters a written statement this morning covering the tragedy.

"This is a tragic occurance," the statement began. "I grieve for my father, my mother, my children and my wife.

"My father has been running my farm for me x x x, returning to his home in Hot Springs in the evening. For years he has been an excessively heavy drinker. When he drank x x x, he underwent a change in character. Lately he has been drinking more and more. Drinking caused him to become irrational, abusive and violent.

Started Drinking Again

"Monday when I was in court x x x my wife, Anne, had to call the sheriff's office after he (the elder McMath) had maltreated and badly bruised her.

"I arrived at the same time the sheriff's deputies did. Anne was badly shaken and frightened. x x x. I at once took my father in hand x x x x. He agreed x x x that he needed medical treatment. Arrangements for x x x hospitalization for him were to be completed this week.

"Yesterday he started drinking again after I had left town. He returned to our home. He started mistreating one of our horses. Anne pleaded with him to stop. He became enraged and violent x x x."

President Signs Measure Killing Credit Controls

Goes To "Shangri-La" After Clearing Desk

He has signed 175 and killed 19 by pocket veto.

The Chief Executive managed a chat with the Prime Minister of Afghanistan, Sardar Shah Mahmud Kajn, before leaving the White House shortly after lunch and driving North through the rolling hills of Maryland to the weekend haven established as a hideaway during the war by President Roosevelt.

Mr. Truman signed a bill to kill all war-born credit controls effective November 1 with a sharp word to Congress for not carrying on restraints against installment buying. He appealed to the nation to steer clear of an "easy payment" inflation orgy.

He also signed:

1. A bill establishing sugar quotas for use in times of surplus, giving the government discretion to withhold an increase in quotas under certain conditions.

2. A bill to permit mining for gold and other precious metals in navigable streams in Alaska.

Alaska Newsprint Industry

3. A bill authorizing the establishment of a newsprint industry in Southeast Alaska. Forest service officials estimate the legislation will open the way for construction of five $30,000,000 paper mills in Alaska.

4. A bill continuing the special $1,500 income tax exemption of the armed services until January 5, 1949. Army and Navy personnel will be on the same tax-paying basis as civilians.

Among measures vetoed were:

1. A bill designed to extend for two years the wartime subsidy program on mining certain high-cost metals including copper, lead and zinc. The subsidies were paid during the war to keep production flowing on metals which cannot be produced normally at a profit.

2. A bill calling for the Treasury to refund bankers' special taxes in 72 separate cases. A similar measure was vetoed by the late President Roosevelt in 1935. Mr. Truman said the bill "selects a special group of taxpayers for preferred treatment."

"Self restraint on the part of those who use credit as well as upon the part of those who extend it," the Pesident said in a statement, "will reduce the danger of an over-expansion of installment credit

Manufacturer, Sen. Ferguson Bark And Snap

Meyer And Hughes Papers Subpoenaed

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8. (AP)—Defiant Howard Hughes testified today the government is getting its money's worth from his $30,000,000 aerial cargo boat that never has flown.

And the millionaire manufacturer and flier of planes told a Senate War Investigating Subcommittee he isn't making a dime out of that project or any other wartime business.

Hughes still was going on the subject when the committee quit for the night. He gives another installment of the story tomorrow.

The subcommittee is investigating wartime contracts with Hughes and Industrialist Henry J. Kaiser for which the government got no wartime planes.

Relative calm descended on the afternoon hearing. Hughes glowered and tiffed with Chairman Ferguson (R-Mich.) and let off steam with a little cussing. Ferguson threatened to clear out the spectators when they applauded one of Hughes' cracks.

The morning meeting was stormy, with tempers strained and hot words flying.

Cool Off During Lunch

Hughes defiantly refused twice to hunt up free-spending Johnny Meyer, his missing publicity man.

He and Ferguson barked and snapped. Ferguson angrily pounded his ash tray on the table top, demanded obedience to the committee and ground out subpoenas for Meyer and for Hughes' personal papers.

Lunchtime was something of a cooling off period.

Hughes came back to the stand to explain at least in part why it is taking so long and costing so much to turn out the world's largest airplane—a 200-ton flying boat for which the government contracted with Hughes and Kaiser late in 1942. Kaiser subsequently withdrew from the project.

The original contract was for $18,000,000 for three planes. Hughes said this was changed to one plane of twice the planned size, and that doubling the size more than doubles the cost.

The committee has received testimony that the government will have to put some $4,000,000 into such things as engines and propellors, bringing its investment up to $22,000,000.

Hughes said his company already has lost $7,200,000 on the deal and will sink another $2,000,000 in it.

That would raise the eventual cost to Uncle Sam and Howard Hughes to something like $31,200,000.

The government gave contractors billions of dollars of contracts during the war that guaranteed them their costs plus a profit, Hughes asserted.

Hughes Balks Twice

"The only difference between those contracts and this one," he continued, "was that other contractors were assured of a fee or profit. Mr. Kaiser and I were doing a job for the government. None of this money went into our own pockets. There was no chance for

Searchers Find No Trace Of Missing Navy Plane

KODIAK, Alaska, Aug. 8. (AP)—Despite dwindling hopes for their safety, search for a missing PBY-5-A with 20 men aboard was stepped up by the Navy today and eight planes patroled over its last reported position and in the Dutch Harbor area.

Capt. R. R. Sutliff, commandant of the Kodiak Naval Air Station base, said small searching surface craft had also found no trace of the plane in any inlets or sheltered waters near its destination.

The PBY took off on a 600-mile flight to Dutch Harbor at 6:26 a. m. Wednesday and last reported its position at 10:45 a. m., about 150 miles from Dutch Harbor. It was bucking head winds, with visibility of about a mile, and had gasoline for six hours flying.

Conciliation Service Takes Hand In 18-Day-Old Murray Corp. Strike

DETROIT, Aug. 8. (AP)—The Federal Conciliation Service intervened today in the 18-day-old Murray Corporation of America strike which is blamed for the idleness of 72,000 auto workers.

The federal agency set up a three-member hearing panel to make recommendations to end the dispute. At issue was the CIO United Auto Workers' demand for contract provisions to exempt the union from financial liability under the Taft-Hartley labor law.

In addition to the 7,000 men on strike at Murray another 65,000 were idle temporarily because of a shortage, managements said, in auto parts made by Murray.

Intervention by the conciliation service followed union rejection of a company proposal described as a "modification" of the formula under which the coal industry and John L. Lewis settled their dispute of similar nature.

Emil Mazey, UAW-CIO regional director, said the Murray offer was rejected because it had "other strings attached." These were reported to include a union guarantee that all other differences during the effective period of a contract would be settled by arbitration.

The Ford Motor Company and the union, averting a strike of 107,000 men reached a truce Tuesday on the Taft-Hartley issue. The company agreed to withhold any strike damage action under the law pending mutual efforts to arrive at an understanding. A year's time was given for this.

Negotiations over a proposed Ford pension plan were recessed today until Monday. Both sides reported "progress."

Richard T. Leonard, UAW vice president and director of its Ford department, has been authorized by the National Ford Council to call a strike any time after August 14 unless agreement is reached on the pension plan.

New Heat Wave Starts Moving Into Midwest

CHICAGO, Aug. 8 (AP) — A new heat wave started moving into the sun-baked, heat-plagued Midwest Friday.

With the toll of deaths attributed to this week's heat wave growing to 145 temperatures were going up in the Great Plain States and forecasters said readings in the high nineties were in prospect for most of the Midwest by Sunday.

They said the new heat wave would last only some 48 hours, however.

Legion Committee Report Says Md. Legislature Isn't "Veteran-Minded"

BALTIMORE, Aug. 8, (AP) — As observers noted the absence of tomfoolery which marked its prewar predecessors, the annual convention of the Maryland Department of the American Legion swung into its third day today with a critical report from the organization's legislative committee.

William H. McGrath, chairman of the committee and himself a House of Delegates representative from Prince Georges County, delivered the report, which charged that the present State Legislature is unsympathetic to the welfare of the veterans.

"It is the concensus of the members of the Legion's legislative committee," McGrath said, "that the present Legislature is not veteran-minded x x x."

He reviewed legislation passed by the 1947 Legislature, declaring that in one instance a measure which would have benefited veterans of Montgomery County was opposed by delegates from that same county.

One lawmaker, Leroy Pumphrey, of Prince Georges County, floor leader in the House of Delegates, was charged in the report with being unfriendly "to all veteran legislation."

The committee also criticized William P. Bolton—though not by name—for voicing "real opposition" to a bill involving the eligibility of subversive organization members to hold state offices.

"This bill is aimed at subversive activities by Communists, Fascists and individuals who advocate the overthrow of the state government by force," McGrath read.

"Opposition was encountered in the Judiciary Committee of the House of Delegates. The real opposition to this bill was voiced by the chairman of the Senate Judicial Proceedings Committee."

(Bolton, state senator from Baltimore County, was chairman of the

Russia Assails U. S. Treatment Of Communists

Charges That Human Rights Are Violated

LAKE SUCCESS, Aug. 8 (AP)—Russia assailed the United States today for its treatment of American Communists, declaring that this treatment and recently enacted "anti-labor" legislation were serious violations of human rights.

The attack occurred in the membership committee of the United Nations Security Council after United States Representative Hayden Raynor had opposed the admission of Bulgaria to the United Nations and criticized the Communist-dominated Bulgarian regime.

Truman Purge Program Hit

Soviet Representative Alexei N. Krasilnikov criticized particularly President Truman's program to purge the government of disloyal employes and "the recent trial of a leader of one of the political parties in the U. S. A."

Krasilnikov told a reporter later that he referred to the trial of Eugene Dennis, general secretary of the Communist Party, who was sentenced July 8 to one year in prison and fined $5,000—the maximum penalty for contempt of Congress.

The Soviet representative also criticized Brazil for "outlawing one of the major political parties in Brazil" and inferred that the Brazilian government was being influenced by United States policies.

Challenges U. S. Right To Criticize

He challenged the right of the United States to criticize Romania, Bulgaria and Hungary for violation of human rights "when the United State might be open to even more serious charges in this respect."

Raynor said he did not feel that this was the time or the place to answer Soviet charges, but added that he felt the United States had amplie justification for protesting against the suppression of freedom by the three ex-enemy states.

Western Md. Peach Crop Is Menaced By Insects

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Aug. 8—(AP)—Washington County peach crops are menaced by the Japanese beetle invasion which has already attacked corn throughout Maryland, County Agent Mark Miller reported yesterday.

Miller said all corn fields in the vicinity of peach trees should be sprayed at once to prevent damage to the fruit.

At the same time Dr. Castille Graham and Theodore L. Bissel, University of Maryland entomologists, warned that peaches in Western Maryland are also being attacked by the Oriental fruit moth and urged farmers to undertake immediate control measures.

Bankers Are Worried

Mr. Truman's urgings were in line with those of many bankers who are worried over possible abuse of credit facilities. Carl N. Flora, chairman of the Consumer Credit Committee of the American Bankers Association, said: "The days of a dollar down and a dollar a week should not return. Excessive debt should not be made attractive and merchandised in easy payments."

To the retailers, finance companies and the consumers, Mr. Truman's action today means an end within a little less than three months of federal credit curbs which have required:

A down payment of at least one-third, with the balance to be paid off in 15 months or less on automobiles, stoves, mechanical dish washers, ironers, refrigerators, washing machines, radios and some other items.

A down payment of at least one-fifth, with the balance to be paid within 15 months, on furniture and rugs.

Regimes "Prefabricated" In USSR All Over Europe, Ethridge Declares

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 8 (AP) — Mark Ethridge, former member of the United Nations' Balkan Inquiry Commission, said tonight that "all over Europe there are governments that were prefabricated in Moscow."

In a radio address prepared for delivery over WHAS and the Columbia Broadcasting System, Ethridge said that fighting in Greece "is part of a major plan whose purpose is to carve Macedonia and Thrace out of Greece."

Ethridge, publisher of the Courier-Journal and Louisville Times, said he was speaking as a private citizen and not as representative of the State Department or the United Nations. He was released of his duties on the commission on July 25 after spending several months in the Balkans, to return to his duties here.

He said Yugoslavia, Albania and Bulgaria had been giving assistance to guerrilla groups "seeking to overcome the Greek government by force," and added:

"The help given by Russia's satellites, intended to overthrow the Greek government, is a violation of international law, of the spirit of all modern treaties, including one signed by Russia in 1933, and of course a violation of the Charter of the United Nations."

Speaking of what he termed communist infiltration in Greece, Ethridge said "our own country has inescapable responsibilities" in such a situation.

"The military men who are responsible for our security certainly cannot look with equanimity upon the fact that if Greece falls to her Communist minority under the red-starred guerrillas and politicos enlisted in an international cause," Ethridge said, "the (Dardenelle) Straits will be finessed, the Near East flanked and the Eastern Mediteranean dominated."

Unification Of U. S. Armed Forces Hailed By Miller

BALTIMORE, Aug. 8 (AP) — Rep. Miller (R-Md.) said today that unification of the armed services is a "move" toward correcting "a condition where we find one part of the government working against or in conflict with another."

The "important feature" in the act, Miller said in an address prepared for radio delivery over WBAL, "is that it provides a co-ordinated chain of command which should minimize uncertainty as to responsibility, duplication and competitive buying by various government services."

Reviewing the accomplishments of the last session of Congress, Miller said "a definite pattern of improvement and eventual achievement already has developed."

He pointed out the country now was operating "within our national income," that budget cuts of more than $3,000,000,000 were made and that 148,000 federal jobs "have been eliminated" since January 1.

Number Of VA Offices In Maryland To Close

BALTIMORE, Aug. 8, (AP)—Discontinuance of an undetermined number of Veterans Administration offices in Maryland and additional discharges of employes was announced today by William L. Limburg, Maryland regional manager.

Limburg said Deputy Administrator James B. Cress had ordered a reduction of 364 employes in the Richmond branch area, which comprises Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, and the District of Columbia.

The announcement came shortly after the VA in Washington had disclosed plans for a nationwide personnel cut of 8,000, in line with reduted congressional appropriations.

Officials at Richmond said contact offices to be closed in Maryland would be selected on the basis of volume of work and proximity of veterans served.

Lane Administration Receives Windfall

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 8 (AP) — Comptroller James J. Lacy disclosed today the Lane administration had received a $1,878,843.62 windfall in surplus revenues at the close of the 1947 fiscal year.

Lacy said, in a preliminary fiscal report, the total surplus for the biennium was $13,785,171.19 against an estimated surplus of $11,906,327.52 made when Gov. Lane prepared his budget for 1948-49.

The comptroller said the windfall was due to two main factors — a $1,182,432.81 increase in revenues and $596,430.96 in reversions. A smaller influence was a bookkeeping change in the comptroller's accounts.

No Depression Signs

DULUTH, Minn., Aug. 8 (AP) — No signs are evident on the nation's economic horizon now indicating a grave recession or depression in the foreseeable future, Carroll E. French, New York, director of the Industrial Relations Department of the National Association of Manufacturers, asserted today.

Baltimore Councilman Would Legalize Lottery

BALTIMORE, Aug. 8. (AP)—Councilman William Bonnett, of Baltimore, announced today he was taking steps toward legalizing a state lottery he estimates would return at least $9,000,000 to the city and counties.

Bonnett, declaring the public is beginning to revolt against heavy taxes, said he first would introduce in the City Council a resolution indorsing the sweepstake plan.

Next, Bonnett said, he would ask the Bureau of Legislative Reference to prepare a bill to submit to the special session of the General Assembly which Gov. Lane has promised to call next fall.

The bill would eliminate the existing constitutional ban on lotteries. This would require approval of the voters.

Bonnett said his plan calls for operating the lottery in connection with important horse races in Maryland.

Slain Baby's Mother Held

BALTIMORE, Aug. 8 (AP) — Magistrate Reuben Caplan today ordered Thelma Louise Hall, 17, of Howard County, held without bond for a further hearing on charges of killing her infant son by strangulation with a bathrobe cord. Chief of Detectives Henry J. Kriss said the baby's body was found here about a month ago in a bus terminal baggage locker.

Firm Sues Union On Boycott Charge

CINCINNATI, Aug. 8. (AP) — The International Truck Drivers, Chauffeurs and Helpers Union, AFL, Local 100 and three union officials were sued for $100,000 today on charges of violating the boycott section of the new Taft-Hartley labor law.

Moskowitz Brothers, scrap dealers, filed the suit in United States District Court, alleging they suffered $100,000 damages through a strike called July 28 while a petition for a bargaining agent for its workers still was pending with the National Labor Relations Board.

They accused the union and its agents of having "induced and encouraged certain firms, corporations and persons to cease using, selling, handling, transporting or otherwise dealing in the products of the plaintiff."

Otto H. Frobe, secretary-treasurer of Local 100; Walter Schulz, business agent for the local, and John W. Meade, business agent for the international organization, were the individuals named in the action.

J. W. Brown, attorney for the union, told reporters the union admitted asking for a boycott of Moskowitz, but declared:

"We are engaged in a primary boycott against the firm, not a secondary boycott.

"A primary boycott is not a violation of the Taft-Hartley law. If it were, that section of the law would be unconstitutional."

LADY ASTOR DOES NOT "CARE HOW MANY JEWS KILLED IN PALESTINE"

NEW YORK, Aug. 8 (AP) — American-born Lady Astor sailed today for England aboard the Queen Mary declaring "I do not care how many Jews are killed in Palestine and my only interest is in the number of innocent British who are slaughtered."

"The dancers have to pay the fiddlers."

She made the statement angrily in reply to questions about the Palestine situation. The former member of the British Parliament added without elaboration:

"When the presidency of the United States of America depends on the Jewish vote in New York, I think that the condition stinks."

Hughes balked not once, but twice —and in tones and words that goaded Ferguson into furiously banging an ash tray and dashing off a couple of supoenas.

A new subpoena was issued for Meyer, who has testified to putting out some $164,000 of Hughes' cash in the last five years for entertainment and other public relations operations.

Hughes himself drew a subpoena —to bring in some 300 pounds of his personal papers, including such things as his checking account. But an agreement finally was worked out that the committee will get only the papers it specifically selects. That was the way Hughes wanted it.

As far as the committee debate is concerned, the "you're another" feud between Hughes and Sen. Brewster (R-Me.), chairman of the full War Investigating Committee, was officially ended.

But Brewster told a news conference he had asked Attorney General Clark and the Justice Department "to make a complete and thorough investigation" of all of Hughes' charges against him.

The Senator made public a letter from Clark in which the Attorney General agreed to give "attention" to Hughes assertions after the committee hearings are over.

Hughes had charged, and Brewster had denied, that the Senator agreed to call off the committee inquiry if Hughes would permit Trans-World Airline and Pan American Airways to merge.

Brewster held a news conference on the side to say he was "not proud of having dragged in a comment that an airline hostess was afraid to be alone with Hughes on a plane. But he didn't come right out and withdraw the statement, which Hughes had called untrue.

Russia Assails U. S. Treatment Of Communists

Charges That Human Rights Are Violated

LAKE SUCCESS, Aug. 8 (AP)—Russia assailed the United States today for its treatment of American Communists, declaring that this treatment and recently enacted "anti-labor" legislation were serious violations of human rights.

The attack occurred in the membership committee of the United Nations Security Council after United States Representative Hayden Raynor had opposed the admission of Bulgaria to the United Nations and criticized the Communist-dominated Bulgarian regime.

Truman Purge Program Hit

Soviet Representative Alexei N. Krasilnikov criticized particularly President Truman's program to purge the government of disloyal employes and "the recent trial of a leader of one of the political parties in the U. S. A."

Krasilnikov told a reporter later that he referred to the trial of Eugene Dennis, general secretary of the Communist Party, who was sentenced July 8 to one year in prison and fined $5,000—the maximum penalty for contempt of Congress.

The Soviet representative also criticized Brazil for "outlawing one of the major political parties in Brazil" and inferred that the Brazilian government was being influenced by United States policies.

Challenges U. S. Right To Criticize

He challenged the right of the United States to criticize Romania, Bulgaria and Hungary for violation of human rights "when the United State might be open to even more serious charges in this respect."

Raynor said he did not feel that this was the time or the place to answer Soviet charges, but added that he felt the United States had amplie justification for protesting against the suppression of freedom by the three ex-enemy states.

Western Md. Peach Crop Is Menaced By Insects

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Aug. 8—(AP)—Washington County peach crops are menaced by the Japanese beetle invasion which has already attacked corn throughout Maryland, County Agent Mark Miller reported yesterday.

Miller said all corn fields in the vicinity of peach trees should be sprayed at once to prevent damage to the fruit.

At the same time Dr. Castille Graham and Theodore L. Bissel, University of Maryland entomologists, warned that peaches in Western Maryland are also being attacked by the Oriental fruit moth and urged farmers to undertake immediate control measures.

4. Does Russia accept any other form of control other than inspection by the international agency?

An informed source said the questions were drawn up by an atomic policy committee working in London under direction of the British Foreign Office. Their reception gave a new turn to the atomic negotiations, which have bogged down over sharp Russian and United States disagreements.

McGrath then reported that the bill was passed and signed by the Governor and will be voted on in the 1948 general election as a proposed constitutional amendment.

which would inevitably be followed by severe contraction, thereby contributing to unemployment and to reduced production."

Bankers Are Worried

Mr. Truman's urgings were in line with those of many bankers who are worried over possible abuse of credit facilities. Carl N. Flora, chairman of the Consumer Credit Committee of the American Bankers Association, said: "The days of a dollar down and a dollar a week should not return. Excessive debt should not be made attractive and merchandised in easy payments."

To the retailers, finance companies and the consumers, Mr. Truman's action today means an end within a little less than three months of federal credit curbs which have required:

A down payment of at least one-third, with the balance to be paid off in 15 months or less on automobiles, stoves, mechanical dish washers, ironers, refrigerators, washing machines, radios and some other items.

A down payment of at least one-fifth, with the balance to be paid within 15 months, on furniture and rugs.

Regimes "Prefabricated" In USSR All Over Europe, Ethridge Declares

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 8 (AP) — Mark Ethridge, former member of the United Nations' Balkan Inquiry Commission, said tonight that "all over Europe there are governments that were prefabricated in Moscow."

In a radio address prepared for delivery over WHAS and the Columbia Broadcasting System, Ethridge said that fighting in Greece "is part of a major plan whose purpose is to carve Macedonia and Thrace out of Greece."

Ethridge, publisher of the Courier-Journal and Louisville Times, said he was speaking as a private citizen and not as representative of the State Department or the United Nations. He was released of his duties on the commission on July 25 after spending several months in the Balkans, to return to his duties here.

He said Yugoslavia, Albania and Bulgaria had been giving assistance to guerrilla groups "seeking to overcome the Greek government by force," and added:

"The help given by Russia's satellites, intended to overthrow the Greek government, is a violation of international law, of the spirit of all modern treaties, including one signed by Russia in 1933, and of course a violation of the Charter of the United Nations."

Speaking of what he termed communist infiltration in Greece, Ethridge said "our own country has inescapable responsibilities" in such a situation.

"The military men who are responsible for our security certainly cannot look with equanimity upon the fact that if Greece falls to her Communist minority under the red-starred guerrillas and politicos enlisted in an international cause," Ethridge said, "the (Dardenelle) Straits will be finessed, the Near East flanked and the Eastern Mediteranean dominated."

Unification Of U. S. Armed Forces Hailed By Miller

BALTIMORE, Aug. 8 (AP) — Rep. Miller (R-Md.) said today that unification of the armed services is a "move" toward correcting "a condition where we find one part of the government working against or in conflict with another."

The "important feature" in the act, Miller said in an address prepared for radio delivery over WBAL, "is that it provides a co-ordinated chain of command which should minimize uncertainty as to responsibility, duplication and competitive buying by various government services."

Reviewing the accomplishments of the last session of Congress, Miller said "a definite pattern of improvement and eventual achievement already has developed."

He pointed out the country now was operating "within our national income," that budget cuts of more than $3,000,000,000 were made and that 148,000 federal jobs "have been eliminated" since January 1.

Number Of VA Offices In Maryland To Close

BALTIMORE, Aug. 8, (AP)—Discontinuance of an undetermined number of Veterans Administration offices in Maryland and additional discharges of employes was announced today by William L. Limburg, Maryland regional manager.

Limburg said Deputy Administrator James B. Cress had ordered a reduction of 364 employes in the Richmond branch area, which comprises Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, and the District of Columbia.

The announcement came shortly after the VA in Washington had disclosed plans for a nationwide personnel cut of 8,000, in line with reduted congressional appropriations.

Officials at Richmond said contact offices to be closed in Maryland would be selected on the basis of volume of work and proximity of veterans served.

Small-Fry Circus Party

IT'S A GALA DAY . . . when the circus hits the table.

By CHARLOTTE ADAMS
Associated Press Food Editor

It's summer—and that means that the circus may be just around the corner. . . . So it's fun to give a circus party for the youngsters. Though you really needn't confine such a party to the summer. Children like a circus party any time.

The decorations are easy and fun to make. If by any lucky chance you have, or can borrow, some little china clowns, use them to decorate the edge of the plate on which the piece de resistance of the meal rests—a beautiful big cake.

You can make a beautiful clown to preside over the occasion—his body, arms and cap being made of the cone type of paper cup, and his head of a Christmas tree ball, with a fine clown face painted on it. He's fun to make and he's mighty cute when finished!

But don't forget a "party" to a child is what there is to eat. Many times, with fine games going on over which I'd spend considerable thought, I've had a small fry sidle up to me and say, "When is the party?" and I knew that really that meant the ice cream and cake.

CIRCUS PARTY MENU

Creamed Chicken in Patty Shells
Raw vegetables to eat "as is"
Bread-and-butter Sandwiches
Chocolate Ice Cream
Frosted Angel Food Cake

Sift flour once, measure, add one-half cup sugar, and sift together four times. Beat egg whites and salt with rotary egg beater or flat wire whisk. When foamy, add cream of tartar and continue beating until eggs are stiff enough to hold up in peaks, but not dry. Add remaining three-quarters cup sugar, 2 tablespoons at a time, beating with rotary egg beater or whisk after each addition until sugar is just blended. Fold in flavoring. Then sift about one-quarter cup flour over mixture and fold in lightly. Repeat until all is used. Turn into ungreased 9-inch angel food pan. Cut gently through batter with knife to remove air bubbles. Bake in moderate oven (375°) about 30 mins. Remove from oven and invert pan 1 hour, or until cold. Before spreading with light-colored icing, gently rub crust from to and sides of cake.

¾ cup sifted cake flour
1¼ cups sifted granulated sugar
1 cup egg whites (8 to 10 egg whites)
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon almond extract

Strawberry Icing

2 cups sifted confectionrs' sugar
Dash of salt
2 teaspoons lemon juice
¼ cup crushed or sieved quick-frozen or fresh strawberries

Add 2 cups sugar, salt and lemon juice to crushed fruit, mixing well. Makes seven-eighths cup icing, or enough to cover top and sides of angel cake thinly.

All summer long, you know, through the hottest weather, you should plan to have at least one hot dish in every meal. You could well start the custom for summer of only one hot dish in every meal! If you'll plan your food on this one-hot-dish principle you'll have time to do lots more.

For instance, here is a dish which, if accompanied by a good salad (instead of dessert or in addition to it,) makes a fine meal.

Miss Alejandrina Chavez de Goicochea has been elected president of a new organization in Peru to coordinate and encourage the development of fishing along the Peruvian coast.

Beef and Mushroom Mexican

1½ pounds round steak
1½ teaspoons kitchen bouquet
1½ teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon powdered marjoram
¼ cup butter or margarine
1 cup tomato puree
½ teaspoon garlic salt
1 6-ounce can broiled mushrooms
2 tablespoons flour
1 green pepper

Cut meat into strips, two and a half ins. long by a quarter inch wide. Place in a bowl. Blend together kitchen bouquet, salt, pepper and marjoram. Sprinkle in with meat, tossing with a fork until meat is evenly coated. In a 9-inch frying pan saute meat in fat over moderate heat for 5 minutes stirring constantly. Add tomato puree and garlic salt. Cook, covered, over moderate heat for 10 minutes. Drain mushrooms and reserve liquid. Blend together mushroom liquid and flour. Gradually add to sauce. Cook, stirring constantly, until sauce thickens. Cut green pepper into eighths and add with mushrooms to sauce. Cook, covered, over moderate heat for 10 minutes, or until green peppers are tender crisp. Serve immediately over hot cooked rice.

And here's a meatless dish which is pretty wonderful!

Savory Rice

½ cup chopped onion
½ cup chopped green sweet pepper
2 tablespoons oil or drippings
1 cup raw rice, washed and drained
1½ teaspoons salt
Black pepper
1 cup chopped ripe olives
2 cups hot meat stock (or 2 bouillon cubes, dissolved in 2 cups hot water)
¼ cup chopped parsley
1 cup grated cheese

Saute onion and green pepper in hot oil. Add rice, salt and pepper, chopped olives and meat stock. Cover tightly and let cook over very low heat for 30 mins. Fluff up rice with fork. Stir in parsley. Top with cheese. Cover, and cook until cheese melts, which takes about 5 to 10 mins. If you like, you may add a few whole, ripe olives when you put on the cheese, just for further decoration and fun. Serve piping hot.

Salad Tip

To homemakers who are planning to serve salads frequently during the warm weather months, we offer the following suggestions. Be sure that all the vegetables are clean, cold, crisp and dry before you use them in a salad. Serve an appetizing and colorful combination of ingredients but be sure that there are not too many conflicting flavors.

Menu Variation

If you are looking for an interesting variation in your menu, try okra. While the principal use of okra is to give a pleasant flavor to soups, there are many other ways of enjoying this tasty pod. Boiled whole or bakedfi it makes an appetizing vegetable accompaniment to the main course at dinner. It also can be used in a salad.

Our Produce Counter offers you a choice of the finest, freshest fruits and vegetables from right-next-door farms and orchards. They arrive here daily, picked at the peak of their sun-ripened flavor-perfection and only in those quantities that we can sell immediately. And that's your best assurance of the sort of fruits and vegetables that are right for your table—right because they add the flavor and the tasty goodness that makes every meal a "company treat."

Small-Fry Circus Party

IT'S A GALA DAY . . . when the circus hits the table.

By CHARLOTTE ADAMS
Associated Press Food Editor

It's summer—and that means that the circus may be just around the corner. . . . So it's fun to give a circus party for the youngsters. Though you really needn't confine such a party to the summer. Children like a circus party any time.

The decorations are easy and fun to make. If by any lucky chance you have, or can borrow, some little china clowns, use them to decorate the edge of the plate on which the piece de resistance of the meal rests—a beautiful big cake.

You can make a beautiful clown to preside over the occasion—his fine clown face painted on it. He's fun to make and he's mighty cute when finished!

But don't forget a "party" to a child is what there is to eat. Many times, with fine games going on over which I'd spend considerable thought, I've had a small fry sidle up to me and say, "When is the party?" and I knew that really that meant the ice cream and cake.

CIRCUS PARTY MENU

Creamed Chicken in Patty Shells
Raw vegetables to eat "as is"
Bread-and-butter Sandwiches
Chocolate Ice Cream
Frosted Angel Food Cake

¾ cup sifted cake flour
1¼ cups sifted granulated sugar
1 cup egg whites (8 to 10 egg whites)
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon almond extract

Sift flour once, measure, add one-half cup sugar, and sift together four times. Beat egg whites and salt with rotary egg beater or flat wire whisk. When foamy, add cream of tartar and continue beating until eggs are stiff enough to hold up in peaks, but not dry. Add remaining three-quarters cup sugar, 2 tablespoons at a time, beating with rotary egg beater or whisk after each addition until sugar is just blended. Fold in flavoring. Then sift about one-quarter cup flour over mixture and fold in lightly. Repeat until all is used. Turn into ungreased 9-inch angel food pan. Cut gently through batter with knife to remove air bubbles. Bake in moderate oven (375°) about 30 mins. Remove from oven and invert pan 1 hour, or until cold. Before spreading with light-colored icing, gently rub crust from to and sides of cake.

Strawberry Icing

2 cups sifted confectionrs' sugar
Dash of salt
2 teaspoons lemon juice
¼ cup crushed or sieved quick-frozen or fresh strawberries

Add 2 cups sugar, salt and lemon juice to crushed fruit, mixing well. Makes seven-eighths cup icing, or enough to cover top and sides of angel cake thinly.

Great Britain Is A Sick Nation; But Not Fatally So

Great Britain's experiment in socialism has not been the rosy path to Utopia a lot of people thought it would be. And before it is over, it is likely to involve more than Britain in its toils.

Whether the policies of the Attlee government are partly responsible or not, the fact remains that Britain is now facing a major economic crisis. Her production has not lived up to expectation. The mining of coal, the keystone of British economy, is off. She has lost dollar credits because of a tremendous excess of imports over exports. The result is that the government has been forced to take stern measures.

After a cabinet meeting a few days ago, Prime Minister Attlee announced that the miners would be asked to work overtime to increase coal production, imports would be cut down, the standard of living reduced, and Britain would decrease the size of her forces overseas in order to bring skilled technicians back to help industry expand its lagging production.

The Attlee program was hailed by some parts of the Conservative press as being the most realistic step yet taken. But in taking it, the government has tacitly acknowledged that its Socialist schemes have, so far, failed to do what they were supposed to do.

If Americans think this country can sit idly by and watch what happens in Britain, they are mistaken. By reducing her occupation forces, Britain is throwing a greater burden on the United States. We will even be asked to pay more of the cost of feeding and administering the merged economic zones in Germany. And, when the Marshall Plan is put into effect, the British request for aid from this country is not likely to be mere chicken feed.

It would be silly to claim that what is happening to Britain proves that the nation is dying and there is no use trying to revive her. Britain is sick but not fatally so, and outside of all ties of friendship, it is to the economic interest of the United States to see that she is aided. She has also taught us a lesson. Socialism may sound very well in theory, but, as the British are learning to their sorrow, it doesn't work out very well in actual practice.

United Nations Shows It Still Has Spark of Life

The Security Council's order to The Netherlands and Indonesian governments to "cease hostilities forthwith" and to "settle their disputes by arbitration or by other peaceful means" is by far the most forceful and decisive action the United Nations has yet taken. It serves to revive hope in the possibility of effective international action in behalf of peace at a moment when that hope had seemed about to be snuffed out.

There is no real conflict between the American offer to mediate the clash between the Dutch and the Indonesians and the action taken by the Security Council. The State Department was not bypassing the U. N. It was demonstrating that individual nations can take action on behalf of peace while waiting for the U. N. to act—which is a good precedent to set.

With the Council's action, an even more important precedent has been established. The U. N. is not allowed to intervene in the domestic affairs of any state. Strictly interpreted, this would have barred Security Council action in this case since the Indonesians are still subjects of the Netherlands even though they have been promised independence.

However, the Council has taken the position that a threat to world peace is of direct concern to the United Nations wherever it occurs. Whatever the technicalities of sovereignty, what has been going on in Indonesia has been open war and The Netherlands themselves tacitly recognized this by notifying the U. N. of the opening of hostilities.

It is significant that three of the world's great colonial powers—Great Britain, France, and Belgium—refrained from voting on the cease fire order. However, if they have their doubts about the direction which U. N. policy is taking, they have at least had enough regard for the U. N. not to block action with a veto, as Russia would certainly have done if her interests had been involved.

The Shrine Of One Of Our Nation's Presidents

Somebody drove 75 miles the other day to visit the Vermont birthplace of Calvin Coolidge, and then wrote a letter about it to a New York newspaper. On arrival in Plymouth, he was met by an "elderly gentleman who said he grew up with the former President" and who sold the pilgrim for 25 cents a short booklet on the life of Coolidge, its cover bearing the author's picture rather than that of his subject. The room in the farmhouse, where the elder Coolidge administered the oath of office to his son, was totally bare, save for a table where an elderly lady sold postcards, potholders, etc., none having any connection with the late President—all at ten times the price one would pay at a 5-and-10. Outside was a country store, a small church and an empty farmhouse with broken windows.

We wonder how many other so-called national shrines are in a similar state of dilapidation. The trouble is that the list of presidents lengthen with the years, most of them have had half a dozen habitations, and their countrymen have short memories, with two little reverence for storied yesterdays and the men that made them such. So the rituals of remembrance, if any, may become the special charge of local scribes and souvenir dealers. However, every farmhouse where George Washington "slept" for one night gets plenty of tourist attention—more indeed than the residences of most of his White House successors. That's a phenomenon we leave for readers to digest.

Where's The Thimble?

The busy pattern counters in stores and a record sale of patterns last year point to the little-noticed revival of sewing in the home. Time was when sewing and needlework were part of every girl's home training. The custom almost vanished as the mass production of dresses made home sewing almost unprofitable.

In the last few years, however, many mothers and daughters have resumed sewing to supplement their wardrobes. Only last week, a Greensburg, Ind., woman won national honors in a needlework contest.

Doesn't all this signify that most American women still are thrifty, ingenious homemakers?

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

THE ITCH MITE

SCABIES (the itch) is an unpopular disorder and carries the stigma of uncleanliness. This is not exactly fair, as many who practice good hygiene have become victims. The responsible parasite is not particular and will intrude wherever he has the opportunity.

Initially, the mites attack the skin over the webs between the fingers. They burrow under the top layers, leaving a slightly elevated, straight or tortuous dotted line on the epidermis. At the entrance site, a small pustule or water blister develops and itching is marked. Grom the fingers, the condition spreads to the wrists, forearms, abdomen, etc. Occasionally the invasion begins on the trunk, ecpecially when the disease is contracted through dirty linen.

The causative parasite was one of the first organisms to be placed under a misroscope. In 1589 Mouffet studied the little fellows with a crude single magnifying lens and concluded that they represented the smallest form—"a living atom," as he wrote later. Had better lenses been available he would have been amazed to discover that the tiny creatures were giants compared to bacteria and viruses.

Scabies must have been usually common in those days and it is not surprising that the pests were the first to poke their noses under the microscope. The 17th century scientists were horrified at what they saw. One wrote: "These vermicules, as far as I could make them out clearly under the microscope, presented to my eye a monstrous form with many long tails sticking out behind."

Mayerne was more descriptive, stating, "If you take lenticular optic glasses of crystal you will admire to see their backs stiff with bristles, their legs rough with hair, and between two foreyards there stands a hollow trunk to torture men. You shall see the eyes sticking forth, and their horns, their bodies crannied all over, their whole substance diaphanous, and through that the motion of their hearts and blood as if it floated through Euripus."

Eradication of the itch requires metriculous care. Sulphur ointment, balsam of Peru and alcohol, and Danish ointment are old standbys. Betanaphthol and pyrethrum in various mixtures are used also. The preparation is applied to the entire body (except the face) after taking a bath and repeated at frequent internvals,depending upon the type of medication used. The underclothes must be changed daily and the clothes and bedding disinfected. If the rules are followed carefully, the infection usually disappears.

The medicine must be strong to kill the toughies; hence the skin may be irritated by the treatment. Sulphur is ofen an offender in this respect, especially if sensitivity to the drug exists. Should dermatitis develop from one product, another can be substituted after a rest perior. After the invaders are eliminated, what is known as "postscabetic pruritis" may remain. This itching is sometimes difficult to cure and the victim may believe that the parasites are still present.

CAN'T PENETRATE

R. T. writes: Will using mineral oil on the scalp for dandruff affect the brains?

REPLY

No, because nature has used forethought in protecting the gray matter. Its bony cage would be difficult to penetrate short of using a pistol or sledgehammer. Furthermore mineral oil is not absorbed, even in the intestinal tract.

PERSONALITY AND INTELLIGENCE

K. J. writes: I have heard that people with high I. Q.'s have psychopathic personalities. Would this be true?

REPLY

I doubt it. Some persons have psychopathic personalities whether they possess a high or low intelligence quotient. The two should not be confused.

ARTHRITIS SYMPTOMS

E. E. M. writes: What form of rheumatism causes pain seemingly in the bony parts of the legs? Also the hands feel stiff and swollen but do not look that way. I am 53 years old.

REPLY

Examination would be necessary to answer this question but at your age I would consider osteoarthritis.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

Donations to the Damon Runyon Memorial fund swelled tremendously last week when 150 Hollywood notables contributed their time and golfing talent to the Frank Borzage Motion Picture Golf Tournament. It was a typical Hollywood affair. All the stars left their footprints in the sandtrap.

Natually all the stars shot under par. It wasn't that they were good golfers—their agents ran around taking 10 per cent off the score.

And the whole affair was conducted in a typical Hollywood manner. When the players found themselves in a tough spot, they called in their doubles.

Every time someone got ready to shoot, the director ran over and shouted "roll 'em."

It was really confusing. One of the stars yelled "fore" and the produced shouted back, "make it three and its a deal."

Maryland County Puts Roads Ahead Of Schools; Secretary Of Army Sure Bet To Run For Governor Of North Carolina; Pearson-Truman Views Similar

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8—The other day I wrote something about poorly paid school teachers of Pennsylvania, a state in which I used to live. Today I want to write something about the schools of Maryland, a state in which I live now.

Some people may think that I am hipped on the question of schools But to me they are one of the greatest bulwarks of the nation. They are as much responsibile for the intelligence and idealism of the American people as any other institution. We cannot stand by and see them neglected.

However, I live in a county which appears to believe in educational neglect. That county happens to be one of the wealthiest in the world. Thousands of people commute daily from the District of Columbia into Maryland, people who help to run the government of the United States, who should believe in good education.

Yet the school in my part of the county would put to shame some of the schools in war-famished Europe. Classrooms are overcrowded. Some of the kids have to study in the halls. Teachers are so overworked and harassed that discipline is almost impossible.

The other day a group of citizens met in the western part of Montgomery County—as citizens do everywhere—to complain about various things which the county government hadn't done. Among other things they complained, quite properly, about the Potomac school.

Roads vs. Schools

The answer, given by one of the county officials, was that building costs were too high. Therefore, an addition to the school would have to wait until building costs went down. Almost in the same breath, however, county officials announced to the assembled citizenry that the road which passes in front of the school would finally be made over new. This brought loud cheers from everyone.

However, the cost of the new road is going to be $130,000; and for one-half that amount a new addition to the schoolhouse could be built. And although costs are high for building a school, they are equally high for laying a road.

Now some readers of this column in Seattle or San Diego may wonder why I am boring them with a local problem in the distant state of Maryland. However, the problem isn't local. From what I gather it exists everywhere. Schools throughout the nation are overcrowded, undermanned, the teachers underpaid. Thousands of communities are going to have to decide whether to build new roads or new schools

And while roads are important, what seems to me more important is the fact that children's minds cannot wait. Roads can. We can buy new tires or retread them. But you can't retread children's minds. Their characters and mentality are moulded young. For them the clock can never be turned back. The mental cobwebs they gather from six to fourteen can never be brushed out.

Furthermore, this fall will see schools more crowded than ever. Seventeen million war babies were born from 1941 through 1946, an increase in our birth rate of 50 per cent, and the biggest crop of children this country has ever seen. They will start flooding the schools this fall.

In the face of this, the commissioners of my county have cut the proposed educational budget by $400,000, and plan building a new road instead of new schools.

A lot of my neighbors are sore at me for frowning on the new road. But until the schools are improved, I'm going to put in my two cents' worth against it.

Truman and Pearson on National Science

On August 6, President Truman vetoed an Act of Concress creating a National Science Foundation. His memorandum of disapproval, charging that the bill would give control of vital patents to private corporations, recalls a column written by me May 31 which contained an almost identical warning. In fact, anyone reading the Pearson column in May might have predicted what President Truman has done in August.

"In the hurly-burly of Congress," I warned, "a lot of things slip by that some newspapers don't catch and the public doesn't know about. But sometimes they affect the life of the nation for years to come.

"One such vote occurred in the Senate recently. It affected the future control of patents from Government-paid scientific development.

"Control of vital patents is one reason why the American people walked part of the time during the war instead of having ample tires. Standard Oil of New Jersey had conspired with the Germans before the war to withhold precious patents on synthetic rubber.

"A similar control of patents was oner eason why we couldn't ship enough planes to the Philippines to help General MacArthur after Pearl Harbor. The Aluminum Corporation of America had a deal with the Germans to bottle up the use of magnesium in this country — and magnesium is vital to airplane manufacture.

"Immediately after World War I there was considerable discussion of German patents and the importance of not letting Germany get a monopoly on war processes. Then, gradually, the public forgot. . .So today it is important that the public doesn't forget a second time, and that history doesn't repeat. . . .

"During the war, the U. S. Government spent the huge sum of two billion dollars on scientific research (not including atomic research) and about one-half of this will go to the permanent profit of big corporations. Several companies received $5,000,000 or more from the Government for research. . . .

"If the first 12,000 research contracts written by the War Department, only 37 provided that the public generally should benefit from the research results. The others permitted the companies to keep the benefit of their research for their exclusive use after the war, even though they were using the taxpayers' money to pay for the research. . . .

"Last year, this question of whether the Government owned the result of research paid for by Government funds, arose when the Senate passed the Kilgore Bill creating a National Science Foundation.

"But this year, when the National Science Bill came up again, it was revamped by Republican Senator Alexander Smith of New Jersey."

And I went on to explain how the revamped bill played into the hands of private interests.

This is the bill which President Truman has just vetoed.

Decision Toward Britain Made Difficult For United States

By MARK SULLIVAN

The facts about Britain's economic crisis and the concern it is to us, are plain enough. But as a consequence of the facts, our State Department and our people are called upon to make decisions about courses. This area is as far as possible from plain, it is on the contrary made extremely difficult by baffling considerations.

Our government would like to help Britain, is in fact earnestly desirous of helping for the sake of Britain and for the sake of world recovery. The help is possible for the Administration to give. It can ease some of the conditions of the 3¾-billion-dollar loan our government made to Britain a little over a year ago, so as to make the loan less onerous on Britain.

The Administration can give another help and must do so willy-nilly, in our own interest. We can take over some or all of that part of the expense of occupying Germany which Britain is now bearing, just as we have taken over the burden Britain was bearing in Greece. This would relieve Britain of an expense of some half billion dollars a year. It would further relieve her in the sense that the British soldiers now in Germany can be brought home and added to Britain's labor force.

Can Be Done By Administration

These things can be done by the Administration. But Britain will still have need for more money, and this can only be supplied by act of Congress. Congress is not due to meet again until January, unless called into special session earlier to meet not merely the British emergency but the larger emergency of which that is a part.

Whether Congress, after lending 3¾ billion dollars to Britain a little over a year ago, would be willing to make another loan, is a thing which only Congress can decide. Their decision when made will reflect the feeling of the public, especially taxpayers.

America has abundance of money, we are in the common phrase "lousy" with it. Our people, as private investors, would undoubtedly be willing to loan money for use in the recovery of British industry, if there were a practicable way for them to do this. They would be willing to loan the money, even if the risk of getting it back were great. Our people, as individuals, do not hesitate to invest abroad, even under circumstances of great risk.

But this is not what is asked of our people. They are asked to contribute their money, not as investors but as taxpayers. They are asked to turn it over to the American government, which in turn loans it to the British government. The loan is to the British government, not directly to British industries.

Ths distinction, between Americans as taxpayers and Americans as investors, is a part of the world problem of our time, and this problem can be made clear by a brief bit of history.

For generations, British investors loaned money to American railroads, utilities, mines and industries. It was with loans from British investors, mainly, that American industry was developed. The relation was a happy one, an illustration of private capitalism working fruitfully on an international basis. The British had money to spare, they were a leading nation. We had need of money, we were a borrowing nation. The cooptration was part of a golden age for both countries.

Situation Is Reversed

Today the situation is reversed. Americans have money, they can be a lending nation. Britain, with her economic structure greatly injured by war, needs to borow money. Loans by American investors to British industries could be as happy a cooperation as the reverse once was.

But the present British government, carrying out an attempt at Socialism, has made it impossible for Americans to make direct loans to British industries, in the way that the British formerly made loans to American industries. The Labor government is opposed to the existence of privately owned industries. Many important British industries have been taken over by the Labor government, and the prospect is it will take over more. This leaves few private owners of industries with whom American investors and bankers can deal, or privately owned industries upon the security of which loans can be made. Socialization of industry, in large part actual and as to the rest feared, puts an end to loans by American investors to British industries.

To recite this present condition in Britain, and the history which preceded it, while it throws light on the situation, is by no means to answer a problem, either the one arising out of the present crisis in Britain, or the larger problem which besets the world. The United States remains a capitalist nation, and by the evidence of every policy of Congress is determined to remain one. Much of Europe has departed from capitalism and free enterprise, has gone over to totalitarian government of one variety or another, from the Socialism of the British Labor Party to Russian Communism and shades between.

Instinctively we feel that in order to survive as a free enterprise nation ourselves, we must help free enterprise in Europe. Out of that condition arise most of the international problems we are called upon to meet.

Investigations Of Conditions Abroad Will Be Worth The Cost

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8—Probably the best money appropriated by the legislative branch of the government for its own activities is that recently allocated to investigations abroad.

Indications are that foreign policy will be much discussed when Congress reconvenes. The fact that a substantial number of members of the House and Senate will be visiting foreign countries this Autumn will be the biggest kind of help toward a better understanding of the issues involved.

For years there has been criticism that the American Congress legislated on foreign questions from an insular viewpoint. For instance, the late Senator Borah of Idaho, outstanding isolationist, was invited to go abroad but declined amid widespread comment that he did not want to learn by contact.

The principal committees investigating conditions in foreign countries are those appointed by the House of Representatives. It is in the House that the major opposition to such things as the Marshall plan or change in the statutes covering the British loan agreement will arise.

Members of the House have already performed considerable service by their studies abroad. It has been helpful to find committees and subcommittees studying the financial and economic trends of European countries.

Russia's Attitude Regretted

It is most unfortunate that the Russian government has turned down the requests of three House members to visit Russia. A similar request by three senators is pending. In view of the coordinate importance of the legislative branch of the government in the ratification of treaties and international agreements, it would be a serious mistake if the Russian government denied these envoys an opportunity to study conditions first hand.

The need for a closer relationship with Russia is every day becoming more and more imperative. If the Russian government is unwilling even to allow informal discussion and visits to improve relations, the whole world will wonder. Certainly the burden will rest on the Russian government.

Nearly every American visitor of importance to Russia has brought back information or impressions of constructive value. It would seem that an opportunity for the Russian officials to talk frankly and informally with American Senators this Autumn would be a useful step toward better relations with the United States Congress.

There will, of course, be many members of Congress visiting Great Britain and France and some will travel to the Far East. The British economic situation is acute already. Many observers here feel that the loan agreements cannot be materially altered without action by Congress. The British have not hesitated to welcome American members of Congress and to let them see for themselves the destruction which has swept England and the heroic efforts that are being made to rebuild a country which for so many months in 1940 and 1941 stood out against the Nazis alone amid a bombardment of civilians of such intensity as had been unknown before.

Great Britain has been in the throes of economic readjustment with wartime controls retained. Drastic powers limiting the freedom of individuals, with rationing of short supplies, have been applied in a desperate effort to attain a balanced economy.

The American-British loan was approved at a time when the price level in the United States was much lower than it is today. As our prices have risen, the cost to the British of importing necessary commodities has risen perceptibly. Thus, the loan does not go as far toward alleviating Britain's exchange problem as was first contemplated.

Neither Are At Fault

Neither the U. S. nor Britain is at fault as a consequence. If any groups are to blame, it is the American blocs of economic power which have conducted a battle on prices and wages in an inflationary duel that has caused suffering everywhere.

Some substantial alterations in the British loan agreement have long been foreseen as necessary as an alternative to an enlargement of the loan itself, something that an economy-minded Congress probably wouldn't like as much as an amendment of the terms. These amendments would permit a postponement of the time when dollars and pounds become convertible throughout the sterling bloc of nations and also would permit adjustments in trade between Britain and her dominions.

Such changes would affect certain segments of American trade adversely, but, as between a collapse in Britain and alterations in the original plan, the latter is much to be preferred.

THESE DAYS By George E. Sokolsky

TANGLEWOOD

IT was not a fight between Joe Louis and some contender; it was not the Army-Notre Dame game; it was not the World Series. It was not a mob that had gathered to see some obscene novelty. It was Serge Koussevitzky directing the Boston Symphony in the Beethoven Symphonies in succession from the First to the Ninth.

Twenty-four thousand Americans, socialites in boxes, students on rugs and blankets bringing their lunch wtih them, came from every state to hear the Fifth on a Saturday night in the Berkshire hills, far from any big city. This was no accidental response to "What shall we do tonight?" It took a great effort for many of these visitors to come to our green hills where Longfellow, Bryant, Hawthorne and a century of brilliant Americans found their inspiration. The music festival has outrun the hotels and boarding houses, the telephone system, the roads. The Berkshires remain primitive—in spots primeval. But the Americans who love music come. I met a friend who drove up that Saturday night—listened—and drove back to New York—an eight-hour trip for an hour of Beethoven.

The Ninth was done on a Tuesday night in midsummer and the audience was enormous, perhaps as many as 12,000. A chorus of 250 young music students, between the ages of 18 and 22, sang as Beethoven's chorals had never been sung before. When Koussevitzky's baton fell on the last note, the audience was on its feet cheering, shouting, applauding, waving. The old man—73 this year—stood there facing mature America.

And that is what Tanglewood means. It is something much more than good music brilliantly executed. Most of that huge assembly were not professional musicians. Most of them can not recognize a fluff by the French horn or a missed note by a pianist. Most of them have never—or could ever—read Schiller's "Ode to Joy" in the original. Few of them can explain the growth of Beethoven's personality from the First to the Ninth.

But all of them, voluntarily, by a conscious effort, in accordance with their means, satisfied a yearning for perfection. As I milled in the crowd, during the intermissions, it came upon me more and more that this was a young audience, that many thousands were G. I.'s and their girls, such as decades ago might have gone to Coney Island or Brighton Beach or some such place. They are young in years but their tastes have matured. The taste of the nation has matured. The culture of the American people has been elevated from the trivialities of the moment to the eternal humanities.

For Tanglewood is but one expression of this cultural upsurge among our people. What other nation can speak of at least 35 symphonic groups spread from coast to coast, playing not only to the elite but to great masses as in the Hollywood Bowl, the Robin Hood Dell concerts in Philadelphia, the Stadium Concerts in New York and in so many other cities that it is hard to keep them all in mind? And over the radio, the Philharmonic, the N. B. C. and the Detroit Symphonies, week after week, enrich a nation with thir contributions to American culture.

I speak here only of music, for at the moment it is music that has captured the imagination of American youth. This lust for a better life will pour itself into poetry, art, the dance and in time even the theater will respond to its stimulus. We are on the upgrade.

And what is so glorious about it is the utter freedom of participation. No government plays any part in any of this. No government subsidies, controls lays down rules and regulations. No government official decides what shall or shall not be played, who is to perform, who is to listen. A free people choose between Beethoven and Irving Berlin and choose by taste. Tanglewood, as every noteworthy cultral development in the United States is a voluntary product of a free people who ask nothing but the unimpaired right to pursue their own courses without interference by the State. I listened to Beethoven's Ninth at Tanglewood with that as a constant overtone.

Great Britain Is A Sick Nation; But Not Fatally So

Great Britain's experiment in socialism has not been the rosy path to Utopia a lot of people thought it would be. And before it is over, it is likely to involve more than Britain in its toils.

Whether the policies of the Attlee government are partly responsible or not, the fact remains that Britain is now facing a major economic crisis. Her production has not lived up to expectation. The mining of coal, the keystone of British economy, is off. She has lost dollar credits because of a tremendous excess of imports over exports. The result is that the government has been forced to take stern measures.

After a cabinet meeting a few days ago, Prime Minister Attlee announced that the miners would be asked to work overtime to increase coal production, imports would be cut down, the standard of living reduced, and Britain would decrease the size of her forces overseas in order to bring skilled technicians back to help industry expand its lagging production.

The Attlee program was hailed by some parts of the Conservative press as being the most realistic step yet taken. But in taking it, the government has tacitly acknowledged that its Socialist schemes have, so far, failed to do what they were supposed to do.

If Americans think this country can sit idly by and watch what happens in Britain, they are mistaken. By reducing her occupation forces, Britain is throwing a greater burden on the United States. We will even be asked to pay more of the cost of feeding and administering the merged economic zones in Germany. And, when the Marshall Plan is put into effect, the British request for aid from this country is not likely to be mere chicken feed.

It would be silly to claim that what is happening to Britain proves that the nation is dying and there is no use trying to revive her. Britain is sick but not fatally so, and outside of all ties of friendship, it is to the economic interest of the United States to see that she is aided. She has also taught us a lesson. Socialism may sound very well in theory, but, as the British are learning to their sorrow, it doesn't work out very well in actual practice.

United Nations Shows It Still Has Spark of Life

The Security Council's order to The Netherlands and Indonesian governments to "cease hostilities forthwith" and to "settle their disputes by arbitration or by other peaceful means" is by far the most forceful and decisive action the United Nations has yet taken. It serves to revive hope in the possibility of effective international action in behalf of peace at a moment when that hope had seemed about to be snuffed out.

There is no real conflict between the American offer to mediate the clash between the Dutch and the Indonesians and the action taken by the Security Council. The State Department was not bypassing the U. N. It was demonstrating that individual nations can take action on behalf of peace while waiting for the U. N. to act—which is a good precedent to set.

With the Council's action, an even more important precedent has been established. The U. N. is not allowed to intervene in the domestic affairs of any state. Strictly interpreted, this would have barred Security Council action in this case since the Indonesians are still subjects of the Netherlands even though they have been promised independence.

However, the Council has taken the position that a threat to world peace is of direct concern to the United Nations wherever it occurs. Whatever the technicalities of sovereignty, what has been going on in Indonesia has been open war and The Netherlands themselves tacitly recognized this by notifying the U. N. of the opening of hostilities.

It is significant that three of the world's great colonial powers—Great Britain, France, and Belgium—refrained from voting on the cease fire order. However, if they have their doubts about the direction which U. N. policy is taking, they have at least had enough regard for the U. N. not to block action with a veto, as Russia would certainly have done if her interests had been involved.

The Shrine Of One Of Our Nation's Presidents

Somebody drove 75 miles the other day to visit the Vermont birthplace of Calvin Coolidge, and then wrote a letter about it to a New York newspaper. On arrival in Plymouth, he was met by an "elderly gentleman who said he grew up with the former President" and who sold the pilgrim for 25 cents a short booklet on the life of Coolidge, its cover bearing the author's picture rather than that of his subject. The room in the farmhouse, where the elder Coolidge administered the oath of office to his son, was totally bare, save for a table where an elderly lady sold postcards, potholders, etc., none having any connection with the late President—all at ten times the price one would pay at a 5-and-10. Outside was a country store, a small church and an empty farmhouse with broken windows.

We wonder how many other so-called national shrines are in a similar state of dilapidation. The trouble is that the list of presidents lengthen with the years, most of them have had half a dozen habitations, and their countrymen have short memories, with two little reverence for storied yesterdays and the men that made them such. So the rituals of remembrance, if any, may become the special charge of local scribes and souvenir dealers. However, every farmhouse where George Washington "slept" for one night gets plenty of tourist attention—more indeed than the residences of most of his White House successors. That's a phenomenon we leave for readers to digest.

Where's The Thimble?

The busy pattern counters in stores and a record sale of patterns last year point to the little-noticed revival of sewing in the home. Time was when sewing and needlework were part of every girl's home training. The custom almost vanished as the mass production of dresses made home sewing almost unprofitable.

In the last few years, however, many mothers and daughters have resumed sewing to supplement their wardrobes. Only last week, a Greensburg, Ind., woman won national honors in a needlework contest.

Doesn't all this signify that most American women still are thrifty, ingenious homemakers?

HOW TO KEEP WELL

THE ITCH MITE

SCABIES (the itch) is an unpopular disorder and carries the stigma of uncleanliness. This is not exactly fair, as many who practice good hygiene have become victims. The responsible parasite is not particular and will intrude wherever he has the opportunity.

Initially, the mites attack the skin over the webs between the fingers. They burrow under the top layers, leaving a slightly elevated, straight or tortuous dotted line on the epidermis. At the entrance site, a small pustule or water blister develops and itching is marked. Grom the fingers, the condition spreads to the wrists, forearms, abdomen, etc. Occasionally the invasion begins on the trunk, ecpecially when the disease is contracted through dirty linen.

The causative parasite was one of the first organisms to be placed under a misroscope. In 1589 Mouffet studied the little fellows with a crude single magnifying lens and concluded that they represented the smallest form—"a living atom," as he wrote later. Had better lenses been available he would have been amazed to discover that the tiny creatures were giants compared to bacteria and viruses.

Scabies must have been usually common in those days and it is not surprising that the pests were the first to poke their noses under the microscope. The 17th century scientists were horrified at what they saw. One wrote: "These vermicules, as far as I could make them out clearly under the microscope, presented to my eye a monstrous form with many long tails sticking out behind."

Mayerne was more descriptive, stating, "If you take lenticular optic glasses of crystal you will admire to see their backs stiff with bristles, their legs rough with hair, and between two foreyards there stands a hollow trunk to torture men. You shall see the eyes sticking forth, and their horns, their bodies crannied all over, their whole substance diaphanous, and through that the motion of their hearts and blood as if it floated through Euripus."

Eradication of the itch requires metriculous care. Sulphur ointment, balsam of Peru and alcohol, and Danish ointment are old standbys. Betanaphthol and pyrethrum in various mixtures are used also. The preparation is applied to the entire body (except the face) after taking a bath and repeated at frequent internvals,depending upon the type of medication used. The underclothes must be changed daily and the clothes and bedding disinfected. If the rules are followed carefully, the infection usually disappears.

The medicine must be strong to kill the toughies; hence the skin may be irritated by the treatment. Sulphur is ofen an offender in this respect, especially if sensitivity to the drug exists. Should dermatitis develop from one product, another can be substituted after a rest perior. After the invaders are eliminated, what is known as "postscabetic pruritis" may remain. This itching is sometimes difficult to cure and the victim may believe that the parasites are still present.

CAN'T PENETRATE

R. T. writes: Will using mineral oil on the scalp for dandruff affect the brains?

REPLY

No, because nature has used forethought in protecting the gray matter. Its bony cage would be difficult to penetrate short of using a pistol or sledgehammer. Furthermore mineral oil is not absorbed, even in the intestinal tract.

PERSONALITY AND INTELLIGENCE

K. J. writes: I have heard that people with high I. Q.'s have psychopathic personalities. Would this be true?

REPLY

I doubt it. Some persons have psychopathic personalities whether they possess a high or low intelligence quotient. The two should not be confused.

ARTHRITIS SYMPTOMS

REPLY

Examination would be necessary to answer this question but at your age I would consider osteoarthritis.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

Donations to the Damon Runyon Memorial fund swelled tremendously last week when 150 Hollywood notables contributed their time and golfing talent to the Frank Borzage Motion Picture Golf Tournament. It was a typical Hollywood affair. All the stars left their footprints in the sandtrap.

Natually all the stars shot under par. It wasn't that they were good golfers—their agents ran around taking 10 per cent off the score.

And the whole affair was conducted in a typical Hollywood manner. When the players found themselves in a tough spot, they called in their doubles.

Every time someone got ready to shoot, the director ran over and shouted "roll 'em."

It was really confusing. One of the stars yelled "fore" and the produced shouted back, "make it three and its a deal."

I gave the other players a handicap. I played under disadvantage. I was the only golfer to keep his eye on the ball and his profile to the camera at the same time.

I won't say I got in the rough, but the judges had me listed as being on "location" for two weeks. Now I know what they mean by "missing link."

Maryland County Puts Roads Ahead Of Schools; Secretary Of Army Sure Bet To Run For Governor Of North Carolina; Pearson-Truman Views Similar

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8—The other day I wrote something about poorly paid school teachers of Pennsylvania, a state in which I used to live. Today I want to write something about the schools of Maryland, a state in which I live now.

Some people may think that I am hipped on the question of schools But to me they are one of the greatest bulwarks of the nation. They are as much responsible for the intelligence and idealism of the American people as any other institution. We cannot stand by and see them neglected.

However, I live in a county which appears to believe in educational neglect. That county happens to be one of the wealthiest in the world. Thousands of people commute daily from the District of Columbia into Maryland, people who help to run the government of the United States, who should believe in good education.

Yet the school in my part of the county would put to shame some of the schools in war-famished Europe. Classrooms are overcrowded. Some of the kids have to study in the halls. Teachers are so overworked and harassed that discipline is almost impossible.

The other day a group of citizens met in the western part of Montgomery County—as citizens do everywhere—to complain about various things which the county government hadn't done. Among other things they complained, quite properly, about the Potomac school.

Roads vs. Schools

The answer, given by one of the county officials, was that building costs were too high. Therefore, an addition to the school would have to wait until building costs went down. Almost in the same breath, however, county officials announced to the assembled citizenry that the road which passes in front of the school would finally be made over new. This brought loud cheers from everyone.

However, the cost of the new road is going to be $130,000; and for one-half that amount a new addition to the schoolhouse could be built. And although costs are high for building a school, they are equally high for laying a road.

Now some readers of this column in Seattle or San Diego may wonder why I am boring them with a local problem in the distant state of Maryland. However, the problem isn't local. From what I gather it exists everywhere. Schools throughout the nation are overcrowded, undermanned, the teachers underpaid. Thousands of communities are going to have to decide whether to build new roads or new schools

And while roads are important, what seems to me more important is the fact that children's minds cannot wait. Roads can. We can buy new tires or retread them. But you can't retread children's minds. Their characters and mentality are moulded young. For them the clock can never be turned back. The mental cobwebs they gather from six to fourteen can never be brushed out.

Furthermore, this fall will see schools more crowded than ever. Seventeen million war babies were born from 1941 through 1946, an increase in our birth rate of 50 per cent, and the biggest crop of children this country has ever seen. They will start flooding the schools this fall.

In the face of this, the commissioners of my county have cut the proposed educational budget by $400,000, and plan building a new road instead of new schools.

A lot of my neighbors are sore at me for frowning on the new road. But until the schools are improved, I'm going to put in my two cents' worth against it.

Truman and Pearson on National Science

On August 6, President Truman vetoed an Act of Concress creating a National Science Foundation. His memorandum of disapproval, charging that the bill would give control of vital patents to private corporations, recalls a column written by me May 31 which contained an almost identical warning. In fact, anyone reading the Pearson column in May might have predicted what President Truman has done in August.

"In the hurly-burly of Congress," I warned, "a lot of things slip by that some newspapers don't catch and the public doesn't know about. But sometimes they affect the life of the nation for years to come.

"One such vote occurred in the Senate recently. It affected the future control of patents from Government-paid scientific development.

"Control of vital patents is one reason why the American people walked part of the time during the war instead of having ample tires. Standard Oil of New Jersey had conspired with the Germans before the war to withhold precious patents on synthetic rubber.

"A similar control of patents was oner eason why we couldn't ship enough planes to the Philippines to help General MacArthur after Pearl Harbor. The Aluminum Corporation of America had a deal with the Germans to bottle up the use of magnesium in this country — and magnesium is vital to airplane manufacture.

"Immediately after World War I there was considerable discussion of German patents and the importance of not letting Germany get a monopoly on war processes. Then, gradually, the public forgot. . .So today it is important that the public doesn't forget a second time, and that history doesn't repeat. . . .

"During the war, the U. S. Government spent the huge sum of two billion dollars on scientific research (not including atomic research) and about one-half of this will go to the permanent profit of big corporations. Several companies received $5,000,000 or more from the Government for research. . . .

"If the first 12,000 research contracts written by the War Department, only 37 provided that the public generally should benefit from the research results. The others permitted the companies to keep the benefit of their research for their exclusive use after the war, even though they were using the taxpayers' money to pay for the research. . . .

"Last year, this question of whether the Government owned the result of research paid for by Government funds, arose when the Senate passed the Kilgore Bill creating a National Science Foundation.

"But this year, when the National Science Bill came up again, it was revamped by Republican Senator Alexander Smith of New Jersey."

And I went on to explain how the revamped bill played into the hands of private interests.

This is the bill which President Truman has just vetoed.

Decision Toward Britain Made Difficult For United States

By MARK SULLIVAN

The facts about Britain's economic crisis and the concern it is to us, are plain enough. But as a consequence of the facts, our State Department and our people are called upon to make decisions about courses. This area is as far as possible from plain, it is on the contrary made extremely difficult by baffling considerations.

Our government would like to help Britain, is in fact earnestly desirous of helping for the sake of Britain and for the sake of world recovery. The help is possible for the Administration to give. It can ease some of the conditions of the 3¾-billion-dollar loan our government made to Britain a little over a year ago, so as to make the loan less onerous on Britain.

The Administration can give another help and must do so willy-nilly, in our own interest. We can take over some or all of that part of the expense of occupying Germany which Britain is now bearing, just as we have taken over the burden Britain was bearing in Greece. This would relieve Britain of an expense of some half billion dollars a year. It would further relieve her in the sense that the British soldiers now in Germany can be brought home and added to Britain's labor force.

Can Be Done By Administration

These things can be done by the Administration. But Britain will still have need for more money, and this can only be supplied by act of Congress. Congress is not due to meet again until January, unless called into special session earlier to meet not merely the British emergency but the larger emergency of which that is a part.

Whether Congress, after lending 3¾ billion dollars to Britain a little over a year ago, would be willing to make another loan, is a thing which only Congress can decide. Their decision when made will reflect the feeling of the public, especially taxpayers.

America has abundance of money, we are in the common phrase "lousy" with it. Our people, as private investors, would undoubtedly be willing to loan money for use in the recovery of British industry, if there were a practicable way for them to do this. They would be willing to loan the money, even if the risk of getting it back were great. Our people, as individuals, do not hesitate to invest abroad, even under circumstances of great risk.

But this is not what is asked of our people. They are asked to contribute their money, not as investors but as taxpayers. They are asked to turn it over to the American government, which in turn loans it to the British government. The loan is to the British government, not directly to British industries.

This distinction, between Americans as taxpayers and Americans as investors, is a part of the world problem of our time, and this problem can be made clear by a brief bit of history.

For generations, British investors loaned money to American railroads, utilities, mines and industries. It was with loans from British investors, mainly, that American industry was developed. The relation was a happy one, an illustration of private capitalism working fruitfully on an international basis. The British had money to spare, they were a leading nation. We had need of money, we were a borrowing nation. The cooptration was part of a golden age for both countries.

Situation Is Reversed

Today the situation is reversed. Americans have money, they can be a lending nation. Britain, with her economic structure greatly injured by war, needs to borow money. Loans by American investors to British industries could be as happy a cooperation as the reverse once was.

But the present British government, carrying out an attempt at Socialism, has made it impossible for Americans to make direct loans to British industries, in the way that the British formerly made loans to American industries. The Labor government is opposed to the existence of privately owned industries. Many important British industries have been taken over by the Labor government, and the prospect is it will take over more. This leaves few private owners of industries with whom American investors and bankers can deal, or privately owned industries upon the security of which loans can be made. Socialization of industry, in large part actual and as to the rest feared, puts an end to loans by American investors to British industries.

To recite this present condition in Britain, and the history which preceded it, while it throws light on the situation, is by no means to answer a problem, either the one arising out of the present crisis in Britain, or the larger problem which besets the world. The United States remains a capitalist nation, and by the evidence of every policy of Congress is determined to remain one. Much of Europe has departed from capitalism and free enterprise, has gone over to totalitarian government of one variety or another, from the Socialism of the British Labor Party to Russian Communism and shades between.

Instinctively we feel that in order to survive as a free enterprise nation ourselves, we must help free enterprise in Europe. Out of that condition arise most of the international problems we are called upon to meet.

Investigations Of Conditions Abroad Will Be Worth The Cost

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8—Probably the best money appropriated by the legislative branch of the government for its own activities is that recently allocated to investigations abroad.

Indications are that foreign policy will be much discussed when Congress reconvenes. The fact that a substantial number of members of the House and Senate will be visiting foreign countries this Autumn will be the biggest kind of help toward a better understanding of the issues involved.

For years there has been criticism that the American Congress legislated on foreign questions from an insular viewpoint. For instance, the late Senator Borah of Idaho, outstanding isolationist, was invited to go abroad but declined amid widespread comment that he did not want to learn by contact.

The principal committees investigating conditions in foreign countries are those appointed by the House of Representatives. It is in the House that the major opposition to such things as the Marshall plan or change in the statutes covering the British loan agreement will arise.

Members of the House have already performed considerable service by their studies abroad. It has been helpful to find committees and subcommittees studying the financial and economic trends of European countries.

Russia's Attitude Regretted

It is most unfortunate that the Russian government has turned down the requests of three House members to visit Russia. A similar request by three senators is pending. In view of the coordinate importance of the legislative branch of the government in the ratification of treaties and international agreements, it would be a serious mistake if the Russian government denied these envoys an opportunity to study conditions first hand.

The need for a closer relationship with Russia is every day becoming more and more imperative. If the Russian government is unwilling even to allow informal discussion and visits to improve relations, the whole world will wonder. Certainly the burden will rest on the Russian government.

Nearly every American visitor of importance to Russia has brought back information or impressions of constructive value. It would seem that an opportunity for the Russian officials to talk frankly and informally with American Senators this Autumn would be a useful step toward better relations with the United States Congress.

There will, of course, be many members of Congress visiting Great Britain and France and some will travel to the Far East. The British economic situation is acute already. Many observers here feel that the loan agreements cannot be materially altered without action by Congress. The British have not hesitated to welcome American members of Congress and to let them see for themselves the destruction which has swept England and the heroic efforts that are being made to rebuild a country which for so many months in 1940 and 1941 stood out against the Nazis alone amid a bombardment of civilians of such intensity as had been unknown before.

Great Britain has been in the throes of economic readjustment with wartime controls retained. Drastic powers limiting the freedom of individuals, with rationing of short supplies, have been applied in a desperate effort to attain a balanced economy.

The American-British loan was approved at a time when the price level in the United States was much lower than it is today. As our prices have risen, the cost to the British of importing necessary commodities has risen perceptibly. Thus, the loan does not go as far toward alleviating Britain's exchange problem as was first contemplated.

Neither Are At Fault

Neither the U. S. nor Britain is at fault as a consequence. If any groups are to blame, it is the American blocs of economic power which have conducted a battle on prices and wages in an inflationary duel that has caused suffering everywhere.

Some substantial alterations in the British loan agreement have long been foreseen as necessary as an alternative to an enlargement of the loan itself, something that an economy-minded Congress probably wouldn't like as much as an amendment of the terms. These amendments would permit a postponement of the time when dollars and pounds become convertible throughout the sterling bloc of nations and also would permit adjustments in trade between Britain and her dominions.

Such changes would affect certain segments of American trade adversely, but, as between a collapse in Britain and alterations in the original plan, the latter is much to be preferred.

THESE DAYS By George E. Sokolsky

TANGLEWOOD

IT was not a fight between Joe Louis and some contender; it was not the Army-Notre Dame game; it was not the World Series. It was not a mob that had gathered to see some obscene novelty. It was Serge Koussevitzky directing the Boston Symphony in the Beethoven Symphonies in succession from the First to the Ninth.

Twenty-four thousand Americans, socialites in boxes, students on rugs and blankets bringing their lunch wtih them, came from every state to hear the Fifth on a Saturday night in the Berkshire hills, far from any big city. This was no accidental response to "What shall we do tonight?" It took a great effort for many of these visitors to come to our green hills where Longfellow, Bryant, Hawthorne and a century of brilliant Americans found their inspiration. The music festival has outrun the hotels and boarding houses, the telephone system, the roads. The Berkshires remain primitive—in spots primeval. But the Americans who love music come. I met a friend who drove up that Saturday night—listened—and drove back to New York—an eight-hour trip for an hour of Beethoven.

The Ninth was done on a Tuesday night in midsummer and the audience was enormous, perhaps as many as 12,000. A chorus of 250 young music students, between the ages of 18 and 22, sang as Beethoven's chorals had never been sung before. When Koussevitzky's baton fell on the last note, the audience was on its feet cheering, shouting, applauding, waving. The old man—73 this year—stood there facing mature America.

And that is what Tanglewood means. It is something much more than good music brilliantly executed. Most of that huge assembly were not professional musicians. Most of them can not recognize a fluff by the French horn or a missed note by a pianist. Most of them have never—or could ever—read Schiller's "Ode to Joy" in the original. Few of them can explain the growth of Beethoven's personality from the First to the Ninth.

But all of them, voluntarily, by a conscious effort, in accordance with their means, satisfied a yearning for perfection. As I milled in the crowd, during the intermissions, it came upon me more and more that this was a young audience, that many thousands were G. I.'s and their girls, such as decades ago might have gone to Coney Island or Brighton Beach or some such place. They are young in years but their tastes have matured. The taste of the nation has matured. The culture of the American people has been elevated from the trivialities of the moment to the eternal humanities.

For Tanglewood is but one expression of this cultural upsurge among our people. What other nation can speak of at least 35 symphonic groups spread from coast to coast, playing not only to the elite but to great masses as in the Hollywood Bowl, the Robin Hood Dell concerts in Philadelphia, the Stadium Concerts in New York and in so many other cities that it is hard to keep them all in mind? And over the radio, the Philharmonic, the N. B. C. and the Detroit Symphonies, week after week, enrich a nation with thir contributions to American culture.

I speak here only of music, for at the moment it is music that has captured the imagination of American youth. This lust for a better life will pour itself into poetry, art, the dance and in time even the theater will respond to its stimulus. We are on the upgrade.

And what is so glorious about it is the utter freedom of participation. No government plays any part in any of this. No government subsidies, controls lays down rules and regulations. No government official decides what shall or shall not be played, who is to perform, who is to listen. A free people choose between Beethoven and Irving Berlin and choose by taste. Tanglewood, as every noteworthy cultral development in the United States is a voluntary product of a free people who ask nothing but the unimpaired right to pursue their own courses without interference by the State. I listened to Beethoven's Ninth at Tanglewood with that as a constant overtone.

County Files Bids On Furniture For Liquor Office

Bids on office furniture for the Allegany County Liquor Control Board quarters in the Court House, were ordered filed by members of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners, yesterday, pending a decision on whether the County or the Board should purchase the needed equipment.

Charles N. Wilkinson, president of the commissioners, said that the liquor board has a $10,000 yearly budget for administrative expenses and salaries, and that this money is furnished from fees collected in licensing the sale of alcoholic beverage places in the county.

The liquor board was given the right to use money from license fees by an order of Circuit Court because the legislation passed at the last session of the General Assembly did not provide for paying salaries or administrative expenses.

A total of $6,900 is required annually for the three-man board and a secretary. The liquor board pays half the $150 monthly salary of the secretary while the clerk of Circuit Court pays the other half. The board has the power under the liquor control law to hire an investigator but has not done so.

An office is provided at the Court House at no expense to the liquor board, and there was some question this morning as to whether or not the commissioners would be willing to pay approximately $500 for office equipment for the board.

A request was made by Walter C. Capper, chairman of the liquor board, for the equipment at a recent session of the county commissioners and he was advised to seek bids on the equipment. This morning, however, there developed a question of the county's responsibility in paying for the office furnishings.

Four requests were received by the board today for repairs to county roads. A resident of the Pekin section asked repairs for a road there. James H. Burkhart asked that Braddock Street in LaVale be repaired. Ray Pearce asked that a road leading to the Westernport reservoir be fixed and Mrs. James Barnhill, requested repairs to the Oliver Belt Road which runs from Williams Road to Town Creek.

All the requests were referred to Albert S. Paye, county engineer.

The case of the state against Hazel Singleton, steward of the American Legion Club and Clyde Bean, Moose Club Stewart, both of Romney, on charges of selling liquor and keeping gaming devices, was continued until the next term of court because of the inability of state witnesses to be present.

Gordon Thrasher was found not guilty of an involuntary manslaughter count. The case grew out of an auto accident four miles north of Romney. Glenna Mayhew, Romney, was killed.

Food prices in Cumberland have advanced 34 per cent to an all time high since July 1946 when OPA ceased to be effective, according to a tabulation completed yesterday by the Chamber of Commerce.

Claims Case Sentence Suspended By Perdew

Leo Riggleman, Barton who was given a hearing in Trial Magistrates Court yesterday on charges of making false pretense to obtain unemployment benefits, was given a suspended sentence of a $50 fine.

Magistrate Frank A. Perdew suspended the fine on condition that he make restitution to the Maryland Unemployment Board.

Court attaches said Riggleman drew $20 while employed by the Dye Coal Company on May 14 after he had earned $44 the previous week.

Joseph B. Nawatski, 127 Maryland Avenue, forfeited $3.45 bond after he had been apprehended on Monday by State Trooper William E. McElfish for passing on a curve on Route 220 at Cresaptown.

Liller's Condition Remains "Satisfactory"

Sgt. Marvin Liller, 13 Laing Avenue, who police said was struck in the face with a beer bottle Thursday night, last night remained in a "satisfactory" condition in Memorial Hospital, attaches said.

Meanwhile, a man identified as Claudis Hill, Homer Street, was being held in City Jail, after he admitted striking Liller as he stood at the counter in the Subway Tavern, Virginia Avenue. Police said he will be held "for investigation," pending the outcome of Liller's injuries.

Hill was taken into custody shortly after the incident, as he slept on a vacant lot at the end of South Street, police said. They added that the prisoner apparently was drinking.

Mayor Seeks Data On Other Airports

Letters to the mayors of Johnstown, Pa., Roanoke, Va., Hagerstown, Wheeling, W. Va., Elkins, W. Va., and Reading, Pa., asking them to give some details on the operation of airports in those communities have been written by Mayor Thomas S. Post.

The action in seeking information in order to make a comparison with the Cumberland Municipal Airport, comes on the heels of a meeting with William J. Graham, president of Cumberland Airways, Inc., which leases the local field. The Municipal Airport Commission discussed financial and other problems with Graham at a meeting here Tuesday.

Answers to these questions as well as other pertinent information is sought:

Does your city operate its own airport or lease it to an individual?

If leased, what are the terms?

What is the city's investment in the airport?

If operated by the city, is it self sustaining or does it require an appropriation in addition to its income for operation and maintenance?

The lease with Cumberland Airways is due for renegotiation for the period starting January 1, 1947. Under terms for the first two years the city is scheduled to receive all profits over $1,000.

Man Receives Jail Sentence For Theft

Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., sentenced Frank Corrick, 223 Pennsylvania Avenue, to 30 days in the county jail after he had pleaded guilty to the theft of a pair of wire snips and a penknife valued at $1.50 from a local store. The hearing was held yesterday afternoon in Trial Magistrates Court.

Corrick, who has served two terms at the Maryland House of Correction on loitering and theft charges, was seen by a clerk taking the items. When apprehended the man had a camera in his possession.

Yesterday morning, S. D. Maxey, Route 3, appeared at City Police headquarters and accused Corrick of ransacking his home in May. He was present at the hearing yesterday.

Food Prices Here Hit New Record

Food prices in Cumberland have advanced 34 per cent to an all time high since July 1946 when OPA ceased to be effective, according to a tabulation completed yesterday by the Chamber of Commerce.

Figures are based on prices advertised or furnished to the Chamber by local stores and in many cases the prices quoted are not for the highest quality items.

The figures of yesterday morning show the retail prices of 15 staple items listed at $8.30. The previous high was $7.96 in June; the third highest was $7.93 for July, and next in line was $7.75 for December of last year.

Claims Case Sentence Suspended By Perdew

Leo Riggleman, Barton who was given a hearing in Trial Magistrates Court yesterday on charges of making false pretense to obtain unemployment benefits, was given a suspended sentence of a $50 fine.

Magistrate Frank A. Perdew suspended the fine on condition that he make restitution to the Maryland Unemployment Board.

Court attaches said Riggleman drew $20 while employed by the Dye Coal Company on May 14 after he had earned $44 the previous week.

Joseph B. Nawatski, 127 Maryland Avenue, forfeited $3.45 bond after he had been apprehended on Monday by State Trooper William E. McElfish for passing on a curve on Route 220 at Cresaptown.

Liller's Condition Remains "Satisfactory"

Sgt. Marvin Liller, 13 Laing Avenue, who police said was struck in the face with a beer bottle Thursday night, last night remained in a "satisfactory" condition in Memorial Hospital, attaches said.

Meanwhile, a man identified as Claudis Hill, Homer Street, was being held in City Jail, after he admitted striking Liller as he stood at the counter in the Subway Tavern, Virginia Avenue. Police said he will be held "for investigation," pending the outcome of Liller's injuries.

Hill was taken into custody shortly after the incident, as he slept on a vacant lot at the end of South Street, police said. They added that the prisoner apparently was drinking.

Mayor Seeks Data On Other Airports

Letters to the mayors of Johnstown, Pa., Roanoke, Va., Hagerstown, Wheeling, W. Va., Elkins, W. Va., and Reading, Pa., asking them to give some details on the operation of airports in those communities have been written by Mayor Thomas S. Post.

The action in seeking information in order to make a comparison with the Cumberland Municipal Airport, comes on the heels of a meeting with William J. Graham, president of Cumberland Airways, Inc., which leases the local field. The Municipal Airport Commission discussed financial and other problems with Graham at a meeting here Tuesday.

Answers to these questions as well as other pertinent information is sought:

Does your city operate its own airport or lease it to an individual?

If leased, what are the terms?

What is the city's investment in the airport?

If operated by the city, is it self sustaining or does it require an appropriation in addition to its income for operation and maintenance?

The lease with Cumberland Airways is due for renegotiation for the period starting January 1, 1947. Under terms for the first two years the city is scheduled to receive all profits over $1,000.

Man Receives Jail Sentence For Theft

Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., sentenced Frank Corrick, 223 Pennsylvania Avenue, to 30 days in the county jail after he had pleaded guilty to the theft of a pair of wire snips and a penknife valued at $1.50 from a local store. The hearing was held yesterday afternoon in Trial Magistrates Court.

Corrick, who has served two terms at the Maryland House of Correction on loitering and theft charges, was seen by a clerk taking the items. When apprehended the man had a camera in his possession.

Yesterday morning, S. D. Maxey, Route 3, appeared at City Police headquarters and accused Corrick of ransacking his home in May. He was present at the hearing yesterday.

Heavy Thunderstorm Hits Capital; One Dead

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 (AP) — A heavy thunderstorm struck metropolitan Washington early tonight, police reporting one death from lightning and numerous instances of minor damage.

Other Christmas, 46, was struck in the head by lightning while running toward his home in the rain, police said. He was 10 yards from his front door when hit. He was dead when taken to a hospital.

The steeple of Calvary Baptist Church was struck while a wedding rehearsal was underway in the edifice. Several hundred bricks were knocked from the tower, and a hole was blown in the wall where firemen said the bolt shot through to cross the street and start a fire in a hallway. After the firemen left, the rehearsal was resumed.

Frederick Girl Wins 4-H Club Dress Review

COLLEGE PARK, Aug. 8. (AP)—Seventeen-year-old Marjorie Jane Layman, Frederick, was named the winner today in the 4-H Club's dress review, a contest for dresses designed, made and modeled at the organization's 29th annual convention on the campus of the University of Maryland.

For taking top honors in the event Miss Layman will represent Maryland at the National 4-H Congress in Chicago later this year.

Second place in the competition went to Barbara Young, 18, Middletown, Md. Martha Ann Zeigler, 16, Denton, was third, and Becky Lipton, 16, Jarretsville, was fourth.

mountain area around Frostburg and praised the location of the college as an ideal setting.

Franklin Rathbun, superintendent of education in Garrett County, said it had been necessary for him to get teachers from Pennsylvania and West Virginia and that he believes the teacher training facilities at Frostburg should be enlarged so that more Maryland teachers can be employed in Maryland schools.

Senate President James R. Byrnes (D-Baltimore), council president, promised the group would give serious study to the college, adding he was certain "some of us already are opposed to abandoning Frostburg."

Tasker G. Lowndes, president of the State Board of Education, welcomed the council to Frostburg Teachers College at lunch in the college dining room before the conference.

Presented With Booklet

Last night the council members were guests of the citizens of Frostburg at dinner at Big Savage Hotel and each was presented with a booklet containing pictures of the college and data on the institution. Thomas Elias, president of the Frostburg Business Association, presided.

Register of Wills A. Charles Stewart told the council that it is hard to believe that the Marbury Commission could have recommended the close of the college if it had made a proper survey.

He referred to establishment of the school in 1898 and praised local members of the Legislature, especially William A. Gunter who, in 1939, had the entire General Assembly visit Frostburg to satisfy them that the request of the City of Frostburg to close Oak Street was essential to enlarging of the college.

Stewart commented on the fact that the college site was bought for $400 with money collected from merchants and miners. The amount may seem small, he said, but the purchase took place at a time in Frostburg history when miners were digging coal for 45 cents a ton and labor was paid $1.25 a day.

He expressed the hope the Legislative Council will find it advisable to increase the size of the institution at Frostburg.

Sen. Robert B. Kimble, minority floor leader, introduced all the members of the council. Brief responses were made by Sen. Byrnes, Delegate Ferdinand C. Sybert, speaker of the House; Sen. Harold Sothoron, majority floor leader, and Delegate Leroy Pumphrey, majority floor leader in the House.

Among the guests were the Mayor and Commissioners of Frostburg, and Clyde Rowe, Westernport, district mine inspector.

Visit Coal Mines

The council members went to Frostburg on the second day of their tour which included visits to strip mines and deep Mine No. 5 of the Georges Creek Coal Company near Lonaconing. Dr. James J. Rutledge, chief mining engineer of the State Bureau of Mines, was in the party.

The party started the day with a trip through the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad shops here after being guests at breakfast of State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris and Assistant State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher.

Today the council will be guests at breakfast of former Attorney General Walsh at the Liberty Tavern and then will go to Luke for a tour of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper plant and to look over pollution of the Potomac River.

A visit to the Savage River dam site also is scheduled after which the party will motor to Swallow Falls State Park to check over the state forest program. Dinner will be served at New Germany State Park where they will spend the night.

On Sunday the group will visit Deep Creek Lake and Sunday afternoon will return to Baltimore aboard the Cincinnatian, crack B. and O. train which will make its first unscheduled stop at Oakland to pick them up.

Warehouse Burns At Harrisonburg

HARRISONBURG, Va., Aug. 8 (AP) —A fire which demolished a feed company warehouse and threatened nearby gasoline and oil storage tanks was brought under control approximately one hour after it was discovered tonight.

Fire department officials said at 9:15 p. m. Eastern Standard Time, that the "fire is completely under control although it is still burning slightly."

Several fire trucks of surrounding communities hurried to the scene from nearby New Market, where the annual New Market firemen's parade was being held. Firemen from throughout the Shenandoah Valley were at New Market and left the festivities to come here as word of the blaze reached them. The flames could be seen for miles away.

The fire's origin could not be determined immediately, and the amount of damage could not be estimated.

Hundreds of Harrisonburg citizens appeared at the scene of the blaze which came only 11 days after 11 persons perished and 30 others were injured here July 29 in a beauty shop blast.

Sales Tax Vote Issue Is Revived

BALTIMORE, Aug. 8 (AP) — The Maryland Economic Council today announced plans to file a mandamus petition in an effort to compel a state-wide referendum on the sales tax.

Robert I. Black, president of the group, said he expected the petition to be refused by the Anne Arundel County Circuit Court, after which the council intends to take the case to the Court of Appeals.

Attorney General Hall Hammond earlier had stated that revenue measures are not subject to referendum.

Black said the petition will ask the court to order Secretary of State Bertram L. Boone to submit the retail tax law to a vote of the people along with the next election for the House of Delegates, to be held in November 1948.

He said his legal advisors had informed him the tax law would become inoperative until the Court of Appeals hands down a final ruling, if the appellate court should accept the case.

Black added the petition contains 25,000 names—15,000 more than are required by law. It will be filed next week at Annapolis, he said.

HARRISONBURG, Va., Aug. 8 (AP) —A fire which demolished a feed company warehouse and threatened nearby gasoline and oil storage tanks was brought under control approximately one hour after it was discovered tonight.

Fire department officials said at 9:15 p. m. Eastern Standard Time, that the "fire is completely under control although it is still burning slightly."

Several fire trucks of surrounding communities hurried to the scene from nearby New Market, where the annual New Market firemen's parade was being held. Firemen from throughout the Shenandoah Valley were at New Market and left the festivities to come here as word of the blaze reached them. The flames could be seen for miles away.

The fire's origin could not be determined immediately, and the amount of damage could not be estimated.

Hundreds of Harrisonburg citizens appeared at the scene of the blaze which came only 11 days after 11 persons perished and 30 others were injured here July 29 in a beauty shop blast.

Sales Tax Vote Issue Is Revived

BALTIMORE, Aug. 8 (AP) — The Maryland Economic Council today announced plans to file a mandamus petition in an effort to compel a state-wide referendum on the sales tax.

Robert I. Black, president of the group, said he expected the petition to be refused by the Anne Arundel County Circuit Court, after which the council intends to take the case to the Court of Appeals.

Attorney General Hall Hammond earlier had stated that revenue measures are not subject to referendum.

Black said the petition will ask the court to order Secretary of State Bertram L. Boone to submit the retail tax law to a vote of the people along with the next election for the House of Delegates, to be held in November 1948.

He said his legal advisors had informed him the tax law would become inoperative until the Court of Appeals hands down a final ruling, if the appellate court should accept the case.

Black added the petition contains 25,000 names—15,000 more than are required by law. It will be filed next week at Annapolis, he said.

Advice To The Lovelorn

Girl Advised To Forget Serviceman Who Doesn't Answer Letters

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Through a friend, I began a correspondence with a serviceman who wrote to me first. Soon we exchanged pictures of ourselves, and some months later he came to see me on a week-pass and we had a very happy time.

After he went back to camp, I received a letter from him asking me to go steady, and I said yes. About a month later, his letters stopped, and, when none came for several weeks, I was really worried and called him up long-distance. He told me he had been sick for a month and quarantined, but would be able to come and see me in a few weeks. He told me he would write me a letter that evening, but two weeks have gone by and I have heard nothing. I am wondering if I should write to him or forget him entirely. I am terribly fond of him and it might be love; I don't know. "PUZZLED"

Dear "Puzzled":

I think you had better make no moves of any sort toward this young man unless he shows more signs than he does at present of a real interest in you. I doubt very much if you are going to find him a very satisfactory friend. If you had been very seriously in his thoughts, he would have found some way of getting word to you that he was ill and could not write you. I am afraid I have a feeling he might have been making the whole story up.

I wouldn't worry about being in love with this young man. I doubt if you are. My advice is to do as you say and forget him, unless some change of behavior on his part makes the situation look different.

Stick To Your Standards

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl of 16 and have a boy friend, 20. I love him very much and I believe he loves me, too. We have been going steady for about six months.

Just lately he has been asking being mad and things are all right keep on with him or forget about that? When I keep saying no, he gets mad, but then he forgets about being had and things are all right again. I am wondering if I should keep on with him or foret about him.

"MISS CONFUSION"

Dear "Miss Confusion:"

Any young man of 20 who makes the wrong kind of proposals to a 16-year-old girl is somebody to let strictly alone. I rather imagine that if you continue to say "No," the problem will solve itself anyhow, as he will undoubtedly prefer to go looking for a girl with less good sense.

Don't let him persuade you to change your mind. You will never be sorry if you stick to your standards. On the contrary, you will be very glad, one of these days, when you meet the right kind of man and you have a clear record to bring him.

Probe Of Auto Drivers' License Thefts Disclosed

BALTIMORE, Aug. 8 (AP)—An investigation of automobile drivers' licenses stolen from the Maryland Penitentiary where they are printed has been under way a year, it was disclosed in traffic court yesterday.

Sgt. Arthur H. Block, of the Baltimore Traffic Division, revealed the inquiry at the trial of a teenage Baltimore boy on a charge of having a fictitious driver's license.

The sergeant said police knew of several blank licenses taken "illegally" from the penitentiary.

The son of a penitentiary guard testified he obtained a license from his father as a souvenir which he gave to a friend who passed it along to the boy under arrest. Magistrate Henry Miller postponed decision on the charge.

Try using paste or liquid wax on book covers. It will not only keep them clean longer, but also aid in preserving colors and tend to lengthen the life of the covers.

Looter Is Show Horse

Keyser Marks V-J Week

Whelan Starred At C. U.

Coaches Warned By PIAA

By C. V. BURNS

Looter, the good looking 9-year-old chestnut gelding, which holds the record for five eighths of a mile at Fairgo, has been sold by Ed B. Lee to R. L. Cochrane of Bridgeport, Conn., who will convert the thoroughbred into a show ring horse.

According to information from Hagerstown, Looter's first ring appearance will be the second week of September at Long Island, N. Y.

Looter sprinted the five-eighths in the record time of 55 seconds at Fairgo on August 11, 1945. "Bobby" Edens was aboard the speedster.

In his last race at Fairgo, August 24, 1945, Looter won the sixth race, defeating She's Scotch by three lengths.

The son of Hi-Jack and Cassie won 17 races for Ed Lee before he was sold.

The retail sales tax is in effect at the race tracks and at Hagerstown on Tuesday a horse claimed for $1,200 brought $24 into the coffers of the State of Maryland. Four claims at Bel Air netted the state $135.

Get your pennies ready for Fairgo because this year you'll pay one cent extra for a program, a tip sheet, a hot dog, soft drinks, etc.

The amateur boxing show to be presented by the Vigilant Reel and Hose Company at Keyser High School next Wednesday night will be one of the features marking Keyser's V-J Week celebration.

Firemen have worked hard in making the celebration a success and have planned all kinds of entertainment for the entire week.

When Jack O'Brien, the Midland ad, booted Toonerville ($14.60) and Westing ($16.20) to victory at the Hagerstown track yesterday he boosted his winning mounts for the meeting to five in four days.

He now holds second place among the riders at the Hub City oval.

Jimmy Baird who rode 57 winners at Charles Town paces the jockeys at Hagerstown with nine firsts. Patsy Grant and Sammy Austin have four each.

Tommy Whelan, who has been named to referee the intra-squad football game between members of the Baltimore Colts of the All-America Conference next Friday night at Fort Hill Stadium, was a star halfback at Catholic University, Washington, in the early 1930s and was given All-America mention.

Johnny Long recalled yesterday that Whelan played in the backfield for the Catholic University Freshmen in 1929 when LaSalle High played the Washington eleven. Long coached the Explorers that season.

While in Cumberland next week Whelan will be a guest of Long.

Jim Foti, head coach of Central High School athletic teams at Wheeling, W. Va., has been signed as advisory coach of the Wheeling team of the All-American Professional Basketball League, of which Cumberland is a member.

The announcement of Foti's signing is made by Mike Valan, owner of the Wheeling team. Foti is a graduate of John Carroll College where he was an all-around athlete. The Wheeling pro squad will report sometime in September.

Impatient scholastic football coaches in Pennsylvania have been advised by the P.I.A.A. not to "jump the gun" on pre-season training.

It is estimated that 50,000 schoolboys in the Keystone State will don the moleskins at the first opportunity and the 1,000 high schools affiliated with the state organization have been told that preliminary practice cannot be held prior to Monday, August 18.

The rules also provide that no member school can participate in any games prior to September 5.

The word "games" as it appears in the rules includes any games with another school team, whether it is merely a practice game or an actual scheduled game.

"You oughta see these fellows eat spaghetti," declared Lacy Cifala after his Delicatets had snapped the 14-game winning streak of the Amvets yesterday.

Lacy's players refer to yesterday's contest as the "Spaghetti Bowl Game".

Chubby's Tops Eagles In Frostburg League

FROSTBURG, Aug. 8.—Chubby's Cafe tossers walloped the Eagles by the score of 12 to 6 today in a Frostburg Softball League game at State Teachers' College Field.

The winners shelled Fisher and Coleman for 16 hits. B. Blank with triple and single and A. Blank and Griffith with two singles each led the Eagles' attack while W. Miller starred afield. Goldsworthy smacked a homer and two singles and O'Rourke had three singles for the Chubby's. Goldsworthy also played a bangup game in the field. Score:

Lesnevich Meets Mauriello Oct. 31

Pellone Will Test Williams Sept. 19

NEW YORK, Aug. 8—(AP)—The 20th Century Sporting Club today announced a ten-round non-title fight at Madison Square Garden Oct. 31 between light heavyweight champion Gus Lesnevich and Tami Mauriello.

Sol Strauss, acting director of 20th Century said he also expects to have a ten-round, over-the-weight bout signed soon between Lightweight Champion Ike Williams and Tony Pellone, New York welterweight, for Sept. 19.

The only hitch still to be ironed out was for Pellone to agree to come in at not over 143 pounds. Pellone defeated Bob Montgomery and Charley Fusari in his last two fights.

Williams' manager, Blinky Palermo, said the Pellone match would be one of four non-title bouts for Williams in various parts of the country before he makes his first defense of the undisputed 135-pound championship against Montgomery, whom he knocked out Monday in Philadelphia to win universal recognition.

BILLY FOX STOPS KOCHAN IN FOURTH

NEW YORK, Aug. 8, (AP) — Belting Billy Fox, who makes a specialty of putting other fellows to sleep, chalked up his 48th knockout victory in 49 professional starts tonight by stopping game Georgie Kochan in the fourth round of a ten rounder in Madison Square Garden. Fox scaled 171; Kochan 174.

Actually, Georgie was still on his feet and still trying at the finish of this one, and actually the only fellow who'd been on the floor during the proceedings, was the Philadelphia flailer.

But early in the fourth heat, the one-time Akron, Ohio barber, who now does his fighting out of New York, was hurt, and he had to hang on to save himself, so Referee Frank Fullam halted the proceedings at 1 minute 9 seconds of the fourth session.

BRITISH FIGHTER TROUNCES MARINO

MANCHESTER, England, Aug. 8—(AP)—Peter Kane, British bantamweight, outpointed Dado Marino of Honolulu in a ten-round fight tonight, hammering out a one-sided decision over the Hawaiian who has been named the logical contender for the recently vacated world flyweight title.

Kane, who weighed 117 pounds to Marino's 114¾, had his opponent in trouble frequently but could not score a knockout in hanging up the 11th straight triumph of his comeback campaign as a bantamweight.

Powers Gets Hit In All-Star Tilt

United States Wins Over Canadians, 6-2

BALTIMORE, Aug. 8 (AP)—Frank (Pancho) Womack, 17-year-old southpaw from Houston, Tex., pitched the United States nine, with the help of some lusty extra base blows, to a 6-2 victory over Canada in the first international amateur all-star baseball series before 7,500 tonight.

Womack let down the stars from across the border with four hits, walking only two and fanning 11. The Canadians bunched three of their bingles in the seventh to score their only two runs.

Jimmy Steck of Waterbury, Conn., rounded out the scoring for the United States with a 400-foot homer inside the Municipal Stadium in the seventh.

The two picked teams will meet again tomorrow night. If the Canadians win, a third game will be played Sunday and the series winner meets a select Baltimore nine the same day.

Burton Skidmore of Lumberport, W. Va., started at second base for the Americans and played seven innings. He went hitless but scored one of the runs in the first inning after drawing a walk.

Tommy Powers of Cumberland, Md., played third base for the winners. He loaded the bases with a single to set up the two-run hit by Frank House of Bessemer, Ala.

Poffenberger Will Pitch Here Sunday

Amvets Name "Boots" To Oppose Hyndman

Cletus "Boots" Poffenberger, former Detroit Tiger twirler, will try for his fourth straight victory since joining the Amvets when he pitches against the Hyndman (Pa.) Firemen in a Bi-State League game Sunday at 2:30 p. m. at Taylor Field.

Announcement that Poffenberger will twirl tomorrow was made yesterday by Manager Norman Gerdeman. "Boots" has beaten Queen City 6-4, Barton 9-3 and Romney 12-0.

In other Bi-State games tomorrow, Westvaco is at Mt. Savage, Queen City at Barton, Frostburg at Midland and Lonaconing at Romney.

Today the Amvets are at Romney, Queen City at Mt. Savage, Barton at Midland and Lonaconing at Frostburg. Hyndman and Westvaco are idle, having played their game yesterday.

Four games are on tap in the Interstate Baseball League tomorrow.

Announcement was made last night that the Naval Reserve-Moorefield-Legion game at Moorefield has been transferred to Petersburg Sunday at 3 p. m. The game was moved from Moorefield to Petersburg because of a rodeo showing at the former place.

Two games are scheduled here tomorrow. The Loyal Order of Moose will play host to the front running Fort Cumberland Post, American Legion team, at Stitcher Field, while the Eagles and Centerville will tangle at Community Park. In another game, Ridgeley will play at Barrelville.

Jim Tucker Says Fairgo Is His Luckiest Track

Saddled Five Winners In 1946 Debut Here

James R. "Jim" Tucker of Baltimore didn't start training thoroughbred horses until April 1, 1946, but he enjoyed immediate success and he regards the Cumberland Fair Grounds half mile track as his luckiest because in his initial year he finished in second place among the leading winning trainers.

Tucker saddled five winners during the ten-day meeting here last year and scored twice with Time Play and Paula Grier. Norman "Junie" Corbin finished first in 1946 with six winners.

The first winner Tucker ever saddled was Time Play, the 11-year-old gelding which has won many a race at Charles Town, W. Va., and Maryland tracks.

Tucker rates Beau Wynn the best horse he ever saddled and he says Calumet Farms' Whirlaway is the best horse he ever saw.

"Jim" will return to Fairgo for the annual 10-day meeting which will get under way on Tuesday, August 19.

MONDAY GAMES

Lacy's at VFW (Rolling Mill)
Reed's at Amvets (East Side)
Astor Cab at Legion (Community)
Concord at Virginia Avenue (Taylor)
North End at Maccabees (Penn Avenue)

Lacy's Delicatets combined brilliant fielding with superb pitching on the part of Jim Roby and slugging by Vern Penner and Junior Hardy to smash the 14-game winning streak of the Cumberland Amvets in a City Softball League game yesterday at Community Park. The score was 5-1.

It was the first setback of the second half championship race for the Amvets but the pace setters are still on top by 3½ games over Astor Cab which trounced the Maccabees yesterday.

Jim Roby limited the Amvets to four hits, all singles, and the only run scored against him came in the 5th frame after the first half champions had piled up a 4-0 lead.

Hardy, Penner Hit Homers

Junior Hardy blasted a home run in the third with one aboard while Vern Penner hit his four-master in the fifth with the bases bare.

Lacy's team played errorless ball and executed two nice double plays. Walter "Pooch" Orndorff started one that nipped Lou Bell off third and Geatz at first while the other was started by Hardy after he had turned in a brilliant one-handed stab in the outfield in the 6th frame. Ted Durbin and William "Bee" Orndorff made sensational catches in the outer garden for the Delicatets.

A large crowd witnessed and heard the game over the Armbruster public address system which will be used for all important games and the playoffs at Community Park.

Astor Cab went on a hitting spree, banging out 15 hits to defeat the Bees on the Rolling Mill diamond, 16-3. Bill Underdonk was the big noise in this game. He hit a homer with two aboard, a triple with the sacks loaded and also collected two singles to account for seven runs batted in. Bill Dean and Charley Cumiskey had two bingles each. Cage played a nice game in centerfield for the Maccabees.

VFW Takes 3rd Place

The Veterans of Foreign Wars took over undisputed third place by defeating the North End Social and Athletic Club at Penn Avenue field, 8 to 2. Fradiska with three hits and Mulvey with two headed the North End Swatsmiths while Bagent had three hits in three trips and Giles had two safeties for the V.F.W.

Reed's Electricians won via the forfeit route when the Virginia Avenue Merchants were unable to field a team at East Side field.

The American Legion-Concord Clothiers game was postponed until next Tuesday. Scores:

Coaching Box Carnival

BENNY'S SERIOUS WHEN TRAILING

(This is the second of a series of 16 articles on baseball coaches.)

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

BROOKLYN — "Coaching may seem like a lot of fun to the fans in the stands," says Benny Bengough of the Phillies "but to the guy in the coaching box it's serious business.

Benny Bengough
Phillies

"Take the day I was coaching at first base for the Boston Braves in 1944. It happened right here in Ebbets Field. Max Macon got on base and stepped off a few feet. He turned to look at me for a signal and bing! Pitcher Les Webber picked him off first base. That was in the first inning.

"In the next inning Butch Nieman was on second. He stepped off base to look over at me in the coach's box and Webber picked him off.

"It was just one—or two—of those mental lapses. They seem funny to the fans in the stands but not to the coach."

Bengough, a very baldish fellow of 48, often gets a laugh from the fans when he lets his cap fall off and bares his shiny head.

"You can clown in the big leagues when you're ahead but not when you're behind," says Benny.

Bengough is coaching first base for the Phillies for the second season. He formerly coached at that station for the Braves. "Third base is tougher on a coach than first," he says. Before that he was a bullpen coach for the Washington Senators. During his playing days he was a catcher for eight years with the New York Yankees and two years with the St. Louis Browns.

The defeat was the third in a row for Blackwell following his string of 16 straight victories. He allowed the Cubs 12 hits but would have had a shutout victory except for Bert Haas' two-base error which led to Chicago's first run in the second. Box:

Australia Wins Davis Cup Match

Aussies Cop Doubles Contest From Canada

MONTREAL, Aug. 8 (AP) — Australia moved into the Davis cup inter-zone final against Czechoslovakia today, with the winner to take on the United States for the trophy, as a doubles team from "down under" made up of Jack Bromwich and Colin Long swept to an easy victory over Canada.

Bromwich and Long, the former a member of the last Australian team to win the Davis Cup in 1938, disposed of Gordie MacNeil and Edgar Lanthier with the loss of only three games in three sets. Australia also took the two opening singles matches yesterday, clinching the round with the victory in the doubles.

With the Australians assured now of triumph over Canada, the two singles matches tomorrow will be in the nature of a formality. Brandan Macken, who gave Geoff Brown quite a tussle yesterday, will face Dinny Pails, while Henri Rochon, beaten by Pails on opening day, will stack up against Brown, who possesses a whirlwind service.

A Little Light On Mole Hunts

MONTEREY, Calif. (AP)—Mrs. David Risling of San Luis Obispo won a how-to-kill-moles contest with this one.

Poke a hole into the runway, drop in a teaspoon of dry carbide (the kind used in miners' lamps), add a tablespoon of water—and cover the hole quickly. Fumes seep through the tunnels, kill the moles, but do not harm soil or plants.

In the hand-to-hand-combat school of thought, Mrs. L. M. Dole of Petaluma won honorable mention with:

"Ha! This is up my alley! If you see the soil moving, watch which way he's traveling and poke the hose nozzle, with a good force of water, behind him. He will fight his way up for air. Have a long-handled spading fork ready and he is yours. This has never failed me. . . ." Of course, she adds, you must get up early in the morning to spot him moving; or else catch him during his lunch or supper hours.

And Art Ora of Lakport says shucks, just point a shotgun below where the earth is moving and let 'er fly!

Bob Cook pitched and batted the Hyndman Firemen to a 4 to 3 victory over the Westvaco Club yesterday in a Bi-State Baseball League game at Hyndman, Pa., before a gathering of 1,100 persons.

The Hyndman twirler, who happens to be the son of Walter "Pete" Cook, the Firemen's playing manager, broke up the ball game in the 7th inning when he connected with one of Bill See's offerings and hammered it over third base to score Alton Nave with the run that broke a 3-3 deadlock. There were two away in the 7th when Nave and Bobby Shaffer walked. Then Cook delivered the payoff wallop.

Two Streaks Halted

The blow snapped team and individual winning streaks and narrowed Westvaco's lead to one-half game over the second place Amvets. Westvaco had won seven consecutive league games prior to yesterday's setback while Bill See had an unblemished league pitching record of 16-0 before yesterday's loss. Westvaco's last defeat was on July 5 at the hands of Mt. Savage.

Hyndman was first to crash the scoring column by getting two runs in the first frame. Pete Deremer hit to left and reached second on an error by Harry Sallada. He was sacrificed to third by Alton Nave and scored on Bobby Shaffer's base rap to center. Mosser booted Shaffer's hit and the batter went to second on the play. After Bob Cook fanned, his dad singled home Shaffer with the second run.

Papermakers Take 3-2 Lead

Westvaco scored in the second on "Bud" Mosser's single and George Pattison's two-bagger. The Papermakers took a 3-2 lead by scoring twice in the third. Manager Frankie Sullivan singled, took second on Forrest High's sacrifice and scored on Charley Tysinger's double. Sallada's base knock sent Tysinger across the plate.

Hyndman knotted the count at 3-3 in the sixth inning. Bob Cook walked. Attempting to sacrifice, Pete Cook forced Bob at second. Fred Porter then lashed out a triple to score the elder Cook with the tying marker.

Looter Is Show Horse

Keyser Marks V-J Week

Whelan Starred At C. U.

Coaches Warned By PIAA

By C. V. BURNS

Looter, the good looking 9-year-old chestnut gelding, which holds the record for five eighths of a mile at Fairgo, has been sold by Ed B. Lee to R. L. Cochrane of Bridgeport, Conn., who will convert the thoroughbred into a show ring horse.

According to information from Hagerstown, Looter's first ring appearance will be the second week of September at Long Island, N. Y.

Looter spriated the five-eighths in the record time of 55 seconds at Fairgo on August 11, 1945. "Bobby" Edens was aboard the speedster.

In his last race at Fairgo, August 24, 1945, Looter won the sixth race, defeating She's Scotch by three lengths.

The son of Hi-Jack and Cassie won 17 races for Ed Lee before he was sold.

The retail sales tax is in effect at the race tracks and at Hagerstown on Tuesday a horse claimed for $1,200 brought $24 into the coffers of the State of Maryland. Four claims at Bel Air netted the state $135.

Get your pennies ready for Fairgo because this year you'll pay one cent extra for a program, a tip sheet, a hot dog, soft drinks, etc.

The amateur boxing show to be presented by the Vigilant Reel and Hose Company at Keyser High School next Wednesday night will be one of the features marking Keyser's V-J Week celebration.

Firemen have worked hard in making the celebration a success and have planned all kinds of entertainment for the entire week.

When Jack O'Brien, the Midland ad, booted Toonerville ($14.60) and Westing ($16.20) to victory at the Hagerstown track yesterday he boosted his winning mounts for the meeting to five in four days.

He now holds second place among the riders at the Hub City oval.

Jimmy Baird who rode 57 winners at Charles Town paces the jockeys at Hagerstown with nine firsts. Patsy Grant and Sammy Austin have four each.

Tommy Whelan, who has been named to referee the intra-squad football game between members of the Baltimore Colts of the All-America Conference next Friday night at Fort Hill Stadium, was a star halfback at Catholic University, Washington, in the early 1930s and was given All-America mention.

Johnny Long recalled yesterday that Whelan played in the backfield for the Catholic University Freshmen in 1929 when LaSalle High played the Washington eleven. Long coached the Explorers that season.

While in Cumberland next week Whelan will be a guest of Long.

Jim Foti, head coach of Central High School athletic teams at Wheeling, W. Va., has been signed as advisory coach of the Wheeling team of the All-American Professional Basketball League, of which Cumberland is a member.

The announcement of Foti's signing is made by Mike Valan, owner of the Wheeling team. Foti is a graduate of John Carroll College where he was an all-around athlete. The Wheeling pro squad will report sometime in September.

Impatient scholastic football coaches in Pennsylvania have been advised by the P.I.A.A. not to "jump the gun" on pre-season training.

It is estimated that 50,000 schoolboys in the Keystone State will don the moleskins at the first opportunity and the 1,000 high schools affiliated with the state organization have been told that preliminary practice cannot be held prior to Monday, August 18.

The rules also provide that no member school can participate in any games prior to September 5.

The word "games" as it appears in the rules includes any games with another school team, whether it is merely a practice game or an actual scheduled game.

"You oughta see these fellows eat spaghetti," declared Lacy Cifala after his Delicatets had snapped the 14-game winning streak of the Amvets yesterday.

Lacy's players refer to yesterday's contest as the "Spaghetti Bowl Game".

Lesnevich Meets Mauriello Oct. 31

Pellone Will Test Williams Sept. 19

NEW YORK, Aug. 8—(AP)—The 20th Century Sporting Club today announced a ten-round non-title fight at Madison Square Garden Oct. 31 between light heavyweight champion Gus Lesnevich and Tami Mauriello.

Sol Strauss, acting director of 20th Century said he also expects to have a ten-round, over-the-weight bout signed soon between Lightweight Champion Ike Williams and Tony Pellone, New York welterweight, for Sept. 19.

The only hitch still to be ironed out was for Pellone to agree to come in at not over 143 pounds. Pellone defeated Bob Montgomery and Charley Fusari in his last two fights.

Williams' manager, Blinky Palermo, said the Pellone match would be one of four non-title bouts for Williams in various parts of the country before he makes his first defense of the undisputed 135-pound championship against Montgomery, whom he knocked out Monday in Philadelphia to win universal recognition.

BILLY FOX STOPS KOCHAN IN FOURTH

NEW YORK, Aug. 8. (AP) — Belting Billy Fox, who makes a specialty of putting other fellows to sleep, chalked up his 48th knockout victory in 49 professional starts tonight by stopping game Georgie Kochan in the fourth round of a ten rounder in Madison Square Garden. Fox scaled 171; Kochan 174.

Actually, Georgie was still on his feet and still trying at the finish of this one, and actually the only fellow who'd been on the floor during the proceedings, was the Philadelphia flailer.

But early in the fourth heat, the one-time Akron, Ohio barber, who now does his fighting out of New York, was hurt, and he had to hang on to save himself, so Referee Frank Fullam halted the proceedings at 1 minute 9 seconds of the fourth session.

BRITISH FIGHTER TROUNCES MARINO

MANCHESTER, England, Aug. 8—(AP)—Peter Kane, British bantamweight, outpointed Dado Marino of Honolulu in a ten-round fight tonight, hammering out a one-sided decision over the Hawaiian who has been named the logical contender for the recently vacated world flyweight title.

Kane, who weighed 117 pounds to Marino's 114¾, had his opponent in trouble frequently but could not score a knockout in hanging up the 11th straight triumph of his comeback campaign as a bantamweight.

Powers Gets Hit In All-Star Tilt

United States Wins Over Canadians, 6-2

BALTIMORE, Aug. 8 (AP)—Frank (Pancho) Womack, 17-year-old southpaw from Houston, Tex., pitched the United States nine, with the help of some lusty extra base blows, to a 6-2 victory over Canada in the first international amateur all-star baseball series before 7,500 tonight.

Womack let down the stars from across the border with four hits, walking only two and fanning 11. The Canadians bunched three of their bingles in the seventh to score their only two runs.

Jimmy Steck of Waterbury, Conn., rounded out the scoring for the United States with a 400-foot homer inside the Municipal Stadium in the seventh.

The two picked teams will meet again tomorrow night. If the Canadians win, a third game will be played Sunday and the series winner meets a select Baltimore nine the same day.

Burton Skidmore of Lumberport, W. Va., started at second base for the Americans and played seven innings. He went hitless but scored one of the runs in the first inning after drawing a walk.

Tommy Powers of Cumberland, Md., played third base for the winners. He loaded the bases with a single to set up the two-run hit by Frank House of Bessemer, Ala.

Poffenberger Will Pitch Here Sunday

Amvets Name "Boots" To Oppose Hyndman

Cletus "Boots" Poffenberger, former Detroit Tiger twirler, will try for his fourth straight victory since joining the Amvets when he pitches against the Hyndman (Pa.) Firemen in a Bi-State League game Sunday at 2:30 p. m. at Taylor Field.

Announcement that Poffenberger will twirl tomorrow was made yesterday by Manager Norman Gerdeman. "Boots" has beaten Queen City 6-4, Barton 9-3 and Romney 12-0.

In other Bi-State games tomorrow, Westvaco is at Mt. Savage, Queen City at Barton, Frostburg at Midland and Lonaconing at Romney.

Today the Amvets are at Romney, Queen City at Mt. Savage, Barton at Midland and Lonaconing at Frostburg, Hyndman and Westvaco are idle, having played their game yesterday.

Four games are on tap in the Interstate Baseball League tomorrow.

Announcement was made last night that the Naval Reserve-Moorefield-Legion game at Moorefield has been transferred to Petersburg Sunday at 3 p. m. The game was moved from Moorefield to Petersburg because of a rodeo showing at the former place.

Two games are scheduled here tomorrow. The Loyal Order of Moose will play host to the front running Fort Cumberland Post, American Legion team, at Stitcher Field, while the Eagles and Centerville will tangle at Community Park. In another game, Ridgeley will play at Barrelville.

Jim Tucker Says Fairgo Is His Luckiest Track

Saddled Five Winners In 1946 Debut Here

James R. "Jim" Tucker of Baltimore didn't start training thoroughbred horses until April 1, 1946, but he enjoyed immediate success and he regards the Cumberland Fair Grounds half mile track as his luckiest because in his initial year he finished in second place among the leading winning trainers.

Tucker saddled five winners during the ten-day meeting here last year and scored twice with Time Play and Paula Grier. Norman "Junie" Corbin finished first in 1946 with six winners.

The first winner Tucker ever saddled was Time Play, the 11-year-old gelding which has won many a race at Charles Town, W. Va., and Maryland tracks.

Tucker rates Beau Wynn the best horse he ever saddled and he says Calumet Farms' Whirlaway is the best horse he ever saw.

"Jim" will return to Fairgo for the annual 10-day meeting which will get under way on Tuesday, August 19.

MONDAY GAMES

Lacy's at VFW (Rolling Mill)
Reed's at Amvets (East Side)
Astor Cab at Legion (Community)
Concord at Virginia Avenue (Taylor)
North End at Maccabees (Penn Avenue)

Lacy's Delicatets combined brilliant fielding with superb pitching on the part of Jim Roby and slugging by Vern Penner and Junior Hardy to smash the 14-game winning streak of the Cumberland Amvets in a City Softball League game yesterday at Community Park. The score was 5-1.

It was the first setback of the second half championship race for the Amvets but the pace setters are still on top by 3½ games over Astor Cab which trounced the Maccabees yesterday.

Jim Roby limited the Amvets to four hits, all singles, and the only run scored against him came in the 5th frame after the first half champions had piled up a 4-0 lead.

Hardy, Penner Hit Homers

Junior Hardy blasted a home run in the third with one aboard while Vern Penner hit his four-master in the fifth with the bases bare.

Lacy's team played errorless ball and executed two nice double plays. Walter "Pooch" Orndorff started one that nipped Lou Bell off third and Geatz at first while the other was started by Hardy after he had turned in a brilliant one-handed stab in the outfield in the 6th frame. Ted Durbin and William "Bee" Orndorff made sensational catches in the outer garden for the Delicatets.

A large crowd witnessed and heard the game over the Armbruster public address system which will be used for all important games and the playoffs at Community Park.

Astor Cab went on a hitting spree, banging out 15 hits to defeat the Bees on the Rolling Mill diamond, 16-3. Bill Underdonk was the big noise in this game. He hit a homer with two aboard, a triple with the sacks loaded and also collected two singles to account for seven runs batted in. Bill Dean and Charley Cumiskey had two bingles each. Cage played a nice game in centerfield for the Maccabees.

VFW Takes 3rd Place

The Veterans of Foreign Wars took over undisputed third place by defeating the North End Social and Athletic Club at Penn Avenue field, 8 to 2. Fradiska with three hits and Mulvey with two headed the North End Swatsmiths while Bagent had three hits in three trips and Giles had two safeties for the V.F.W.

Reed's Electricians won via the forfeit route when the Virginia Avenue Merchants were unable to field a team at East Side field.

The American Legion-Concord Clothiers game was postponed until next Tuesday. Scores:

Coaching Box Carnival

BENNY'S SERIOUS WHEN TRAILING

(This is the second of a series of 16 articles on baseball coaches.)

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

BROOKLYN — "Coaching may seem like a lot of fun to the fans in the stands," says Benny Bengough of the Phillies "but to the guy in the coaching box it's serious business.

Benny Bengough
Phillies

"Take the day I was coaching at first base for the Boston Braves in 1944. It happened right here in Ebbets Field. Max Macon got on base and stepped off a few feet. He turned to look at me for a signal and bing! Pitcher Les Webber picked him off first base. That was in the first inning.

"In the next inning Butch Nieman was on second. He stepped off base to look over at me in the coach's box and Webber picked him off.

"It was just one—or two—of those mental lapses. They seem funny to the fans in the stands but not to the coach."

Bengough, a very baldish fellow of 48, often gets a laugh from the fans when he lets his cap fall off and bares his shiny head.

"You can clown in the big leagues when you're ahead but not when you're behind," says Benny.

Bengough is coaching first base for the Phillies for the second season. He formerly coached at that station for the Braves. "Third base is tougher on a coach than first," he says. Before that he was a bullpen coach for the Washington Senators. During his playing days he was a catcher for eight years with the New York Yankees and two years with the St. Louis Browns.

Winning the third and deciding game of their series with the Williams Street Merchants yesterday at Fort Hill field, 4-3, the Redmen gained the right to play Cadillac in a best-of-five-game series for the championship of the Junior City Softball League.

Eckard held Williams Street to three hits in yesterday's game. One was Bill Turner's 5th homer of the season.

Williams Street played minus the services of its pitching ace, Garton, who is hospitalized.

During the regular season the Redmen finished third and the Cadillac team was in fourth place.

The defeat was the third in a row for Blackwell following his string of 16 straight victories. He allowed the Cubs 12 hits but would have had a shutout victory except for Bert Haas' two-base error which led to Chicago's first run in the second. Box:

Australia Wins Davis Cup Match

Aussies Cop Doubles Contest From Canada

MONTREAL, Aug. 8 (AP) — Australia moved into the Davis cup inter-zone final against Czechoslovakia today, with the winner to take on the United States for the trophy, as a doubles team from "down under" made up of Jack Bromwich and Colin Long swept to an easy victory over Canada.

Bromwich and Long, the former a member of the last Australian team to win the Davis Cup in 1938, disposed of Gordie MacNeil and Edgar Lanthier with the loss of only three games in three sets. Australia also took the two opening singles matches yesterday, clinching the round with the victory in the doubles.

With the Australians assured now of triumph over Canada, the two singles matches tomorrow will be in the nature of a formality. Brandan Macken, who gave Geoff Brown quite a tussle yesterday, will face Dinny Pails, while Henri Rochon, beaten by Pails on opening day, will stack up against Brown, who possesses a whirlwind service.

A Little Light On Mole Hunts

MONTEREY, Calif. (AP)—Mrs. David Risling of San Luis Obispo won a how-to-kill-moles contest with this one.

Poke a hole into the runway, drop in a teaspoon of dry carbide (the kind used in miners' lamps), add a tablespoon of water—and cover the hole quickly. Fumes seep through the tunnels, kill the moles, but do not harm soil or plants.

In the hand-to-hand-combat school of thought, Mrs. L. M. Dole of Petaluma won honorable mention with:

"Ha! This is up my alley! If you see the soil moving, watch which way he's traveling and poke the hose nozzle, with a good force of water, behind him. He will fight his way up for air. Have a long-handled spading fork ready and he is yours. This has never failed me. . . ." Of course, she adds, you must get up early in the morning to spot him moving; or else catch him during his lunch or supper hours.

And Art Ora of Lakport says shucks, just point a shotgun below where the earth is moving and let 'er fly!

BECKLEY, W. Va., Aug. 8—(AP)—Despite seven errors behind him, Junior Blaney pitched Morgantown into the State American Legion Junior Baseball Championship today with a 5-3 triumph over Beckley's defending title-holders.

The victory, which came after Beckley eliminated South Charleston with an 8-5, 10-inning decision this morning, qualified Morgantown for the regional tournament in which winners from Delaware, Maryland and the District of Columbia also will take part at Parkersburg beginning August 13.

BOSOX SPILL YANKS

BOSTON, Aug. 8. (AP)—Thanks to three lusty home runs the Boston Red Sox tonight whipped the Yankees 9-6 to move into second place, 12½ games in back of the front running New Yorkers. The second largest night crowd of the season, 34,711 paid, howled as Bobby Doerr whacked a three run homer, Jake Jones stroked a one-run affair and Sam Mele belted a two-run four bagger. Tommy Henrich homered for the New Yorkers. Score:

Keiser Holds Lead In Spokane Tourney

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 8 (AP)—Herman Keiser, of Akron, Ohio added a one-under-par 69 to his 65 of yesterday to rank as the pace setter today in the $10,000 Esmeralda Open Golf Tourney at 134, with only a few of the 125 entrants still on the course.

Among them, however, was Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., who was tied with Keiser at the end of the first 18 yesterday, and Bud Ward, the western amateur king.

Ted Neist, Walla Walla, Wash., had the best round of the day to this point with 66 and was in a second place tie with Ed Furgol of Pontiac, Mich., with 138.

Bench Warrant Issued For O'Donnell's Arrest

BALTIMORE, Aug. 8—(AP)—A bench warrant was issued here today for the arrest of James S. O'Donnell, Washington resident who failed to appear to begin a two-year sentence for running a "ringer" at Pimlico.

Roland B. Sanner, College Park, convicted along with O'Donnell, surrendered yesterday to start an 18-month term in the Maryland House of Correction.

Judge E. Paul Mason of the Baltimore City court issued the warrant for O'Donnell when Assistant State Attorney Alan H. Murrell told the court O'Donnell could not be found at his home.

Bob Cook Wins His Own Game In 7th Frame

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS

Bob Cook pitched and batted the Hyndman Firemen to a 4 to 3 victory over the Westvaco Club yesterday in a Bi-State Baseball League game at Hyndman, Pa., before a gathering of 1,100 persons.

The Hyndman twirler, who happens to be the son of Walter "Pete" Cook, the Firemen's playing manager, broke up the ball game in the 7th inning when he connected with one of Bill See's offerings and hammered it over third base to score Alton Nave with the run that broke a 3-3 deadlock. There were two away in the 7th when Nave and Bobby Shaffer walked. Then Cook delivered the payoff wallop.

Two Streaks Halted

The blow snapped team and individual winning streaks and narrowed Westvaco's lead to one-half game over the second place Amvets. Westvaco had won seven consecutive league games prior to yesterday's setback while Bill See had an unblemished league pitching record of 16-0 before yesterday's loss. Westvaco's last defeat was on July 5 at the hands of Mt. Savage.

Hyndman was first to crash the scoring column by getting two runs in the first frame. Pete Deremer hit to left and reached second on an error by Harry Sallada. He was sacrificed to third by Alton Nave and scored on Bobby Shaffer's base rap to center. Mosser booted Shaffer's hit and the batter went to second on the play. After Bob Cook fanned, his dad singled home Shaffer with the second run.

Papermakers Take 3-2 Lead

Westvaco scored in the second on "Bud" Mosser's single and George Pattison's two-bagger. The Papermakers took a 3-2 lead by scoring twice in the third. Manager Frankie Sullivan singled, took second on Forrest High's sacrifice and scored on Charley Tysinger's double. Sallada's base knock sent Tysinger across the plate.

Hyndman knotted the count at 3-3 in the sixth inning. Bob Cook walked. Attempting to sacrifice, Pete Cook forced Bob at second. Fred Porter then lashed out a triple to score the elder Cook with the tying marker.

Westvaco threatened in the 9th but Sullivan, attempting to score the tying run, was thrown out at the plate. Sullivan and Catcher Alton Nave got into a mixup at the plate on the final play of the game and when one of the Westvaco players came out swinging at Nave, who was on the ground, the crowd gathered on the field but trouble was averted.

Cook Bags 6th Win

The victory was Bob Cook's sixth against two defeats. He issued two walks and fanned five. See gave up four free tickets and struck out six. The game concluded the regular season series between the clubs. West

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 8 — Greer Garson walked into Louis B. Mayer's office today to sign her new contract, but when she went to put her signature on the dotted line, there was no contract. All three copies had been sent to Greer and she had left them at home, but it didn't take long to locate the missing papers.

Wayne Morris

It's interesting that Greer has, after some weeks indecision, decided to remain on a new deal with L. B. and his company. I felt sure that Garson, who has been the queen of the lot, would stay with the studio that has given her "Mrs. Miniver," "Random Harvest," "Madame Curie" and other best selling movies.

She was a little upset over "Desire Me" and "Adventure," but I am told that Mervin Le Roy pulled "Desire Me" out of the fire, and his remake will surprise everybody.

I was surprised to hear from Boston that Bette Davis' home, "Butternut," at Sugar Hill, New Hampshire, is on the market for sale. Bette has always been so crazy about Butternut, and it was there she originally wanted to have her baby born. But after a little of the winter weather she came back to California where her daughter first saw the light of day.

For Bette's return picture, "Winterset," she gets Bretagne Windust, who currently produced "Finian's Rainbow" and before that brought to the stage "Life With Father," "Arsenic And Old Lace" and a really imposing list of stage hits.

He was brought here by Warners to direct "The Patriots," but his first will be "Winterset."

The latest British actress to listen to England's plea to remain in England is Ann Todd. She was to have returned to Hollywood this fall, but now has arranged to stay in her own country and make H. G. Wells' "Passionate Friend" for J. Arthur Rank. The picture, to be known as a Ronald Neame production, gets going in January, and will certainly take until Spring to finish.

Perhaps Miss Todd will come later, but with her children in England she has practically made up her mind that her own country is the best place for her and her husband. At least this is the last word from there.

The Arrowhead Lake vacation of Loretta Young and Tom Lewis almost ended in tragedy and Loretta is still ill from the shock.

Their two-year-old son, Peter, (and the cutest thing you ever saw) wanted to go out on a raft with the older children. Suddenly he fell off, and it was the luckiest thing in the world that his father happened to be watching from the beach for none of the other children could swim.

Tom was at the side of his baby on in nothing flat—but it was a narrow escape for the child had to be given artificial respiration on the beach. The doctors say a few days in bed and he will be all right.

Chatter in Hollywood: The boys are at it again—I mean turning a night spot into a squared-ring while they trade punches. The latest battle took place in a valley night club as follows:

Wayne Morris came in and sat down at the piano. Not long after, Billy De Wolf entered with another party and started ribbing Wayne, making a few cracks about "actors who always have to be in the spotlight."

Morris took it for a little while and then came out swinging. Billy ducked and then swung a couple himself. Friends and bystanders, as per custom, separated the warriors.

End of round one—and end of this latest battle of the minds.

Burt Lancaster really has something to say on my radio show Sunday. Burt, who has played the toughest roles of any actor on the screen, made a big name for himself, and is probably the most sensational star of 1946-47. He's going to talk about a surprising subject, but listen and hear for yourself.

I've had hundreds of letters since I announced Burt was going to be on my show. That boy certainly, in two pictures, has made himself popular. If Mark Hellinger could discover a few more like him he could retire for life and be a rich man. But we don't want Mark to retire.

Burt who won his success being tough, like James Mason, slapping women. The gals seem to like 'em when they aren't too polite.

Most of us can use a few laughs these days, and I don't know when I've had such a real laugh as when I saw "Her Husband's Affair" with Lucille Ball and Franchot Tone, a Columbia made comedy.

This one is different, and the dialogue and script, an original written by Ben Hecht and Charlie Lederer, has lines that are positively hilarious. You forget the heat and all the other unhappy things that upset your day. The audiences at the prevues simply yelled—it's that funny.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Ali Apar has left for his native Turkey, called there by the serious illness of his father. Virginia Bruce, his bride, joins him as soon as she finishes "The Night Has a Thousand Eyes" at Paramount. Virginia and Ali had a farewell dinner at the Seacombers. She was the only gal in a party of six men. A very pleasant evening I would say.

Before Tyrone Power takes off on his European jaunt he and Lana Turner will be the guests of friends on a yacht which will head for Mexican waters.

Vincente Minnelli and his little daughter, Liza, sit on the beach at Malibu practically every day. Judy Garland, meanwhile, is improving and will soon be back with them.

Mickey Rooney and his wife, looking very smart in a gorgeous white gown, walked into Ciro's. But it wasn't Mrs. R. that all eyes were turned—it was on a new mustache Mickey is sporting. Can you bear it?

Paulette Goddard returns September 15 after several months in Europe.

Bill Holden and Brenda Marshall celebrated their sixth wedding anniversary, but she didn't get diamond earrings or a furcoat. She got what she asked for—an electric dish washer and one of those new automatic garbage dispensers.

Rosalind Russell has every right to be mighty proud of the wire she received from Eugene O'Neill after he saw "Mourning Becomes Electra." It reads: "Miss Russell, yours is the greatest sustained performance I have ever witnessed." Roz and O'Neill have never met.

A happy pair of dancers at the Chanteclair were Cesar Romero and Georgia Gibbs.

Maxine Jennings Saltonstall, who was divorced two weeks ago in Reno from Philip Saltonstall, nephew of the former governor of Massachusettes, will marry Director B. Ross Lederman. Her ex-husband married three days ago. They didn't lose any time.

That's all today.

Must Wear Pants

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 8 (AP)—It's legal for the ladies to show their legs on Albany's tennis courts, but the men must hide theirs.

With the mercury hovering around 90 degrees, the Department of Public Works leveled a "wear pants or don't play" order at the men today, after a complaint that the courts were "being turned into a nudist colony."

The complaint was one of several that followed the appearance of men players wearing abbreviated bathing trunks.

Nothing was said about the girls' attire.

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 8 — Greer Garson walked into Louis B. Mayer's office today to sign her new contract, but when she went to put her signature on the dotted line, there was no contract. All three copies had been sent to Greer and she had left them at home, but it didn't take long to locate the missing papers.

Wayne Morris

It's interesting that Greer has, after some weeks indecision, decided to remain on a new deal with L. B. and his company. I felt sure that Garson, who has been the queen of the lot, would stay with the studio that has given her "Mrs. Miniver," "Random Harvest," "Madame Curie" and other best selling movies.

She was a little upset over "Desire Me" and "Adventure," but I am told that Mervin Le Roy pulled "Desire Me" out of the fire, and his remake will surprise everybody.

I was surprised to hear from Boston that Bette Davis' home, "Butternut," at Sugar Hill, New Hampshire, is on the market for sale. Bette has always been so crazy about Butternut, and it was there she originally wanted to have her baby born. But after a little of the winter weather she came back to California where her daughter first saw the light of day.

For Bette's return picture, "Winterset," she gets Bretagne Windust, who currently produced "Finian's Rainbow" and before that brought to the stage "Life With Father," "Arsenic And Old Lace" and a really imposing list of stage hits.

He was brought here by Warners to direct "The Patriots," but his first will be "Winterset."

The latest British actress to listen to England's plea to remain in England is Ann Todd. She was to have returned to Hollywood this fall, but now has arranged to stay in her own country and make H. G. Wells' "Passionate Friend" for J. Arthur Rank. The picture, to be known as a Ronald Neame production, gets going in January, and will certainly take until Spring to finish.

Perhaps Miss Todd will come later, but with her children in England she has practically made up her mind that her own country is the best place for her and her husband. At least this is the last word from there.

The Arrowhead Lake vacation of Loretta Young and Tom Lewis almost ended in tragedy and Loretta is still ill from the shock.

Their two-year-old son, Peter, (and the cutest thing you ever saw) wanted to go out on a raft with the older children. Suddenly he fell off, and it was the luckiest thing in the world that his father happened to be watching from the beach for none of the other children could swim.

Tom was at the side of his baby son in nothing flat—but it was a narrow escape for the child had to be given artificial respiration on the beach. The doctors say a few days in bed and he will be all right.

Chatter in Hollywood: The boys are at it again—I mean turning a night spot into a squared-ring while they trade punches. The latest battle took place in a valley night club as follows:

Wayne Morris came in and sat down at the piano. Not long after, Billy De Wolf entered with another party and started ribbing Wayne, making a few cracks about "actors who always have to be in the spotlight."

Morris took it for a little while and then came out swinging. Billy ducked and then swung a couple himself. Friends and bystanders, as per custom, separated the warriors.

End of round one—and end of this latest battle of the minds.

Burt Lancaster really has something to say on my radio show Sunday. Burt, who has played the toughest roles of any actor on the screen, made a big name for himself, and is probably the most sensational star of 1946-47. He's going to talk about a surprising subject, but listen and hear for yourself.

I've had hundreds of letters since I announced Burt was going to be on my show. That boy certainly, in two pictures, has made himself popular. If Mark Hellinger could discover a few more like him he could retire for life and be a rich man. But we don't want Mark to retire.

Burt who won his success being tough, like James Mason, slapping women. The gals seem to like 'em when they aren't too polite.

Most of us can use a few laughs these days, and I don't know when I've had such a real laugh as when I saw "Her Husband's Affair" with Lucille Ball and Franchot Tone, a Columbia made comedy.

This one is different, and the dialogue and script, an original written by Ben Hecht and Charlie Lederer, has lines that are positively hilarious. You forget the heat and all the other unhappy things that upset your day. The audiences at the prevues simply yelled—it's that funny.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Ali Apar has left for his native Turkey, called there by the serious illness of his father. Virginia Bruce, his bride, joins him as soon as she finishes "The Night Has a Thousand Eyes" at Paramount. Virginia and Ali had a farewell dinner at the Seacombers. She was the only gal in a party of six men. A very pleasant evening I would say.

Before Tyrone Power takes off on his European jaunt he and Lana Turner will be the guests of friends on a yacht which will head for Mexican waters.

Vincente Minnelli and his little daughter, Liza, sit on the beach at Malibu practically every day. Judy Garland, meanwhile, is improving and will soon be back with them.

Mickey Rooney and his wife, looking very smart in a gorgeous white gown, walked into Ciro's. But it wasn't Mrs. R. that all eyes were turned—it was on a new mustache Mickey is sporting. Can you bear it?

Paulette Goddard returns September 15 after several months in Europe.

Bill Holden and Brenda Marshall celebrated their sixth wedding anniversary, but she didn't get diamond earrings or a furcoat. She got what she asked for—an electric dish washer and one of those new automatic garbage dispensers.

Rosalind Russell has every right to be mighty proud of the wire she received from Eugene O'Neill after he saw "Mourning Becomes Electra." It reads: "Miss Russell, yours is the greatest sustained performance I have ever witnessed." Roz and O'Neill have never met.

A happy pair of dancers at the Chanteclair were Cesar Romero and Georgia Gibbs.

Maxine Jennings Saltonstall, who was divorced two weeks ago in Reno from Philip Saltonstall, nephew of the former governor of Massachusettes, will marry Director B. Ross Lederman. Her ex-husband married three days ago. They didn't lose any time.

That's all today.

Must Wear Pants

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 8 (AP)—It's legal for the ladies to show their legs on Albany's tennis courts, but the men must hide theirs.

With the mercury hovering around 90 degrees, the Department of Public Works leveled a "wear pants or don't play" order at the men today, after a complaint that the courts were "being turned into a nudist colony."

The complaint was one of several that followed the appearance of men players wearing abbreviated bathing trunks.

Nothing was said about the girls' attire.

Dairy Farmers To Begin Artificial Breeding Project

By GEORGE H. HANST

OAKLAND, Md., Aug. 8 — Dairy farmers in the southern part of this county have organized a breeding circuit of the Maryland Artificial Breeding Cooperative, Inc., and will start the program next week after state officials visit the county, it was announced by John H. Carter, county agent.

Dairy farmers in the county already have put into action the two most essential factors to determine efficiency in their dairy herds, breeding and records. At present there are two full-time dairy herd improvement associations, with Association No. 1 in the Oakland area employing Orville Wolf as tester, and Association No. 2 in the Grantsville area employing Joseph A. Lewis as tester.

This new organization will further develop the dairy industry in this county.

The starting of artificial breeding will make available to county dairymen the latest and most efficient method of the use of proved sires to the largest number of dairymen. There are 572 cows enrolled by over 60 farmers and it is expected that this number soon will be increased to 1,000. A meeting of the membership on Tuesday, August 12, at 8 o'clock p. m., standard time, at the Sunnyside Grange Hall, has been called by John H. Carter, county agent.

Dr. Edwin Weatherby, manager of the Maryland Breeding Cooperative, will meet with members of the circuit, discussing all details in the operation of the circuit. Mr. Carter said other dairymen who are interested are invited to take part in the meeting.

The group has already elected a board of managers, which includes Blair Simmons, D. I. Swartzentruber, Artie Dodge, Wayne Hamilton and Paul Welch.

Miss Custer Wins Contest

Miss Evelyn Custer of the North Glade 4-H club was chosen winner of the Miss Farmerette Achievement contest sponsored by the associated women of the county farm bureau, which was held in connection with the county-wide farm picnic recently near Bittinger. Second place went to Betty Lou Glotfelty, of near Bittinger.

Judges were Mrs. Robert T. Hoffman, former demonstration agent here, Mrs. Alexander Gow, and Miss Eloise Borrer. As the winner Miss Custer will get expenses to go to the Timonium Fair to participate in the state contest.

To be eligible the entrants had to be 16 to 18, unmarried, maintaining permanent home on the farm, but who may be working in town or attending college. Educational qualifications were home economics in high school and active as a 4-H club member. Work done in home activities, clothing, household and farm activities and financial success counted 50 per cent in judging, with personality of the contestant as the other 50 per cent.

The baby beef, raised by Guy Harvey, 15, member of the North Glade 4-H club and son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl K. Harvey, was declared the winner at the showing of baby beeves at the picnic.

The show is preliminary to the national show in Pittsburgh later this fall. Each 4-H boy who entered his animal was awarded a $5 prize. The grand champion was awarded an additional $8 and the reserve champion $5.

Guy Harvey's winner was an Angus. The reserve champion was a Hereford owned by Melvin Custer. In the Angus show were the following: Guy Harvey, first; Ernest Harvey, second; Arthur Harvey, third, all sons of Earl K. Harvey. Herefords: Melvin Custer, first; Dale Custer, second; and Fred Harvey, third. Custers are sons of Heyward Custer and Harvey is another son of Earl K. Harvey. In the Shorthorn class William Stanton, Grantsville, was the winner. Two other sons of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey had entries: Robert and Earl Harvey, Jr.

The judging was done by Ural G. Bee, livestock specialist, University of Maryland.

Miss Keva Jean Goff

Miss Keva Jean Goff Will Make Debut In London In September

Young Soprano Will Sing In Wigmore Hall

By HELEN COLLETT

PARSONS, Aug. 8—Keva Jean Goff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Robinson, Spokane, Wash., left Hambleton on Friday for New York City from where she and her mother will sail for London, England, to make her debut in the musical world.

Miss Goff, a direct descendant of the founder of the town of Hambleton, and one of the first settlers in Tucker County, had arrived here on Wednesday to spend several weeks with her grandmother, Mrs. Chalotte Goff Norton, with whom she has spent a part of her 18 years. She was scheduled to be the guest at the annual Homecoming to be held here August 17 in the Goff Memorial Church.

Toured Unitd States

The lyric soprano is one of the few to have been accepted by Lynford-Joel of London who will sponcor her debut on September 16th in the Wigmore Hall under the direction of her teacher, Leo Silvera, New York. Miss Goff had cancelled her singing lessons for the summer months to accept the gift from her father on her 18th birthday which was a tour of California, New and Old Mexico, New Orleans, Florida, Ohio, Washington, D. C., and then to Hambleton. She received the cable while here to leave for London at once to have the only open date in Wigmore Hall for the coming year.

The talent of Miss Goff was first noted in Spokane in 1944 where she was a sophomore in Lewis and Clark High School. She was a member of the First Baptist Church choir there winning a scholarship to Camp Interlochen, Mich., a nationally known music camp. While there she was chosen to sing in the Mozart opera, "Casi Fan Tutti," and was also featured as a soloist on several broadcasts. After winning recognition at District Festival and Washington State Musical auditions she went to New York City, to study under the famous Dr. William Pierce Hermann. Miss Goff was accompanied by her mother who is also well known as an accomplished pianist.

Sang In Tucker County

In July 1946 she returned to her native town at the age of 17 to make her first recital in music in the church of her ancestors, the Goff Memorial Church. She also sang at a recital sponsored by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in Parsons. Upon her return to Spokane in August the demands for her appearance in public were numerous and she was featured as guest soloist at the Spokane Chapter of the Washington Spastic Children's Society.

Before leaving New York for her home in Washington state at Christmas time she visited in Washington, D. C., where she sang for 300 amputees at Walter Reed Hospital. She was featured as a soloist at the First Baptist Church in Akron, O.

While on vacation at her home she was invited to be soloist at the Fort George Wright Chapel and Galena Chapel. The First Baptist Church in Spokane featured her in their Christmas concert when she sang "My Heart is a Silent Prayer." Maryland National Guard Plans $140,000 Armory For Oakland

Temporary Quarters For Unit Are Sought

By GEORGE H. HANST

OAKLAND, Aug. 8. — Military strength of 10,000 men is being sought for the Maryland National Guard and the way is open for Garrett County to have a vital part in this program.

Lt. Col. Christian L. Claypoole, infantry, Maryland National Guard, has conferred here with A. G. Hesen, mayor; Lawrence M. Fraley, State Senator; Ronald E. McIntire, member of the House of Delegates, and Edward P. Kahl, adjutant of Legion Post No. 71, and made a survey of the possibilities of erecting a proposed armory in Garrett County. According to Mr. Hesen, Col. Claypoole was well pleased with buildings in or near Oakland that could be used as temporary quarters for the unit. The "go" signal for building the $140,000 armory will be given as soon as personnel and temporary quarters are provided, Col. Claypoole said.

Armory Requirements Listed

Requirements outlined by the Colonel for temporary housing include a drill hall that is fire and burglar proof and has at least a 50x60 feet room for storing property and for office space. The county must pay for the upkeep of its temporary quarters such as light, heat, and janitor service, but the state will maintain the expense of the armory when built. The size of the armory site will be 100 by 200 feet and is to be donated to the state by either the county, city or some organization. All incorporated communities will be asked to send representatives to meet in the near future to discuss the project in detail, Mr. Hesen said.

The number of personnel required for federal recognition depends upon the type of unit organized. Any of three units can be started: an Engineer combat company, a Field Artillery battery, or a military police unit, which is composed of infantry members. Full complement of the engineers which has the greatest strength of three, is five officers and 167 enlisted men. The unit can be recognized, however, with fewer members, it was pointed out.

Members To Be Paid

Those who enlist in the Maryland national guard will be paid for their services according to the rank they hold. Privates will receive $2.50 for the weekly two-hour sessions while the higher rated non-commissioned officers such as master or first sergeants are paid $5.50. Physical and educational erquirements are the same as those for the regular army and the age limit extends from 18 to 45 years.

Proctor Kildow Post No. 71, American Legion, and the Luther and Henry Schmidt Post 5282, VFW, have voted unanimously to assist with recruiting and the establishment of the county unit. No committees have been assigned as yet but the VFW has decided to use its full strength of about 60 men to further the project, Joseph M. Gonder, stated.

At the regular meeting of the County Commissioners this week the members appointed Lawrence M. Fraley to serve on the Savage River Dam Commission. He takes the place of the late George Warnick.

Other two members of the commission are Owen Hitchins and John J. McMullen, Allegany County.

The commissioners have asked the mayors of incorporated towns to meet with them next Monday, August 11, at 10 p. m., standard time, with reference to the allocation of state race track money to the various towns.

The commissioners also had several road delegations before them.

Engagement Announced

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Audrey Sperry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Sperry, Meyersdale, Pa., to Irvin Feld, son of Mrs. F. H. Feld, Second Street, and the late Mr. Feld. The wedding will be an event of September.

Miss Sperry was recently graduated from the Memorial Hospital School of Nursing, Cumberland. Mr. Feld, a graduate of Oakland High School and the Wharton School of Business of the University of Pennsylvania in 1939, is owner and manager of the Half Price Stores. He was discharged in 1946 from the Army Quartermaster Corps, with the rank of captain, after having served in New Guinea and the Philippines.

Dairy Farmers To Begin Artificial Breeding Project

By GEORGE H. HANST

OAKLAND, Md., Aug. 8 — Dairy farmers in the southern part of this county have organized a breeding circuit of the Maryland Artificial Breeding Cooperative, Inc., and will start the program next week after state officials visit the county, it was announced by John H. Carter, county agent.

Dairy farmers in the county already have put into action the two most essential factors to determine efficiency in their dairy herds, breeding and records. At present there are two full-time dairy herd improvement associations, with Association No. 1 in the Oakland area employing Orville Wolf as tester, and Association No. 2 in the Grantsville area employing Joseph A. Lewis as tester.

This new organization will further develop the dairy industry in this county.

The starting of artificial breeding will make available to county dairymen the latest and most efficient method of the use of proved sires to the largest number of dairymen. There are 572 cows enrolled by over 60 farmers and it is expected that this number soon will be increased to 1,000. A meeting of the membership on Tuesday, August 12, at 8 o'clock p. m., standard time, at the Sunnyside Grange Hall, has been called by John H. Carter, county agent.

Dr. Edwin Weatherby, manager of the Maryland Breeding Cooperative, will meet with members of the circuit, discussing all details in the operation of the circuit. Mr. Carter said other dairymen who are interested are invited to take part in the meeting.

The group has already elected a board of managers, which includes Blair Simmons, D. I. Swartzentruber, Artie Dodge, Wayne Hamilton and Paul Welch.

The lyric soprano is one of the few to have been accepted by Lynford-Joel of London who will sponcor her debut on September 16th in the Wigmore Hall under the direction of her teacher, Leo Silvera, New York. Miss Goff had cancelled her singing lessons for the summer months to accept the gift from her father on her 18th birthday which was a tour of California, New and Old Mexico, New Orleans, Florida, Ohio, Washington, D. C., and then to Hambleton. She received the cable while here to leave for London at once to have the only open date in Wigmore Hall for the coming year.

The talent of Miss Goff was first noted in Spokane in 1944 where she was a sophomore in Lewis and Clark High School. She was a member of the First Baptist Church choir there winning a scholarship to Camp Interlochen, Mich., a nationally known music camp. While there she was chosen to sing in the Mozart opera, "Casi Fan Tutti," and was also featured as a soloist on several broadcasts. After winning recognition at District Festival and Washington State Musical auditions she went to New York City, to study under the famous Dr. William Pierce Hermann. Miss Goff was accompanied by her mother who is also well known as an accomplished pianist.

Sang In Tucker County

In July 1946 she returned to her native town at the age of 17 to make her first recital in music in the church of her ancestors, the Goff Memorial Church. She also sang at a recital sponsored by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in Parsons. Upon her return to Spokane in August the demands for her appearance in public were numerous and she was featured as guest soloist at the Spokane Chapter of the Washington Spastic Children's Society.

Before leaving New York for her home in Washington state at Christmas time she visited in Washington, D. C., where she sang for 300 amputees at Walter Reed Hospital. She was featured as a soloist at the First Baptist Church in Akron, O.

While on vacation at her home she was invited to be soloist at the Fort George Wright Chapel and Galena Chapel. The First Baptist Church in Spokane featured her in their Christmas concert when she sang "My Heart is a Silent Prayer." She was chosen from 1,000 entries and from the final contestants for a scholarship sponsored by the American Legion and the Association of Music Teachers of Spokane to sing the part of "Nadda" in Metropolitan Opera's Guild of Seattle.

Soloist At Convention

Her performance in the annual convention of the Voice Department of the Lewis and Clark school rated her as most popular soloist at the meeting. Other invitatons during the two weeks included the Pacific North West Conference, the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, the Federation of Women's Organization convention; the 78th Anniversary meeting of the P. E. O.'s and the annual convention of the Advertising and Sales Association in Washington state.

When she returned to New York she studied under Leo Silvera, her present teacher, until July when she

Temporary Quarters For Unit Are Sought

By GEORGE H. HANST

OAKLAND, Aug. 8. — Military strength of 10,000 men is being sought for the Maryland National Guard and the way is open for Garrett County to have a vital part in this program.

Lt. Col. Christian L. Claypoole, infantry, Maryland National Guard, has conferred here with A. G. Hesen, mayor; Lawrence M. Fraley, State Senator; Ronald E. McIntire, member of the House of Delegates, and Edward P. Kahl, adjutant of Legion Post No. 71, and made a survey of the possibilities of erecting a proposed armory in Garrett County. According to Mr. Hesen, Col. Claypoole was well pleased with buildings in or near Oakland that could be used as temporary quarters for the unit. The "go" signal for building the $140,000 armory will be given as soon as personnel and temporary quarters are provided, Col. Claypoole said.

Armory Requirements Listed

Requirements outlined by the Colonel for temporary housing include a drill hall that is fire and burglar proof and has at least a 50x60 feet room for storing property and for office space. The county must pay for the upkeep of its temporary quarters such as light, heat, and janitor service, but the state will maintain the expense of the armory when built. The size of the armory site will be 100 by 200 feet and is to be donated to the state by either the county, city or some organization. All incorporated communities will be asked to send representatives to meet in the near future to discuss the project in detail, Mr. Hesen said.

The number of personnel required for federal recognition depends upon the type of unit organized. Any of three units can be started: an Engineer combat company, a Field Artillery battery, or a military police unit, which is composed of infantry members. Full complement of the engineers which has the greatest strength of three, is five officers and 167 enlisted men. The unit can be recognized, however, with fewer members, it was pointed out.

Members To Be Paid

Those who enlist in the Maryland national guard will be paid for their services according to the rank they hold. Privates will receive $2.50 for the weekly two-hour sessions while the higher rated non-commissioned officers such as master or first sergeants are paid $5.50. Physical and educational erquirements are the same as those for the regular army and the age limit extends from 18 to 45 years.

Proctor Kildow Post No. 71, American Legion, and the Luther and Henry Schmidt Post 5282, VFW, have voted unanimously to assist with recruiting and the establishment of the county unit. No committees have been assigned as yet but the VFW has decided to use its full strength of about 60 men to further the project, Joseph M. Gonder, stated.

At the regular meeting of the County Commissioners this week the members appointed Lawrence M. Fraley to serve on the Savage River Dam Commission. He takes the place of the late George Warnick.

Other two members of the commission are Owen Hitchins and John J. McMullen, Allegany County.

The commissioners have asked the mayors of incorporated towns to meet with them next Monday, August 11, at 10 p. m., standard time, with reference to the allocation of state race track money to the various towns.

The commissioners also had several road delegations before them.

Engagement Announced

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Audrey Sperry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Sperry, Meyersdale, Pa., to Irvin Feld, son of Mrs. F. H. Feld, Second Street, and the late Mr. Feld. The wedding will be an event of September.

Miss Sperry was recently graduated from the Memorial Hospital School of Nursing, Cumberland. Mr. Feld, a graduate of Oakland High School and the Wharton School of Business of the University of Pennsylvania in 1939, is owner and manager of the Half Price Stores. He was discharged in 1946 from the Army Quartermaster Corps, with the rank of captain, after having served in New Guinea and the Philippines.

Wilt-Rexrode Nuptials

Mr. and Mrs. Harmon Wilt, Swanton, have announced the marriage of their daughter, Flora May Wilt, to Henry Jackson Rexrode, son of Mrs. Cyrus Harvey and the late John Rexrode, Swanton.

The single ring ceremony was performed Sunday, August 3, at 12:30 p. m. on the lawn at the home of the bridegroom, by Rev. C. W. Fraker, McHenry. The bride was given away by her father.

Mrs. Freda Teets, Swanton, sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor and Glen Rexrode was his brother's best man.

The bride was attired in a powder blue street length crepe dress with dark blue accessories and a corsage of red rosebuds. Her only jewelry was a strand of pearls. The maid of honor wore a light blue street length with black accessories and a corsage of pink rosebuds.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bridegroom where a chicken dinner was served.

Do you hope he gets away with it?

Suppose it were an automobile he was taking; would you still want him to get away with it? What the boy is doing is very human, isn't it? But is it right or wrong?

All through our lives we have to think whether it is right or wrong to undersell a competitor, to use power politics, to hold back some of the truth, to . . . well, to do a thousand different things. Those who want to build a better world are constantly concerned with the problem of right and wrong.

The Church, too, is vitally concerned with that problem. Its leaders and its followers have spent long hours studying, praying, living, to find the best and truest answers. The Church has good, realistic answers to the questions of right and wrong, answers all men need, answers that, if followed, will build a better world.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . .

ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend and support the church of his choice. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to Church on Sunday and read your Bible daily.

Do you hope he gets away with it?

Suppose it were an automobile he was taking; would you still want him to get away with it? What the boy is doing is very human, isn't it? But is it right or wrong?

All through our lives we have to think whether it is right or wrong to undersell a competitor, to use power politics, to hold back some of the truth, to . . . well, to do a thousand different things. Those who want to build a better world are constantly concerned with the problem of right and wrong.

The Church, too, is vitally concerned with that problem. Its leaders and its followers have spent long hours studying, praying, living, to find the best and truest answers. The Church has good, realistic answers to the questions of right and wrong, answers all men need, answers that, if followed, will build a better world.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . .
ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend and support the church of his choice. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to Church on Sunday and read your Bible daily.

Press Club Finds It's Worth Candle

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif.— (AP) — Workmen came to repair the Press Club fireplace chimney, and ran smack into irate defenders of the club tradition——that cheery flame has burned night and day for 41 years, and nobody's going to put it out now!

They finally compromised. That's why visitors have been amazed to see a large, plain white candle burning at all hours in the empty fireplace.

Police Outfox Saloon Interloper

CHICAGO, (AP) — When word reached the Chicago avenue police station that a strange red animal was cavorting around in a State street saloon, the first impulse was to shrug and say: "Well, maybe you was expectin' an orange elephant?"

But a couple of patrolmen went over anyway and found a fox. Nobody knew whence it came, but it was taken to an animal shelter.

WIFE PRESERVERS

Knitted ties should be rolled instead of hung when they are not worn. A rack should be provided for ties of other fabrics and they should be hung therefrom for neat and proper storage.

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) — Dell Wartner, sheetmetal worker, finally had a bird's egg size bump cut from his left arm and found deeply embedded an inch-long date palm thorn.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Sgt. James Kenney, who died 4 years ago, August 9, 1943.

In each letter he'd say,
Don't worry, Mom, I'm O. K.
Then into battle he went,
My son, so dear to me.
There his heart was ever stilled,
To make his country free;
Never again will I adoringly trace
The little smile wrinkles in his handsome face;
But always, always, I'll hear him say,
Don't worry, Mom, I'm O. K.

Grandmother, MRS. RALPH SHUCK.

KENNEY—In loving memory of my dear son, Sgt. James Donald Kenney, who was killed in service 4 years ago today, August 9, 1943.

"SON"
I do not need a special day,
To bring you to my mind.
The days I do not think of you,
Are very hard to find.
If all this world were mine to give,
I would give it, yes, and more,
To see the face of my dear son,
Come smiling through the door.
A token of love and remembrance,
Of a son I shall never forget,
His memory to me is a treasure,
His loss a lifetime regret.
GOD GRANT HIM ETERNAL REST.

HEART-BROKEN MOTHER.

CARD OF THANKS

We desire to thank our friends and neighbors who were so kind and thoughtful at the time of the loss of our dear husband and father, Also those who sent floral tributes and donated the use of their cars. Especially do we wish to thank his companion workers and those men from other mines who so carefully and tenderly took care of him.
MRS. CHARLES C. CONNOR & FAMILY,
Lonaconing, Md.

We wish to extend to all our friends and neighbors in the community our deepest appreciation to those who sent floral tributes, to those who loaned their cars and to all others who showed their kindness and thoughtful consideration in many other ways during the recent loss of our beloved son.
MR. & MRS. F. C. GLOVER & FAMILY,
Cresaptown, Md.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Sgt. James Kenney, who died 4 years ago, August 9, 1943.

In each letter he'd say,
Don't worry, Mom, I'm O. K.
Then into battle he went,
My son, so dear to me.
There his heart was ever stilled,
To make his country free;
Never again will I adoringly trace
The little smile wrinkles in his handsome face;
But always, always, I'll hear him say,
Don't worry, Mom, I'm O. K.

Grandmother, MRS. RALPH SHUCK.

KENNEY—In loving memory of my dear son, Sgt. James Donald Kenney, who was killed in service 4 years ago today, August 9, 1943.

"SON"
I do not need a special day,
To bring you to my mind.
The days I do not think of you,
Are very hard to find.
If all this world were mine to give,
I would give it, yes, and more,
To see the face of my dear son,
Come smiling through the door.
A token of love and remembrance,
Of a son I shall never forget,
His memory to me is a treasure,
His loss a lifetime regret.
GOD GRANT HIM ETERNAL REST.

HEART-BROKEN MOTHER.

Stocks Generally Turn Downward With Amusements, Rails Hard Hit

NEW YORK, Aug. 8, (AP)—Stocks generally turned downward in today's market with amusements, rails and assorted industrials suffering their most severe losses in several weeks although exceptional pressure was lacking.

Dealings were fairly active in the forenoon and final hour with frequent slowdowns appearing, and declines of fractions to three or more points were widespread. Transfers of 790,000 shares compared with 660,000 the day before and were the best since July 31.

Extra disbursements lifted Acme Steel 2 3-8 to 53 7-8 and S. H. Kress one-half to 51 1-4. Small plus marks were retained by Philip Morris, Frisco Railroad preferred and Union Carbide.

At lows for 1947 were Twentieth Century-Fox, off 1 3-8 at 26 1-8; Loew's seven-eighths at 19 1-8, Universal Pictures one-eighth at 18 3-8, Sieberling Rubber 1 1-4 at 8 1-2, and International Nickel three-eighths at 39 3-8.

Santa Fe yielded one-half at 82, Owens-Illinois three at 75 1-2, du-Pont 2 1-2 at 190 and Chrysler two at 57. Others off a point or more were United States Steel at 71 5-8, Paramount Pictures 23 1-8, Southern Pacific 41 1-2, Great Northern Railway 42, Atlantic Coast Line 55, Union Pacific 142, International Harvester 87, Dow Chemical 39 1-4, American Can 89 5-8, Foster Wheeler 23 1-8, Texas Company 64 1-2, Standard Oil (NJ) 78 5-8 and American Smelting 59 3-4.

In arrears also were Bethlehem, General Motors, United States Rubber, Montgomery Ward, United Aircraft, Western Union "A," Anaconda, Kennecott, General Electric, Johns-Manville, American Woolen and Warner Bros.

In a spotty Curb advances were shown for Woodall Industries, Humble Oil, Creole Petroleum and Pioneer Gold. Backward were Aluminum of America, Acme Aluminum, Cities Service, Electric Bond and Share and Middle West Corporation. Turnover here was 190,000 shares versus 140,000 yesterday.

The bond market kept its balance in the face of fairly severe setback in stock quotations.

United States governments showed little variation in the over-the-counter market, the victory loan 2 1-2s of December 1967-'72 holding at 102 20-32.

Sales totaled $3,080,000, compared with $3,050,000 Thursday.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Evelyn A. Hadra vs. William J. Hadra. No. 20,137 Equity in the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to secure the passage of a decree divorcing Evelyn A. Hadra, A VINCULO MATRIMONII from William J. Hadra, the Defendant.

The Bill of Complaint states that the couple were married in Cumberland, on February thirteenth, 1935, and that they lived together as man and wife until May twenty-sixth, 1947; that two children were born, namely William F. Hadra, eleven years of age, and Michael Hadra, four years of age. The Bill further states that the Defendant has committed the crime of adultery, and that the Complainant has not lived or cohabitted with the Defendant since she learned of his adulterous conduct, and that there is no possibility of reconciliation between the parties hereto; that up until May twenty-sixth, 1947, the said Defendant was a resident of the state of Maryland, but can not now be found. That the Complainant has been a resident of the state of Maryland for more than two years before the bringing of this suit but that the Defendant is now a non-resident of the state of Maryland.

It is thereupon this 24th day of July, 1947, ordered by the Circuit Court, for Allegany County, Maryland sitting in Equity, that the Plaintiff cause a copy of this order to be inserted in one of the daily newspapers published in Allegany County, once each week for four successive weeks, before the 25th day of August, giving notification to the Defendant of the object and substance of this suit, and warning him to be and appear in this Court in person or by solicitor, on or before the 10th day of September, 1947, to show cause, if any he may have, why a Decree ought not be passed as prayed.

ROBERT JACKSON, Clerk.

Stocks Generally Turn Downward With Amusements, Rails Hard Hit

NEW YORK, Aug. 8, (AP)—Stocks generally turned downward in today's market with amusements, rails and assorted industrials suffering their most severe losses in several weeks although exceptional pressure was lacking.

Dealings were fairly active in the forenoon and final hour with frequent slowdowns appearing, and declines of fractions to three or more points were widespread. Transfers of 790,000 shares compared with 660,000 the day before and were the best since July 31.

Extra disbursements lifted Acme Steel 2 3-8 to 53 7-8 and S. H. Kress one-half to 51 1-4. Small plus marks were retained by Philip Morris, Frisco Railroad preferred and Union Carbide.

At lows for 1947 were Twentieth Century-Fox, off 1 3-8 at 26 1-8; Loew's seven-eighths at 19 1-8, Universal Pictures one-eighth at 18 3-8, Sieberling Rubber 1 1-4 at 8 1-2, and International Nickel three-eighths at 39 3-8.

Santa Fe yielded one-half at 82, Owens-Illinois three at 75 1-2, duPont 2 1-2 at 190 and Chrysler two at 57. Others off a point or more were United States Steel at 71 5-8, Paramount Pictures 23 1-8, Southern Pacific 41 1-2, Great Northern Railway 42, Atlantic Coast Line 55, Union Pacific 142, International Harvester 87, Dow Chemical 39 1-4, American Can 89 5-8, Foster Wheeler 23 1-8, Texas Company 64 1-2, Standard Oil (NJ) 78 5-8 and American Smelting 59 3-4.

In arrears also were Bethlehem, General Motors, United States Rubber, Montgomery Ward, United Aircraft, Western Union "A," Anaconda, Kennecott, General Electric, Johns-Manville, American Woolen and Warner Bros.

In a spotty Curb advances were shown for Woodall Industries, Humble Oil, Creole Petroleum and Pioneer Gold. Backward were Aluminum of America, Acme Aluminum, Cities Service, Electric Bond and Share and Middle West Corporation. Turnover here was 190,000 shares versus 140,000 yesterday.

The bond market kept its balance in the face of fairly severe setback in stock quotations.

United States governments showed little variation in the over-the-counter market, the victory loan 2 1-2s of December 1967-72 holding at 102 20-32.

Sales totaled $3,080,000, compared with $3,050,000 Thursday.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Evelyn A. Hadra vs. William J. Hadra. No. 20,137 Equity in the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to secure the passage of a decree divorcing Evelyn A. Hadra, A VINCULO MATRIMONII from William J. Hadra, the Defendant.

The Bill of Complaint states that the couple were married in Cumberland, on February thirteenth, 1935, and that they lived together as man and wife until May twenty-sixth, 1947; that two children were born, namely William F. Hadra, eleven years of age, and Michael Hadra, four years of age. The Bill further states that the Defendant has committed the crime of adultery, and that the Complainant has not lived or cohabitted with the Defendant since she learned of his adulterous conduct, and that there is no possibility of reconciliation between the parties hereto; that up until May twenty-sixth, 1947, the said Defendant was a resident of the state of Maryland, but can not now be found. That the Complainant has been a resident of the state of Maryland for more than two years before the bringing of this suit but that the Defendant is now a non-resident of the state of Maryland.

It is thereupon this 24th day of July, 1947, ordered by the Circuit Court, for Allegany County, Maryland sitting in Equity, that the Plaintiff cause a copy of this order to be inserted in one of the daily newspapers published in Allegany County, once each week for four successive weeks, before the 25th day of August, giving notification to the Defendant of the object and substance of this suit, and warning him to be and appear in this Court in person or by solicitor, on or before the 10th day of September, 1947, to show cause, if any he may have, why a Decree ought not be passed as prayed.

Frostburg State Keeps Standards Of Schools High, President Says

Need New Buildings To Aid Facilities

The schools of Allegany and Garrett Counties will deteriorate if Frostburg State Teachers College is abandoned, Miss Lillian C. Compton, president of the institution, warned the Maryland Legislative Council yesterday.

On the other hand, with adequate facilities, the college will annually furnish more than its share of teachers to Maryland schools, Miss Compton declared.

She and other Western Maryland leaders met with the council yesterday and urged expansion of the college rather than abandonment as recommended by a state commission on higher education.

New Buildings Needed

To have adequate facilities the college needs many new buildings, Miss Compton said, a new auditorium-gymnasium, a new science laboratory, an office for faculty members and more dormitories.

With five buildings on the eight-acre site, she pointed out that there is not much room for expansion, but suggested the state might buy adjoining properties.

She also took note of suggestions that some of the buildings have developed cracks and might be unsafe, but, she countered, "Land has settled all over Frostburg. It's typical of the area. Competent engineers say the buildings are safe."

The commission on higher education suggesting abandonment of the school, contended it costs too much for the number of teachers it turns out, but Miss Compton declared that only three times during the period from 1930 to 1945 was the expense at Frostburg greater than at Salisbury or Towson.

Proportionately, she said, Frostburg draws more students than do Salisbury or Towson.

Last year the college had a record enrollment of 235 students and Miss Compton predicted that this coming September enrollment will reach at least 275 and possibly 300.

She claimed that if the college were closed about two-thirds of the students now enrolled preparing to teach will not be able to continue their education, largely because of the expense involved in attending college away from home.

Last year there were more than 500 graduates of Frostburg at work in the schools of Maryland, she stated, adding, "Frostburg is not an institution that serves Allegany County alone. It had last year graduates at work in 13 counties and in Baltimore City . . . We are not a county institution."

The science laboratories at Frostburg, she said, are far below the standards of the science departments found in Fort Hill, Allegany and Beall High Schools.

Does Not Meet Needs

While some relief will be afforded through a temporary science building from the Federal Works Agency, it does not meet the needs of the college, said Miss Compton.

She termed the auditorium-gymnasium "completely inadequate" and pointed out that it serves for physical education classes for both men and women, assemblies, music instruction, dramatics and some public meetings.

There are no dormitories for men, she explained, and they must live in homes in the community at a cost of about $75 a year more than women students pay.

The elementary school she termed too small to allow for care to be given children of kindergarten age although many parents in Frostburg have sought it.

Dining facilities she said are so inadequate that three lunch periods must be held to accommodate all who come.

The girls' dormitory is filled to capacity, Miss Compton said. The book shop, secretarial offices and presidents offices are poorly located. Faculty members have no offices and once class rooms are closed can either go to the library or go home to do their work.

Former Attorney General William C. Walsh emphasized the need of a college of higher education so that the people of the four western counties could have such an institution available.

He said it is his opinion that a small college has some advantages over larger colleges and he feels the college at Frostburg, from the standpoint of teacher training and a junior college, should be expanded and the facilities improved.

Charles L. Kopp, Allegany County superintendent of schools, asserted that if this section warrants the maintenance of a college, the institution should provide "splendid educational facilities at their very best."

Need Is Evident

Educational heads in the state as well as the county have already given evidence that there is need for such an institution in this section of Maryland, Kopp stated, adding that of 251 elementary teachers employed in Allegany County, 216 of them are graduates of Frostburg.

In too many instances, he said, the educational program is prepared to conform with the financial allotments made by state and county officials, when it should be just the opposite — the allotments should be made to coincide with the program.

W. Earl Cobey, Cumberland attorney and former resident of Frostburg, emphasized the cultural values of the college to the community and to all students from neighboring counties who attend.

Most emphatically Cobey said he favors retaining the junior college program as part of the institution in Frostburg rather than establishing a junior college in Cumberland.

Miss Catherine Thomas, president of the Alumni Association, and Earl Brain, principal of Hill Street School, Frostburg, and an alumnus of the college, contended that it would have been absolutely impossible for the large number of students from Western Maryland who attended the college since its establishment to have qualified to become teachers in the state educational system if the college had been located elsewhere.

Mrs. Kopp, an alumna of the college, pointed to the beauty of the

American Stores Plan Another Market Here

South Centre Site Tentatively Chosen

Plans and specifications for an American Stores super market tentatively slated to be built facing South Centre Street between Salem Street and the intersection of Centre Street, Williams Street and Commerce Street have been distributed to local contractors.

Joseph Federer, Johnstown, Pa., general superintendent of the American Stores Company, said last night, however, that a lease has not yet been negotiated with W. Wallace McKaig, owner of the land, and that the American Stores are "getting the price of the building first."

Estimates of the cost of the building have been placed at $150,000 to $200,000.

One contractor said he understands plans include a service station at the narrow end of the property—that at the intersection of Williams, Centre and Commerce Streets—and a parking area between the market and the service station.

The building is planned to front 200 feet on South Centre Street and run to a depth of 100 feet, about twice the size of the American Stores' Acme super market opened on North Centre Street several months ago.

The proposed structure would be of brick construction with the front faced with porcelain enamel. A tower bearing the Acme name would rise at the front.

At the present time the land is occupied by the Central Auto Laundry and Motor Mart.

Allegany County Adoption Cases Are Invalid For Want Of Law

Legislature Took Area From New Act

Adoptions in Allegany County are not exactly valid according to Chief Judge William A. Huster yesterday as he explained the status of adoption laws in this and five other Maryland counties.

When the legislature met recently Judge Huster explained a new statewide law setting up regulations and procedure for adoption of minor children was enacted. The new law repeals the old law which gave the Court the right to act in such cases. The new law makes the provision for certain investigations and supervision by the Welfare Board and was designed to eliminate any chance in metropolitan areas of a "baby adoption racket" developing, the Judge continued.

However, when the bill, which originated in the Senate came up for passage six counties were exempted from the measure probably by action of their local delegations. These counties are Allegany, Garrett, Washington, Prince Georges, Charles and St. Mary's.

With the old law repealed by the new act and the several counties exempted from the new law "it leaves us without any adoption laws at all," Judge Huster declared.

He then explained that there are about 12 adoption proceeding handled in Court here each year. He and Associate Judge George Henderson have agreed that they will continue to handle these cases under the old law, hoping the next legislature will validate the adoptions.

Adoptions are most frequently cases which must be handled without delay the jurist declared, and it is often important that good homes are found for very young babies without delay.

"So Judge Henderson and I are just going along under the old law but actually we have no adoption law here."

Double Housing Tendency Here, Report Finds

Sub-Standard Homes Outside City Limits

Although the single unit predominates, there has been a marked tendency in Cumberland toward double house construction, according to a report submitted to the Municipal Planning and Zoning Commission by Whitman, Requardt and Associates, Baltimore engineers.

There are approximately 8,000 dwelling in Cumberland proper of which about 65 per cent are single houses, 30 per cent double houses, four per cent row houses and one per cent apartment houses, the report states.

The central sections of the city as well as some of the older sections immediately adjacent have group houses in greater than average proportions, the engineers found, while some of the newer outlying developments tend very much toward the single cottage type of development.

Older sections of the city, particularly the area between Wills Creek and the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, have witnessed a gradual replacement of homes by business and industry, the report states, adding that housing of the one-two story group type, in much of the area is closely built up. On the other hand, in outlying sections it is less concentrated and the tendency has been toward single and double houses of usual urban pattern.

Housing in out of city areas, excluding Ridgeley and surrounding territory in West Virginia, has been mainly of the moderate to low cost single cottage type or immediately adjacent to major highways. The most concentrated development is found in the Braddock Run and Wills Creek sections followed by Bedford Road, McMullen Highway and Valley Road sections.

The area north of the city limits and west of Valley Road has been built up with a large group of very low cost and in many cases substandard houses, the report states, adding that without detailed inspection it is apparent that a large proportion of the group would not meet the minimum requirements for structural safety and sanitary facilities.

Presumably, the report says, the buildings have been built by individuals who have come to the area for work in or near Cumberland and have provided makeshift homes for themselves either as a means of living through a temporary period of work or as a result of restrictions on building materials and construction.

Whatever the cause for present conditions, the necessary raising of standards and improvement of the area will be a future problem, the engineers assert.

Court Rules Coal Company Can Use Mine Equipment

Receivers Win Suit In Burnwell Case

Receivers of the Burnwell Coal Company, Inc., Grantsville, are given the right to retain possession of mining machinery which two firms claimed under leases with the mining company, according to an opinion handed down in Garrett County Circuit Court by Associate Judge George Henderson.

The Burnwell company went into receivership last spring and A. T. Matthews and E. A. Jones, Oakland, were appointed receivers with Walter W. Dawson, Oakland, and William C. Walsh, this city as attorneys for the receivers. The mining company was conducting strip mining operations near Grantsville at the time of the receivership. Certain mining equipment was being used in these operations.

After the receivership went into effect the receivers claimed the machinery as belonging to the company. The two firms, Weber-Semmer, of Pennsylvania, and Beckwith Machinery Company, a Delaware firm with offices in Pittsburgh, claimed title to the machinery on the grounds it had been leased and not sold to the Burnwell company.

The two machinery companies entered suit in Circuit Court of Garrett county and testimony was taken several months ago at Oakland. About ten days ago additional testimony was heard in the court here.

Dawson and Walsh contended that the machinery belongs to the mining company receivers because of possession and because the "so-called" leases were never recorded in Maryland, or anywhere else as required under Maryland recording laws.

The machinery included a gasoline welder valued at $1,350, which the Weber - Semmers Company claimed, and a Diesel driven air compressor and pneumatic wagon drill valued at $8,244.64 by the Beckwith Machinery Company.

Judge Henderson held that the leases had never been recorded by the firms as required by law and ordered the items held by the mining firm be retained for use of all the creditors of the coal company under the receivership.

W. Earle Cobey was counsel for the Weber-Semmer Company and Walter C. Capper and William S. Jenkins represented the Beckwith firm.

Woman Is Held

CLEAR SPRING, Md., Aug. 8—(AP)—Dorothy McCarty, 21-year-old redhaired mother, today was ordered held without bond for the grand jury on a charge of killing a one-day-old baby found last Saturday in a shoe box in the old Chesapeake and Ohio Canal.

The petite, wan woman, who was without an attorney, waived preliminary hearing before Magistrate Ross Fite.

Sheriff's deputies said the woman admitted strangling the baby after its father told her he wouldn't marry her unless she "got rid of it." She identified the father as a resident of Needmore, Pa., who was taken into custody by police and released.

The police said the accused woman told them she was the mother of a four-year-old son.

Veterans To Ask County For Action On Sale Of Lots

Protest Delay On Holland St. Tract

Thirty-six veterans, some of them accompanied by their wives, who made application for lots on Holland Street to be sold to veterans by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners, met last night to discuss the situation.

The meeting, held at Kight Funeral Home, with Byron Kight as chairman, was for the purpose of determining if anything could be done to speed up action on the part of the County Board so those interested can get homes built, to determine how much the lots are to cost, and to plan a program which might facilitate the sale of the lots.

The land in question fronts on Holland Street above the North End athletic field and is a part of the Allegany County farm property.

At the suggestion of the local Veterans Non-Profit Housing Corporation last fall County Commissioners agreed to make the lots available as building sites for veterans if an enabling act could be put through the legislature. The Veterans Housing Group contacted John T. Fey and other members of the county delegation, and Fey sponsored the bill which passed both houses and was made law.

The County Commissioners had the tract surveyed, the lots appraised and compiled a list of applicants with the dates of each application for future reference.

Since then no further action has been taken to notify the veterans that the lots are ready to be sold or how much they will cost.

A committee including Byron Kight, Henry Holzshu and Francis Sine was appointed to see the County Commissioners Tuesday, get what information is available and report to the group at a meeting at Kight's next Thursday at 8 p. m.

Rangers, Police Find Frostburg Teacher's Body

Flash Flood Victim Is Washed 25 Miles

Tennessee Rangers and State Police yesterday found the body of Miss Rose Mary Mathias, 23, Frostburg School teacher, 14 hours after it was washed 25 miles down a trout stream in the Great Smokey Mountain National Park, near Gatlinburg, Tenn., by a flash flood.

The body of Miss Mathias, who left Frostburg Saturday on a vacation with three girl friends from New York, was found about 25 miles down stream where it caught on tree branches projecting from the creek bank, according to Dispatcher M. B. Atchley, Tennessee Highway Patrol.

Miss Mathias' friends were identified as Miss Irene Treffeisen, Miss Madaline Stokem and Miss Muriel Walsh, all of New York.

Party Close Together

Miss Treffeisen said the party was within a radius of 10 feet when the water rushed through the area, and added with the exception of Miss Mathias all were able to swim to safety. Relatives said the victim could swim.

Miss Treffeisen said the swell came so suddenly that nearby tourists were unable to aid any of the party. She explained that the victim may have been standing nearer the shore line when the water rushed through, but said she could not be sure.

"It was a very terrifying experience," she declared, "that happened so suddenly none of us can recall the events that immediately preceded." The four girls had been in the park about a half-hour when Miss Mathias was drowned, according to Miss Treffeisen.

The stream makes so much noise, during its normal flow that no noticeable warning sound of the approaching swell, was heard by persons in the vicinity, she explained.

Atchley said the average flow of the stream, which descends from an altitude of 6,000 feet to less than 1,000 feet within a distance of 15 miles, is very swift and on frequent occassions of flash floods the flow of the water is greatly increased.

The quartet, according to Tennessee Police, were apparently staying in Gatlinburg, and had gone to the park on a scenic trip for the day. Troopers said the creek flows near the main road through the park and is frequently used by the tourist for fishing.

Miss Mathias's family said last night that she left home Saturday after planning the trip and met her three friends in Martinsburg, W. Va. Miss Mathias was driving her own car on the trip they said.

Floods Occur Often

Sevier County authorities described the flash floods as something that occurs frequently in the Great Smokies, and said they recall that eight persons lost their lives under similar circumstances in 1937. The floods, have been reported frequently this year they said, but added that, to their knowledge, Miss Mathias is the first victim to be drowned.

Miss Mathias, who was graduated from Ursuline Academy, Cumberland, in 1940, received her degree in mathematics at the College of New Rochelle, N. Y.

She has been an instructor in the math department at Beall High School, Frostburg, for the past two years.

Tennessee authorities said they were informed that a brother, William Mathias, and a neighbor, Harry Payne, were en route to Gatlinburg to arrange to have the body sent to Frostburg, where funeral services will be held.

Miss Mathias was a native of Frostburg and a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maxell Mathias, Frost Avenue. She is survived by one other brother, John Mathias, at home.

Post May Answer Kimble's Comments

Mayor Thomas S. Post said last night he "probably" will have an answer to comments by Senator Robert B. Kimble concerning the mayor's absence Thursday night from a meeting of the state Legislative Council which was attended by a number of other city, county and town officials.

Kimble said the mayor "above everybody else" should have attended. "He's continually harping and harping about legislation." Kimble stated "and this was his opportunity."

The Mayor last night said he "had other business to attend to" and that his absence was "not that I was trying to stay away."

He said he "probably will have an answer" to Kimble's comments "after I have given it some thought."

Testimony Continues Today In Quarry Suit

Testimony was begun in Garrett County Circuit Court yesterday in a case involving the operation of a quarry on Deep Creek Lake, against which an injunction is asked. Associate Judge George Henderson who is presiding said last night the hearing would be resumed today.

The suit was brought by Gus Heise and Dr. T. E. Bullard, of the Will O' the Wisp tourist establishment, against the Vetter Brothers Stone Quarry.

Walter W. Dawson and Neil C. Fraley are counsel for the Vetters company while Jones and Jones, legal firm of Oakland, represent the plaintiff.

The suit is for an injunction to restrain the Vetter Brothers from "operating in such a way as to interfere with the tourist trade at Will O' the Wisp," alleging that the noise and dust from blasting has been such as to drive away business.

Enlists In Reserve

Luke William Eckard, 12 Mertens Street, Ridgeley, W. Va., enlisted in the V-6 Navy Reserve yesterday as a storekeeper third class.

Frostburg State Keeps Standards Of Schools High, President Says

Need New Buildings To Aid Facilities

The schools of Allegany and Garrett Counties will deteriorate if Frostburg State Teachers College is abandoned, Miss Lillian C. Compton, president of the institution, warned the Maryland Legislative Council yesterday.

On the other hand, with adequate facilities, the college will annually furnish more than its share of teachers to Maryland schools, Miss Compton declared.

She and other Western Maryland leaders met with the council yesterday and urged expansion of the college rather than abandonment as recommended by a state commission on higher education.

New Buildings Needed

To have adequate facilities the college needs many new buildings, Miss Compton said, a new auditorium-gymnasium, a new science laboratory, an office for faculty members and more dormitories.

With five buildings on the eight-acre site, she pointed out that there is not much room for expansion, but suggested the state might buy adjoining properties.

She also took note of suggestions that some of the buildings have developed cracks and might be unsafe, but, she countered, "Land has settled all over Frostburg. It's typical of the area. Competent engineers say the buildings are safe."

The commission on higher education suggesting abandonment of the school, contended it costs too much for the number of teachers it turns out, but Miss Compton declared that only three times during the period from 1930 to 1945 was the expense at Frostburg greater than at Salisbury or Towson.

Proportionately, she said, Frostburg draws more students than do Salisbury or Towson.

Last year the college had a record enrollment of 235 students and Miss Compton predicted that this coming September enrollment will reach at least 275 and possibly 300.

She claimed that if the college were closed about two-thirds of the students now enrolled preparing to teach will not be able to continue their education, largely because of the expense involved in attending college away from home.

Last year there were more than 500 graduates of Frostburg at work in the schools of Maryland, she stated, adding, "Frostburg is not an institution that serves Allegany County alone. It had last year graduates at work in 13 counties and in Baltimore City . . . We are not a county institution."

The science laboratories at Frostburg, she said, are far below the standards of the science departments found in Port Hill, Allegany and Beall High Schools.

Does Not Meet Needs

While some relief will be afforded through a temporary science building from the Federal Works Agency, it does not meet the needs of the college, said Miss Compton.

She termed the auditorium-gymnasium "completely inadequate" and pointed out that it serves for physical education classes for both men and women, assemblies, music instruction, dramatics and some public meetings.

There are no dormitories for men, she explained, and they must live in homes in the community at a cost of about $75 a year more than women students pay.

The elementary school she termed too small to allow for care to be given children of kindergarten age although many parents in Frostburg have sought it.

Dining facilities she said are so inadequate that three lunch periods must be held to accommodate all who come.

The girls' dormitory is filled to capacity, Miss Compton said. The book shop, secretarial offices and presidents offices are poorly located. Faculty members have no offices and once class rooms are closed can either go to the library or go home to do their work.

Former Attorney General William C. Walsh emphasized the need of a college of higher education so that the people of the four western counties could have such an institution available.

He said it is his opinion that a small college has some advantages over larger colleges and he feels the college at Frostburg, from the standpoint of teacher training and a junior college, should be expanded and the facilities improved.

Charles L. Kopp, Allegany County superintendent of schools, asserted that if this section warrants the maintenance of a college, the institution should provide "splendid educational facilities at their very best."

Need Is Evident

Educational heads in the state as well as the county have already given evidence that there is need for such an institution in this section of Maryland, Kopp stated, adding that of 251 elementary teachers employed in Allegany County, 216 of them are graduates of Frostburg.

In too many instances, he said, the educational program is prepared to conform with the financial allotments made by state and county officials, when it should be just the opposite — the allotments should be made to coincide with the program.

W. Earl Cobey, Cumberland attorney and former resident of Frostburg, emphasized the cultural values of the college to the community and to all students from neighboring counties who attend.

Most emphatically Cobey said he favors retaining the junior college program as part of the institution in Frostburg rather than establishing a junior college in Cumberland.

Miss Catherine Thomas, president of the Alumni Association, and Earl Brain, principal of Hill Street School, Frostburg, and an alumnus of the college, contended that it would have been absolutely impossible for the large number of students from Western Maryland who attended the college since its establishment to have qualified to become teachers in the state educational system if the college had been located elsewhere.

Mrs. Kopp, an alumna of the college, pointed to the beauty of the

American Stores Plan Another Market Here

South Centre Site Tentatively Chosen

Plans and specifications for an American Stores super market tentatively slated to be built facing South Centre Street between Salem Street and the intersection of Centre Street, Williams Street and Commerce Street have been distributed to local contractors.

Joseph Federer, Johnstown, Pa., general superintendent of the American Stores Company, said last night, however, that a lease has not yet been negotiated with W. Wallace McKaig, owner of the land, and that the American Stores are "getting the price of the building first."

Estimates of the cost of the building have been placed at $150,000 to $200,000.

One contractor said he understands plans include a service station at the narrow end of the property—that at the intersection of Williams, Centre and Commerce Streets—and a parking area between the market and the service station.

The building is planned to front 200 feet on South Centre Street and run to a depth of 100 feet, about twice the size of the American Stores' Acme super market opened on North Centre Street several months ago.

The proposed structure would be of brick construction with the front faced with porcelain enamel. A tower bearing the Acme name would rise at the front.

At the present time the land is occupied by the Central Auto Laundry and Motor Mart.

Allegany County Adoption Cases Are Invalid For Want Of Law

Legislature Took Area From New Act

Adoptions in Allegany County are not exactly valid according to Chief Judge William A. Huster yesterday as he explained the status of adoption laws in this and five other Maryland counties.

When the legislature met recently Judge Huster explained a new statewide law setting up regulations and procedure for adoption of minor children was enacted. The new law repeals the old law which gave the Court the right to act in such cases. The new law makes the provision for certain investigations and supervision by the Welfare Board and was designed to eliminate any chance in metropolitan areas of a "baby adoption racket" developing, the Judge continued.

However, when the bill, which originated in the Senate came up for passage six counties were exempted from the measure probably by action of their local delegations. These counties are Allegany, Garrett, Washington, Prince Georges, Charles and St. Mary's.

With the old law repealed by the new act and the several counties exempted from the new law "it leaves us without any adoption laws at all," Judge Huster declared.

He then explained that there are about 12 adoption proceeding handled in Court here each year. He and Associate Judge George Henderson have agreed that they will continue to handle these cases under the old law, hoping the next legislature will validate the adoptions.

Adoptions are most frequently cases which must be handled without delay the jurist declared, and it is often important that good homes are found for very young babies without delay.

"So Judge Henderson and I are just going along under the old law but actually we have no adoption law here."

Double Housing Tendency Here, Report Finds

Sub-Standard Homes Outside City Limits

Although the single unit predominates, there has been a marked tendency in Cumberland toward double house construction, according to a report submitted to the Municipal Planning and Zoning Commission by Whitman, Requardt and Associates, Baltimore engineers.

There are approximately 8,000 dwelling in Cumberland proper of which about 65 per cent are single houses, 30 per cent double houses, four per cent row houses and one per cent apartment houses, the report states.

The central sections of the city as well as some of the older sections immediately adjacent have group houses in greater than average proportions, the engineers found, while some of the newer outlying developments tend very much toward the single cottage type of development.

Older sections of the city, particularly the area between Wills Creek and the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, have witnessed a gradual replacement of homes by business and industry, the report states, adding that housing of the one-two story group type, in much of the area is closely built up. On the other hand, in outlying sections it is less concentrated and the tendency has been toward single and double houses of usual urban pattern.

Housing in out of city areas, excluding Ridgeley and surrounding territory in West Virginia, has been mainly of the moderate to low cost single cottage type or immediately adjacent to major highways. The most concentrated development is found in the Braddock Run and Wills Creek sections followed by Bedford Road, McMullen Highway and Valley Road sections.

The area north of the city limits and west of Valley Road has been built up with a large group of very low cost and in many cases substandard houses, the report states, adding that without detailed inspection it is apparent that a large proportion of the group would not meet the minimum requirements for structural safety and sanitary facilities.

Presumably, the report says, the buildings have been built by individuals who have come to the area for work in or near Cumberland and have provided makeshift homes for themselves either as a means of living through a temporary period of work or as a result of restrictions on building materials and construction.

Whatever the cause for present conditions, the necessary raising of standards and improvement of the area will be a future problem, the engineers assert.

Court Rules Coal Company Can Use Mine Equipment

Receivers Win Suit In Burnwell Case

Receivers of the Burnwell Coal Company, Inc., Grantsville, are given the right to retain possession of mining machinery which two firms claimed under leases with the mining company, according to an opinion handed down in Garrett County Circuit Court by Associate Judge George Henderson.

The Burnwell company went into receivership last spring and A. T. Matthews and E. A. Jones, Oakland, were appointed receivers with Walter W. Dawson, Oakland, and William C. Walsh, this city as attorneys for the receivers. The mining company was conducting strip mining operations near Grantsville at the time of the receivership. Certain mining equipment was being used in these operations.

After the receivership went into effect the receivers claimed the machinery as belonging to the company. The two firms, Weber-Semmer, of Pennsylvania, and Beckwith Machinery Company, a Delaware firm with offices in Pittsburgh, claimed title to the machinery on the grounds it had been leased and not sold to the Burnwell company.

The two machinery companies entered suit in Circuit Court of Garrett county and testimony was taken several months ago at Oakland. About ten days ago additional testimony was heard in the court here.

Dawson and Walsh contended that the machinery belongs to the mining company receivers because of possession and because the "so-called" leases were never recorded in Maryland, or anywhere else as required under Maryland recording laws.

The machinery included a gasoline welder valued at $1,350, which the Weber - Semmers Company claimed, and a Diesel driven air compressor and pneumatic wagon drill valued at $8,244.64 by the Beckwith Machinery Company.

Judge Henderson held that the leases had never been recorded by the firms as required by law and ordered the items held by the mining firm be retained for use of all the creditors of the coal company under the receivership.

W. Earle Cobey was counsel for the Weber-Semmer Company and Walter C. Capper and William S. Jenkins represented the Beckwith firm.

Woman Is Held

CLEAR SPRING, Md., Aug. 8—(AP)—Dorothy McCarty, 21-year-old redhaired mother, today was ordered held without bond for the grand jury on a charge of killing a one-day-old baby found last Saturday in a shoe box in the old Chesapeake and Ohio Canal.

The petite, wan woman, who was without an attorney, waived preliminary hearing before Magistrate Ross Fite.

Sheriff's deputies said the woman admitted strangling the baby after its father told her he wouldn't marry her unless she "got rid of it." She identified the father as a resident of Needmore, Pa., who was taken into custody by police and released.

The police said the accused woman told them she was the mother of a four-year-old son.

Veterans To Ask County For Action On Sale Of Lots

Protest Delay On Holland St. Tract

Thirty-six veterans, some of them accompanied by their wives, who made application for lots on Holland Street to be sold to veterans by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners, met last night to discuss the situation.

The meeting, held at Kight Funeral Home, with Byron Kight as chairman, was for the purpose of determining if anything could be done to speed up action on the part of the County Board so those interested can get homes built, to determine how much the lots are to cost, and to plan a program which might facilitate the sale of the lots.

The land in question fronts on Holland Street above the North End athletic field and is a part of the Allegany County farm property.

At the suggestion of the local Veterans Non-Profit Housing Corporation last fall County Commissioners agreed to make the lots available as building sites for veterans if an enabling act could be put through the legislature. The Veterans Housing Group contacted John T. Fey and other members of the county delegation, and Fey sponsored the bill which passed both houses and was made law.

The County Commissioners had the tract surveyed, the lots appraised and compiled a list of applicants with the dates of each application for future reference.

Since then no further action has been taken to notify the veterans that the lots are ready to be sold or how much they will cost.

A committee including Byron Kight, Henry Holzshu and Francis Sine was appointed to see the County Commissioners Tuesday, get what information is available and report to the group at a meeting at Kight's next Thursday at 8 p. m.

Rangers, Police Find Frostburg Teacher's Body

Flash Flood Victim Is Washed 25 Miles

Tennessee Rangers and State Police yesterday found the body of Miss Rose Mary Mathias, 23, Frostburg School teacher, 14 hours after it was washed 25 miles down a trout stream in the Great Smokey Mountain National Park, near Gatlinburg, Tenn., by a flash flood.

The body of Miss Mathias, who left Frostburg Saturday on a vacation with three girl friends from New York, was found about 25 miles down stream where it caught on tree branches projecting from the creek bank, according to Dispatcher M. B. Atchley, Tennessee Highway Patrol.

Miss Mathias' friends were identified as Miss Irene Treffeisen, Miss Madaline Stokem and Miss Muriel Walsh, all of New York.

Party Close Together

Miss Treffeisen said the party was within a radius of 10 feet when the water rushed through the area, and added with the exception of Miss Mathias all were able to swim to safety. Relatives said the victim could swim.

Miss Treffeisen said the swell came so suddenly that nearby tourists were unable to aid any of the party. She explained that the victim may have been standing nearer the shore line when the water rushed through, but said she could not be sure.

"It was a very terrifying experience," she declared, "that happened so suddenly none of us can recall the events that immediately preceded." The four girls had been in the park about a half-hour when Miss Mathias was drowned, according to Miss Treffeisen.

The stream makes so much noise, during its normal flow that no noticeable warning sound of the approaching swell, was heard by persons in the vicinity, she explained.

Atchley said the average flow of the stream, which descends from an altitude of 6,000 feet to less than 1,000 feet within a distance of 15 miles, is very swift and on frequent occassions of flash floods the flow of the water is greatly increased.

The quartet, according to Tennessee Police, were apparently staying in Gatlinburg, and had gone to the park on a scenic trip for the day. Troopers said the creek flows near the main road through the park and is frequently used by the tourist for fishing.

Miss Mathias's family said last night that she left home Saturday after planning the trip and met her three friends in Martinsburg, W. Va. Miss Mathias was driving her own car on the trip they said.

Floods Occur Often

Sevier County authorities described the flash floods as something that occurs frequently in the Great Smokies, and said they recall that eight persons lost their lives under similar circumstances in 1937. The floods, have been reported frequently this year they said, but added that, to their knowledge, Miss Mathias is the first victim to be drowned.

Miss Mathias, who was graduated from Ursuline Academy, Cumberland, in 1940, received her degree in mathematics at the College of New Rochelle, N. Y.

She has been an instructor in the math department at Beall High School, Frostburg, for the past two years.

Tennessee authorities said they were informed that a brother, William Mathias, and a neighbor, Harry Payne, were en route to Gatlinburg to arrange to have the body sent to Frostburg, where funeral services will be held.

Miss Mathias was a native of Frostburg and a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maxell Mathias, Frost Avenue. She is survived by one other brother, John Mathias, at home.

Post May Answer Kimble's Comments

Mayor Thomas S. Post said last night he "probably" will have an answer to comments by Senator Robert B. Kimble concerning the mayor's absence Thursday night from a meeting of the state Legislative Council which was attended by a number of other city, county and town officials.

Kimble said the mayor "above everybody else" should have attended. "He's continually harping and harping about legislation," Kimble stated "and this was his opportunity."

The Mayor last night said he "had other business to attend to" and that his absence was "not that I was trying to stay away."

He said he "probably will have an answer" to Kimble's comments "after I have given it some thought."

Testimony Continues Today In Quarry Suit

Testimony was begun in Garrett County Circuit Court yesterday in a case involving the operation of a quarry on Deep Creek Lake, against which an injunction is asked. Associate Judge George Henderson who is presiding said last night the hearing would be resumed today.

The suit was brought by Gus Heise and Dr. T. E. Bullard, of the Will O' the Wisp tourist establishment, against the Vetter Brothers Stone Quarry.

Walter W. Dawson and Neil C. Fraley are counsel for the Vetters company while Jones and Jones, legal firm of Oakland, represent the plaintiff.

The suit is for an injunction to restrain the Vetter Brothers from "operating in such a way as to interfere with the tourist trade at Will O' the Wisp," alleging that the noise and dust from blasting has been such as to drive away business.

Luke William Eckard, 12 Mertens Street, Ridgeley, W. Va., enlisted in the V-6 Navy Reserve yesterday as a storekeeper third class.
